The Man on the Sandbox

by L. C. Davis

SPRING STYLES

THOUGH Spring, on March the twenty-first,
Arrived on time with showers.
We're waiting for the buds to burst
And blossom into flowers.
The limbs of all the trees are bare
For which there is a reason—
They're undecided what to wear
To be in style this season.

AND GREASY.

"Supreme Court Will Review Doheny's Suit."

Why, that old suit is so old it ought to be in the ragbag by this time.

The man who went to sleep in the Ferris wheel was probably just hanging around to kill time.

It will be only a matter of time until we'll be receiving post cards from our friends bearing North Pole date stating they are sleeping under blankets every night and wishing we were there.

HATS OFF!

See where the duty on straw hats has been increased from 60 to 88 per cent. The hat may be straw but the duty will be felt in the consumer's overhead.

However, if we find we can get along with a domestic hat we can always go bare-headed.

Garland Buckeye, the Cleveland hurler, is coming in at 242 pounds ringside this spring. If weight counts for anything Buckeye is going to be a hard nut to crack.

The man on the sandbox says it seems impossible to go anywhere in Europe without stepping on somebody's coat tail.

The spirit of Locarno is as clever a little spirit as you'd meet in a day's walk, but it dosn't mean anything.

The only country that seems to be enjoying any tranquillity at all is the U. S. A., and even she is torn by internal dissensions as to whether wine or water shall be the national beverage.

If everybody was so busy attending to their own business that they wouldn't have time to assume the role of their brothers' keeper the whole thing would straighten itself out automatically.

"Coundouriotis Quits Greek Presidency."

Indicating that the Isles of Greece are not what they were in the days when burning Sappho did her stuff.

We gather from the criticisms that the Countess of Cathcart's play, "Ashes of Love," will shortly be relegated to the ashcan. It is so full of clinkers that it won't draw.

POLICE OFFICIALS QUESTIONED ABOUT BEATING OF YOUTH

NEW INSTRUCTIONS CONSIDERED LIKELY

Warning Expected for District Chiefs—Testimony Said to Have Highly Displeased Jurors.

Allen C. Orrick, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, and Chief of Police Gerk were summoned before the grand jury yesterday in an investigation of alleged police brutality.

What happened behind the doors of the jury room is not known, but report has it that the grand jury expressed high displeasure because of evidence in the case of Robert Dennis, 21 years old, of 1404 Cass avenue. Chief Gerk, it is said, is drafting instructions to his district commanders to the effect that there must be no brutality in future.

Chief Gerk today declined to state whether he had made an agreement with the grand jury. "The practices charged in this case are not in vogue in this department," he said. "There is a standing order against brutality. It is part of our police manual. There is not a week goes by that I do not talk with the captains about the proper treatment of prisoners. In view of the publicity given this case, I may again call the attention of the captains to the sections of the manual to preclude any future mistreatment of prisoners."

Wording of Manual.

The section of the police manual to which Chief Gerk referred was section 82, which says in part: "After he has been searched, the prisoner shall be placed in a cell, not more force being used than is necessary to overcome resistance. Members of the force are strictly forbidden to bandy words with prisoners, to speak to them unnecessarily, to address them in obscene or profane language or to offer personal violence to them."

The Dennis case has occupied the attention of the jury at its last three meetings. Thursday of last week Dennis and his attorney, Robert McMillan, were before the jury, and it is presumed that they repeated the charge they made publicly. Dennis says he was arrested Jan. 21, charged with burglary of a restaurant at 1120 Cass avenue, and was laid over a table at Carr Street Station by Detective-Sergeant Sam Stewart and "beaten unmercifully" with sticks and rubber hose by Stewart and Patrolmen William Walsh and William Hefele.

Station Inspected.

Physicians and others who saw Dennis after his release on bond were before the jury Tuesday, and officers at Carr Street Station were surprised that day by an unexpected visit from the entire grand jury. The jurors inspected the station and peered into closets and cupboards finding, according to report, a rubber hose and some sticks which answered descriptions given by Dennis. Yesterday, it is understood, the jury told Chief Gerk to choose between "putting a stop to police brutality" or having several of his officers indicted.

What action the grand jury will take in the case probably will not be known until it reports April 2. Should it vote indictments against police officers, its action would not be without precedent, inasmuch as the preciding grand jury, in September, indicted four policemen charged variously with assault and battery, oppression in office and malicious destruction of property alleged to have been committed in raids by the morality squad and in liquor cases.

These officers, George Upton, Walter Bauer, Fred Camp and William Carr, are scheduled for trial April 19 in Judge Calvin Miller's division of the Court of Criminal Correction. In that investigation Chief Gerk and Chief of Detectives Kaiser spent four hours in the grand jury chamber.

Freed at Hearing.

Dennis, after his release, exhibited a mass of bruises on his body and maintained that for several days he was unable to move except with great pain. At a preliminary hearing before Judge Gayer, he and John Harris, jointly charged with burglary, were freed after Dennis repeated his story, identifying the three officers as the men he said abused him. He named Herman Renekamp and Eugene

$300,000 Trust Fund Grows to $1,300,000 in Forty Years

Appointment of new trustees for a trust fund created in 1885, approved by Circuit Judge Taylor today, disclosed that the fund, originally something more than $300,000, had grown to $1,397,718, largely through careful reinvestment of the income and principal of $300,000 in Government bonds.

It is a fund for the benefit of Hazlett K. Campbell, an elderly bachelor residing at 1508 Locust street, in a huose reminiscent of the thoroughfare's past glory as Lucas place and notable for its neat yard. The fund was left by his father, the late Robert Campbell.

David Ranken and Thomas Gantt were the original trustees. James Campbell, another son, succeeded them, but died in 1890, whereupon Hugh Campbell, a third son, became trustee. He also is a bachelor, residing in the Locust street house.

When Hugh Campbell became trustee the fund amounted to $445,673. It now includes $1,342,000 in Liberty bonds, $36,818 cash, $14,900 (par value) in stock of the Merchants'-Laclede National Bank and $4000 (par value) in stock of the State National Bank.

Robert Campbell's fortune was founded in fur trade in the Rocky Mountains 90 years ago and augmented by trade in Indian goods when he returned to St. Louis. He was born in Ireland.

Hugh Campbell resigned as trustee today, wishing to be free of the responsibility. His petition was filed by Everett Paul Griffin and E. G. Curtis of the law firm of Nagel & Kirby. Allen C. Orrick, also of that firm, and president of the Police Board, and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., were appointed new trustees.

RESISTANCE TO BEAR TRADERS JUMBLES UP STOCK LISTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—A stubborn contest between bear traders and constructive stock market forces resulted in a series of highly erratic price movements on the New York Stock Exchange today. Public utility and food shares gave way before continued pounding, while a concentrated selling attack in the final hour reduced or canceled many of the gains previously registered by representative industrial issues. Trading fell off in volume, with total sales approximating 1,700,000 shares.

Selling of the public utilities converged on American Water Works, North American and Columbia Gas and Electric, which broke into new low ground for the year, together with American Sugar, Union Bag and Paper, Allis Chalmers, International Combustion Engineering, Atlantic Coast Line and Pierce Arrow preferred.

BYRD MAKES TEST FLIGHT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Lieutenant-Commander Richard E. Byrd gave the three-engine Fokker monoplane, which he will use for Arctic exploration this spring, its first test flight, flying from the Atlantic Aircraft Corporation's flying field at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., to Curtiss Field at Mineola, L. I.

The "Josephine Ford," named after the daughter of Edsel Ford, the sponsor of the expedition, has a cruising range of 1400 miles at a speed of 100 to 125 miles an hour. Byrd expressed satisfaction with the test and his conviction that the exploration flight will be successful. The plane will be subjected to efficiency tests at the Long Island field and equipped with skids for landing in the Far North.

Explosion Discloses Distillery.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—An explosion today disclosed a 60,000-gallon moonshine plant in the heart of automobile row, on Michigan boulevard. The blast brought police and prohibition agents, who found three floors occupied by the illicit plant, which was masquerading as the "Michigan Radio Co." Officers found the place desertad.

INCREASES IN SALARIES DENIED BY CITY BOARD

Ordinance Would Have Added $5200 to Public Utilities Department.

Salary increases amounting to $5200 a month in the Department of Public Utilities, including an advance from $4000 to $5000 a year for Ralf Toensfeldt, chief electrical engineer, were denied by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment today, the board disapproving a proposed ordinance making the increases.

The bill would have increased the pay of Water Commissioner Pritchard from $7000 to $7500 a year, and of Eugene Rilliet, Division Engineer, from $5000 to $6000.

The salary increase measure had the approval of Director of Public Utilities Wall.

The Board of Estimate disapproved a proposal for creating a new position of deputy building commissioner, at $4000 a year, and a chief deputy plumbing inspector at $200 a month. These proposals were from Director of Public Safety Brod.

Approval was given by the Board of Estimate to the increasing of the salary of John S. Stradel, chief probation officer in Police Court, from $2500 to $2800 a year, and the salary of the stenographer in his office from $107 to $132 a month.

Creation of the offices of traffic engineer at $4000 a year, and two inspectors of traffic at $150 a month, was approved by the Board of Estimate. In this measure, which was originated by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks, an appropriation of $40,000 for street signs was included originally. This was eliminated, and it was stated that bills for the purchase of signs may be introduced from time to time.

The Board of Estimate approved an additional appropriation of $10,000 for the Warne avenue public relief sewer, the extra cost being due to an unexpected amount of rock encountered; and a special tax measure for improvement of Wyoming street, from Gravois avenue to Louisiana avenue, at a cost of $14,056, the city's share being $590.

ARTS COMMISSION REJECTS WILSON MEMORIAL DESIGN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Maintaining that when a memorial is built in Washington to Woodrow Wilson it should be adequate and the result of careful preparation with authority from Congress, the Commission of Fine Arts has rejected a design for a memorial submitted on behalf of Czecho-Slovakian, Jugo-Slavian and Polish residents of this country.

The design depicted President Wilson bareheaded and wearing a frock coat, standing on a pedestal, leading up to which were 14 steps, representing the Fourteen Points. Behind the figure, reaching above the head was a shaft of marble. On the other side of this shaft and back of the war President was a feminine figure of America with raised arms. Members of the commission found fault with the design and they objected also on the ground that there was no authority from Congress for the memorial.

The memorial was to have cost $200,000. Authority for the erection of such a memorial might be obtained from Congress over head of the Commission of Fine Arts.

FASCIST CIRCLES HEAR REPORTS OF PENDING REVOLT

Mussolini's Ministers Said to Be Restless and Federzoni Awaits Chance to Turn on Him.

AIR IN ROME OF AWAITING BIG EVENTS

CHIASSO, Switzerland, March 26.—Italy is on the eve of a fresh coup d'etat, it is declared in certain Fascist quarters.

There are many signs that a deadly struggle within the Fascist ranks is about to break out between Minister of the Interior Federzoni and Roberto Farinacci, Secretary-General of the Fascist party. The two are contending for the inheritance of Premier Mussolini's sceptre, and Rome is in a state of eager expectation and effervescence which is having its visible reflection throughout Italy.

The disaffection of Ministers and permanent heads of ministerial departments has already been reported. Count Volpi, who settled the American and English debts, is reported about to resign from the Ministry of Finance, ostensibly because his eldest daughter soon will marry the Prince of Genoa. Since this nobleman comes from a branch of the royal family, Count Volpi says he considers it his duty to discontinue his connection with the ministry.

But nobody in Italy believes this is the reason. It is argued that the shrewd statesman wishes to get out of the political mess while there is still time and live in expectation of future events. It is also recalled that Count Volpi is an official of the Banca Commerciale Italiana, which is supporting Federzoni's struggle for supremacy in the Fascist party.

Cantarini Resigns.

The resignation of Senator Cantarini, for the last six months Director-General of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, has also been handed to the Premier. It was given because of serious objections to Mussolini's recent attitude on the South Tyrol question and the League of Nations.

There is also the likelihood that Signor Scialoja, Italy's chief delegate to the League Council, may withdraw.

Federzoni's defection from his chief is clear. He is only waiting for a suitable occasion to turn openly against the Duce. Federzoni still is the leader of the Nationalist party, a position which gives him his power rather than any Fascist affiliations. Against this big business backing, Mussolini's chief reliance is on on Farinacci, the leader of the extremist section of Fascism.

It is taken for granted in Rome that it was Federzoni who arranged for the "escape" to France of Cesare Rossi, erstwhile Mussolini aid, held for complicity in the murder of the Socialist Deputy Matteotti. The assumption is that Rossi was sent to France by Federzoni to spread propaganda against the dictator.

Rossi's story that he was rushed to the frontier by motor car is ridiculed in Rome. It is said there that he went to San Remo in a sleeping car.

The Mussolinists are saying that Federzoni timed the escape to coincide with the Chieti trial of Rossi's fellow-accused in the Matteotti case, the object being to fill foreign newspapers with accusations against the Premier.

Shadowing of Rossi.

Mussolini is said to consider Rossi's flight and subsequent publicist activities as a tremendous blow. Fearing just what has happened, he had ordered that Rossi be shadowed day and night by four Fascist detectives and that his house be kept under the strictest surveillance.

Therefore, the dictator is convinced the man's escape must have been arranged by the very men charged with watching him to prevent it. In this connection it might be pointed out that, as Miniser of the Interior, Federzoni has the immediate supervision of the police force.

It is said that when Mussolini heard of the escape he flew into a terrible fit of rage, yelling constantly, 'I am betrayed; I am surrounded by traitors." His first act was to summon Federzoni and or-

EVANGELINE BOOTH SAYS DOG SAVED LIFE DURING ILLNESS

Salvation Army Leader's Pet Summoned Help When Mistress Was Sinking.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Returning to duty after nearly four months of illness, Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army told her comrades at Salvation Army headquarters last night that her shepherd dog, Mazie, had saved her life one night during her illness by going for help.

Miss Booth became seriously ill shortly before Christmas. One night in February she woke experiencing a "strange sinking sensation" and was not able to move her legs or raise her arms or call for help. She finally awakened the dog at her bedside and whispered, "Get Giddie," the nickname of her attendant, Mary Wells. Miss Booth said that Mazie rushed off at once and pawed at the bed clothes until Miss Wells was aroused. Miss Booth heard the attendant tell the dog to keep silent and soon Mazie returned to her mistress' bedside. Sent off again, Mazie caused such a stir that Miss Wells investigated, found Miss Booth in a serious condition and induced artificial respiration until the doctor arrived.

'GARDEN PLANTING' ON COLD DAY GETS NEGRO IN TROUBLE

Police Sergeant Finds That Gabe Green's Vegetable Seeds Are 16 Bottles of Moonshine.

"Planting garden?" queried Police Sergeant Coats of a Negro he saw spading in a yard in the rear of 2026 Olive street yesterday afternoon.

"Yep, planting," responded the Negro.

Coats was curious. The cold winds of yesterday didn't convince him that spring planting time had arrived. So he looked in the hole.

"Must be going to raise a distillery," he remarked as he lifted out 16 half pints of moonshine whisky.

Spring planting was over for Gabe Green, 41 years old. He was taken to Central Station with the half pints.

Northward Migration Travels at 15 Miles a Day.

PALO ALTO, Cal., March 26.—A cloud of butterflies is moving northward over the peninsula between here and San Francisco.

Automobile windshields are being obscured by the tiny travelers. The butterflies, flying in a thick mass, start off at dawn and cover about 15 miles a day. Prof. R. W. Doane of the department of entomology at Stanford University suggests that although their migration must be a short one, due to the brevity of their lives, there are indications that they came from south of the Mexican border.

EVANGELIST HELD HERE FOR JUMPING BOND IN ILLINOIS

OFFENSE AGAINST A GIRL IS CHARGED

Frameup, Declares Preacher, but Police Remain Unconverted — Spends Night in Holdover.

A choir rehearsal being conducted last night by Jimmy Delk—two-gun evangelist, trapeze acrobat and restaurant owner—was interrupted by two city detectives, who arrested him for jumping bond at Shelbyville, Ill., one of the many places where he has exhorted sinners.

Unable to find their man at his defunct restaurant on Easton avenue, Detectives Borlinghaus and Sept went to 3149A Olive street at 7:30 o'clock, and there in the parlor three men were lustily singing hymns, accompanied by a woman at a piano.

"Welcome, brothers," was the way Delk, the baritone of the trio, greeted the callers.

"May we see you outside?" responded the detectives.

Informed that he was under arrest, the evangelist reminded the detectives that he was holding revival services at 4500 Manchester avenue and could not be spared. Further, he said, the choir rehearsal was necessary if there was to be harmony at the revival.

Detectives Unconverted.

But the detectives were deaf to his pleadings, so he reluctantly dismissed the choir and spent the night in a cell at Police Headquarters.

The arrest had been requested by Sheriff Harry Riley at Shelbyville, who sent here a bench warrant issued against Delk on Jan. 29 after he had been indicted. The Sheriff also said Delk was wanted for jumping a bond signed by a woman, from whom the evangelist previously had obtained several thousand dollars.

Delk is 40 years old, married, and has two sons. His full name is James L. Delk. Born at Pall Mall, Tenn., he left home to join a circus when 13 and was converted at a Baptist revival meeting when 16. He gave up the trapeze for the pulpit and has said he was ordained as a Baptist minister in East St. Louis. Since then he has held revivals in many states, the restaurant business being a side line in the last five years. In St. Louis he has held forth at several locations, a tent at Grand and Delmar boulevards being his edifice in 1922.

Basis of Indictment.

The indictment against Delk resulted from the visit of two girls to his tent at Shelbyville in September, 1924. One of the girls later charged that Delk had hugged and kissed her. He denied this and asserted the case was a frameup.

The $800 bond which Delk forfeited by leaving Shelbyville had been posted by Mrs. Effie Pierce, a 67-year-old widow, who had interested herself in his work. He has maintained a correspondence with her and exhibited a recent letter in which she wrote, "God bless you."

"Mrs. Pierce has been a very dear friend," Delk explained. "One day she told me I ought to have an auto in my work and she pressed two hundred $5 bills into my hand. I used the money to buy a car, which I still have. I never asked her for a penny at any time, but she frequently contributed funds for my fight on bootleggers. Altogether, she donated from $5000 to $6000."

During his stay in Shelbyville Delk reported that three men fired on Mrs. Pierce's home while he was visiting there. He fired back. His habit of carrying weapons "for protection" brought the sobriquet of "two-gun evangelist."

$1500 PAYROLL HOLDUP AT A STOP SIGNAL

Three armed men obtained a $1500 payroll from A. G. Pollvogt, paymaster of the Hornet Mantle Co., when Pollvogt stopped his automobile at an automatic stop signal at Lindell boulevard and Euclid avenue at 3 p. m. today.

Pollvogt had left the company's offices at 2206 Locust street to pay some of the concern's employes who were working at the Jewish hospital. The automobile in which he was riding was driven by Robert Harrison, a Negro.

As their machine reached the intersection of Lindell boulevard and Euclid avenue, he told police, and stopped, a truck drove up along side and two men leaped out of it into their automobile. The third man remained in the truck. The robbers in Pollvogt's automobile ordered them to drive ahead on Lindell boulevard a short distance beyond the intersection, where they took the satchel containing the money, returned to the truck which had followed, and escaped.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Some of the actions of Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis were "unfortunate," and he did not always use good taste and good judgment, but it has not been established that he ever acted from corrupt motives, in the opinion of three members of the House Judiciary Committee, who today filed a minority report recommending against impeachment.

The minority report was signed by Representatives Bowling (Dem.) of Alabama; Weaver (Dem.) of North Carolina, and Hickey (Rep.) of Indiana.

The Judiciary Committee has 23 members, of whom at least 16 are known to have concurred in the majority report recommending impeachment, which was filed in the House yesterday by Chairman Graham.

The minority report, which was lengthy, took up the evidence in considerable detail and analyzed it, with a view of showing that while many of the actions imputed to Judge English were in questionable taste, they were not inspired by improper motives, and do not constitute "high crimes and misdemeanors," or misbehavior sufficient to warrant impeachment.

Disbarment of Webb.

Attacking first the incident of the disbarment of Thomas M. Webb, the report says it appears that Judge English acted under a misunderstanding when he suspended Webb from practice in his court. He thought that Webb, in obtaining the release of a prisoner on a writ of habeas corpus in a State court, had misrepresented the facts, so he suspended him until he could satisfy himself, by inquiry, that Webb had not done so, whereupon he reinstated him. "No animus or corrupt purpose is even indicated by the evidence," the three members declare.

The disbarment of former United States District Attorney Charles A. Karch is discussed at more length. There admittedly was bad blood between the Judge and Karch, it is stated, and the situation was intensified by reports carried to the Judge. Karch's attitude is described as "menacing and contemptuous," and he is pronounced "not without blame."

The report concedes that his disbarment and long suspension from practice was "an unfortunate occurrence," but says "evidence is lacking that Judge English proceeded from any wicked motive and the incident is totally insufficient to maintain a charge of impeachment."

The report mentions an editorial published at about the same time in the Post-Dispatch, in which Judge English was criticized for refusing jury trials to railroad shop strikers in contempt cases.

Opinion as to Jury Trials.

It is true, says the report, that the Supreme Court subsequently held that defendants were entitled to jury trials in such cases, but it is the opinion of the minority that Judge English did not intend to deny jury trials; he merely meant to postpone them. The testimony on this point was that Judge English told Karch he considered it "an insult to the court to have lawyers asking for jury trials in these cases."

Touching the incident in which Judge English summoned Sheriffs and State's Attorneys of Washington, Marion and Clinton counties into his court, and denounced them for alleged failure to co-operate in enforcing his injunctions against

JOHNSON ANSWERS SMOOT'S SPEECH ON ITALIAN DEBT

Californian Says He Would Rather Lose Every Penny Than Settle on Pending Terms.

PLAN UPHELD AS BEST OBTAINABLE

Utah Senator Declares France Never Will Get Settlement on Same Basis as Italy.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—France will never obtain terms as liberal as those accorded to Italy in funding her war debt to the United States, Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah told the Senate in opening debate on the Italian settlement plan.

His statement was interpolated yesterday in the midst of the reading of a prepared address urging Senate ratification of the settlement, and when he had concluded Senator Johnson (Rep.) of California, arose to attack the agreement as unfair to American taxpayers.

In making his reference to the French debt, Smoot said he had heard a number of Senators say that whatever settlement was made with Italy would be made with France. This, he said, was far from the mark, becaues the two debt problems in no way could be compared.

"I want to assure Senators now personally," he said, "that no such settlement will ever be made with France as has been made with Italy, notwithstanding that England has made a better settlement with Italy than we have made."

Terms Best Obtainable.

Only a few Senators were in the chamber at the time and Senator Smoot was not questioned. In urging approval of the Italian settlement, he said the terms were the best that could be made and represented the utmost of Italy's capacity to pay.

It would be better, he argued, to collect the sum that Italy could pay than to let the whole debt go by default.

Senator Johnson said that, while listening to the Utah Senator's speech, he anticipated that a suggestion would be brought forward that "we float another Liberty loan" and give the proceeds to Italy. He declared he would "rather forgive every penny of the debt than insist on that settlement."

London Paper Predicts Growing Resentment Against America.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 26.—The speech of Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons, in which he called attention to the difference of opinion between the United States and Great Britain on the allied war debts and in which he pictured the United States as a univeral creditor of the future, has evoked comment in a few newspapers.

These papers mainly repeat what has already been said—that there is a strain of skepticism in reference to what Great Britain may expect to get from her European debtors.

The Daily Telegraph says: "If the Chancellor, as his critics demand, were to put his foot down more firmly when dealing with debtors, the other party would gather up his hat and coat and depart. The British foot would be left down, but there would be nothing beneath it."

The Telegraph dwells on the advantages which it asserts America possesses, as compared to Great Britain in dealing with debtors.

Reminder of State Debts.

After reiterating Churchill's description of the United States as a universal creditor of the future, the paper adds:

"We do not blame the United States for setting its face against default, but it would look rather better if she were mindful of the obligations of several of her own constituent states, which have been in default to the extent of 15 millions for many years. Washington has not put pressure on them or offered to shoulder the obligations. These things were long since forgotten, but old memories are awakened when in the name of principle the richest country in the world is driving the hardest and keenest bargains."

Combining its comment on Churchill's speech and the remarks of Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, in which he declared the American debt settlements were the most favorable obtainable short of force and touched on teh moral obligation to assist other peoples to clear the wreackage of war, the Morning Post says:

"Even if Europe is left with enough with which to buy a cotton shirt once a month, meat once a week and a pair of American shoes once a year, there will still be a growing feeling of resentment against this good Samaritan.

"If all Europe and even Japan were brought into a new and closer understanding by this policy it would not surprise us, although it might surprise America. This policy of almost skinning Europe may be immediately profitable to the United States, but it is questionable if it is the wisest policy, taking a long view of American interests, but that, of course, is for America to decide."

Contending that the allies fought in a cause which was also America's and spent the blood of their peoples while the American armies were training, the Post says:

"What interest should the allies charge upon that debt of America to them?

"They charged nothing, because, in this case, as in another, blood is not in the bond."

Complaints of police brutality have been frequent in past years, many of them without foundation. Circuit Attorney Sidener on many occasions has complained that criminals have won acquittal at the hands of juries merely by setting up a plea that they were beaten by police. Many confessions have been set aside on this ground, frequently on the mere statement of the defendant that "third degree" methods were used.

MEXICAN BANDITS KIDNAP AMERICAN MINING ENGINEERS

Party of Four Is Robbed of Money and Jewelry, Then Carried to Hills and Tied to Trees.

HELD FOR RANSOM; FREE THEMSELVES

Four Mexicans Arrested in Connection With Murder of Employe of Bridge Company.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, March 26.—The kidnaping of a party of American mining engineers, who were tied to trees, is the latest in a series of recent attacks on Americans.

Near Asarco, in the State of Durango, bandits at nightfall on Wednesday seized C. D. Weaver Jr., Emil Kreglan and A. P. Morris, and Adolph Matz, a German, and robbed them of about 500 pesos ($250) and all their jewelry. The men were carried captive into the hills and tied to trees. The bandits announced their intention to hold them for 10,000 pesos ransom and threatened death if the money was not forthcoming.

Captives Free Themselves.

Most of the men are connected with the American Smelting & Refining Co. Weaver is president of an American-Mexican mining development company. The bandits captured the party between San Lorenzo and Asarco.

Weaver told the captors that he had money at his home near Asarco. Three bandits accompanied him home. They ransacked the place, taking all valuables. The other men meanwhile freed themselves from the trees and went to Asarco and notified the authorities.

An American Negro named McNealy is declared to have been killed by three policemen while he was attempting a third escape from the jail at Matamoros. Four policemen are under arrest in connection with his death. McNealy was a powerful man and greatly feared by the police. When he broke jail for the third time he reached the Matamoros cemetery. It is reported that he was beaten when he resisted, after previously having signified his intention to surrender.

Four Arrested for Murder.

Four Mexicans have been arrested at Ixtlan in connection with the recent murder of Rex McIlpone and the wounding of E. H. Heidenkamp, employes of the American Bridge Co., who were attacked, apparently for robbery, while driving a raliroad motor car toward a construction camp in the State of Jalisco.

In connection with the death of Joe Hall, an American employed by the Mexican National Railways, last Monday near Ixtlan, Remegio Ruelas, a Mexican, has been arrested and other persons are being sought. Hall was stoned to death.

At Acamparo, in the State of Guanajuato, the ranch of J. M. Feeley is being protected by troops because of a raid upon it last Sunday by 25 armed men. Feeley has informed the American embassy that it is his belief the attack was due to labor troubles.

The Foreign Office has informed the embassy that President Calles has ordered that all efforts be made to apprehend Mexicans who have attacked Americans. The note added that the Mexican Government was doing everything possible in the circumstances.

A Cat and Its Breakfast.

By the Associated Press.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 26.—A stray cat was responsible this morning for the suspension of the activities of Fall River's 111 mills, all its stores, factories and business places. The cat had had no breakfast, and when it saw a fine, fat sparrow light on a transformer, it made a flying leap for the bird. In so doing, the animal caused a short circuit in the huge transformer, suspending electric service in the entire city for nearly half an hour. The cat will recover.

Motives of English Not Corrupt, Minority Argues

the shop strikers, the minority says there is doubt that he actually subpenaed them, and doubt as to whether his lecture occurred in open court or during recess.

It pleads that "it was a time of tension," and while "he may have done it brusquely, vehemently and probably in a way that was distasteful, he was trying to maintain law and order."

The incident in which Judge English is charged with having told a jury he would send its members to jail unless they returned a verdict of guilty in a certain case, is declared by the minority to be "unworthy of consideration." It says that neither Judge English nor the assistant District Attorney recalled the incident, as testified by Wayne Ely, a lawyer in the case.

No Tyranny, They Say.

Concerning the accusation of 'tyrannous attack on the liberty of the press," the report says: "This is a high-sounding title with nothing to support it." It does not discuss the evidence given during the investigation by thre newspaper men.

The accusation of profanity and misbehavior in court is not adequately supported by the evidence, it continues. While some witnesses declared that Judge English "used violent, profane and obscene words, they differ irreconcilably among themselves as to the phraseology of Judge English."

It then takes up the accusation that English and his Referee in Bankruptcy, C. B. Thomas, corruptly connived at the establishment of a 'bankruptcy ring," and prononunces the evidence insufficient and declares that Judge English is being blamed for the acts of Thomas.

There is no foundation, it says, for the charge that Judge English changed the rules of his court affecting bankruptcy matters for the purpose of giving Referee Thomas an opportunity to manipulate the assets in a way that would financially benefit English, Thomas and their families. Judge English, it says, established five depositories, and distributed bankrupt funds equitably among them.

As to Favoritism Charge.

Under the heading "favoritism, partiality and unlawful appointment of receivers," which covers the transactions in which Referee Thomas received numerous lucrative appointments from Judge English, the report declares that the appointment of Thomas, and his remuneration, appears to have been satisfactory to all the parties, and that no corrupt motive or benefit on Judge's English's part has been shown.

When criticism was made by the Department of Justice, Judge English called Referee Thomas sharply to account, and Thomas resigned his receiverships, it states.

In reply to the charge that Judge English borrowed heavily without security and at a low rate of interest, from a bank which he had made a depository for bankrupt funds, it says the evidence shows that the officers for the bank were his lifelong friends, and declined to take a mortgage on his home.

Judge English's suggestion to his colleague, Judge Lindley, that English might appoint Lindley's cousin to fee jobs, if Lindley would appoint English's son, is called "an error, which Judge English subsequently corrected in a letter to Judge Lindley."

Son's Job in Bank.

The arrangement whereby Farris English, the Judge's son, received 3 per cent interest on all the bankruptcy funds deposited in the Union Trust Co. of East St. Louis, is declared to have been a secret to the Judge, and, "so far as he is concerned, it did not constitute corruption or improper conduct on his part, however indefensible the practice was for those who indulged in it."

The charge that Judge English permitted Referee Thomas to practice before him in a bankruptcy case—which drew a scathing rebuke from Federal Judge Anderson of Indianapolis—is not fully sustained, it says, because the episode did not occur in Judge English's district, but occurred while he was substituting for Judge Anderson.

The inference of corruption on Judge English's part in the case in which Francis J. Skye, a druggist, paid Thomas $2500 to get his jail sentence suspended in English's court in a liquor case, is not warranted from the facts, the minority report declares.

Auditor's Report on Thomas.

Reference is made to a report in 1924 to the Department of Justice by an auditor, who stated that Thomas conducted the office of Referee efficiently and honestly, and that his administration was generally respected. No mention is made of a later report, in which investigators reported that Thomas had been guilty of not less than 17 violations of the law in the fixing of fees. Thomas resigned as Referee just before this report was made, in January, 1925.

In conclusion, the minority contended that the majority had sought to establish "a course of conduct, showing tyranny, oppression and habitual official misbehavior."

"This charge is wholly unsupported by the testimony," the report declared. "The evidence of the clerk of the District Court shows that during his services as Judge, Judge English disposed of more than 3000 criminal cases and 3500 civil cases. He was beyond question a busy Judge.

"We find from this record that in all of this enormous volume of litigation, Judge English had controversies with but two lawyers, Thomas M. Webb and Charles A. Karch, and we submit that the conduct of these two attorneys was open to criticism and was of such a nature as to be subject of inquriy from the bench.

"Instead of establishing a course of tyrannical conduct, we submit that a fair mind can draw from this evidence only the conclusion that English was apt in the discharge of business and had fewer difficulties with lawyers than the average Judge, State or Federal.

Efficiency Proved, They Say.

"In this record, no lawyer other than the two mentioned, and Wayne Ely, a nonresident of the district, have complained of his conduct; and yet, we are asked in the face of this substantive proof establishing a remarkable record of efficiency, to draw the conclusion that Judge English was tyrannical, oppressive and corrupt."

Regarding the bankruptcy charge, the minority stated that it was a physical and mental impossibility for Judge English to superintend each bankruptcy case. The report stated that there was no evidence in the record that any persons interested in a bankruptcy case had complained of the treatment received from Judge English or Referee Thomas.

The report ended by stating that when given a statement of facts, two inferences were possible, the one favorable to the accused should be accepted.

In addition to the foregoing minority report, Representative Yates (Rep.) of Illinois has filed a statement of his own, dissenting from the majority view and stating the opinion that the acts imputed to Judge English are not of sufficient gravity to warrant impeachment.

Debate to Start Tuesday.

Debate on the question of whether Judge English shall be impeached is scheduled to open on the floor of the House of Representatives at noon Tuesday.

The arguments against impeachment, it is indicated, will be based chiefly on two grounds: First, that none of the specified offenses warrants his removal from office, and second, that the form in which the articles of impeachment are drawn is unfair to Judge English.

As stated in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, the articles, which are largely the individual handiwork of Representative George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, the 76-year-old chairman of the Judiciary Committee, were presented in a novel form. In previous impeachment cases a single overt act has formed the basis of each article. In the present case, each article contains a number of specifications, alleging various acts, the sum of which make up the general charge alleged in the article.

In view of the fact that the Senate, in trying an impeachment case, votes on each article separately, it will be seen that the form of the present articles greatly multiplies the gravity of each charge and the volume of testimony which can be introduced to support it, and hence multiplies the likelihood of a vote of conviction. Conviction on one article is sufficient for removal.

"Brilliant" Innovation.

Other members of the Judiciary Committee yesterday pronounced this a "brilliant innovation," for which they gave the credit to Graham.

Replying to the minority charge that the form of the articles laid undue hardships on the defense, they said that nowhere did the Constitution declare that a Judge could be removed for a single act constituting misbehavior but could be removed for a number of acts, the total of which constituted misbehavior.

There was a difference of opinion in the Judiciary Committee as to what constitutes "high crimes and misdemeanors," a few of the members holding that the term meant crime as defined by the criminal statutes.

No limit has thus far been placed upon the debate which will begin Tuesday, but it probably will be limited to three or four days, and the House will then vote.

Majority Leader Tilson said yesterday that he had conferred at length with Majority Leader Curtis of the Senate and with other Senators and they agreed that the Senate should sit in special session to try the case after the House has adjourned, which probably will be about May 1.

TELLS OF DELIVERING TORRES TO MEXICANS

American Denies He Got Back Land for Surrendering General Later Executed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Testifying before the Senate Immigration Committee today, W. M. Hanson, immigration director at San Antonio, Tex., said he took Gen. Manuel Torres handcuffed from the San Antonio jail in an automobile several weeks ago and ordered him across the Mexican border on the international bridge where he was seized by Mexican troops, driven off and later executed.

The committee is investigating immigration conditions on the Mexican border under a resolution of Senator King (Dem.) of Utah.

Hanson declared he had been assured in telegrams from President Calles and the Mexican Secretary of State that Torres would not be shot when he was delivered. King asked the witness if he had not had his 3000 acres of land in Mexico seized by the Mexican Government and if this had not been returned to him after he had delivered Torres to the border.

Denies Land Was Returned.

Hanson heatedly denied this and declared his land had not yet been returned.

"You held conferences with secret spies of Calles before you drove Torres to his death?" asked King.

"I did not," was the reply.

"How did the Mexicans know when you would deliver Torres to the border?" asked Senator Reed (Rep.) of Pennsylvania.

"I told them," the witness said. "I notified the consul as we always do when we deport Mexicans."

Asked About Deportation.

King charges Torres was deported before the expiration of the 60 days which the Department of Labor had granted him in this country and that Hanson had refused to follow the order of the department.

Hanson declared the order had given him discretionary authority and that after he had made further representations to the department, Torres was ordered deported. He declared Torres was a bandit and had been blowing up trains in Mexico.

Senator Reed put into the record a letter Secretary Kellogg had written the Department of Labor cautioning the department to give every "possible consideration," to Mexican deportees wishing to go to some other country, pointing out that Torres was shot after being deported from the United States.

RESOLUTION OFFERED FOR U. S. REFERENDUM ON DRY LAW

Edge Says Unless Prohibitionists Fear Public Opinion They Will Indorse Plan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Senator Edge (Rep.) of New Jersey, prepared a resolution today under which a national referendum on modification of the prohibition act would be held. There is no constitutional or statutory provision under which such a refernendum could be held.

"If, as the drys claim," he said, they have no fear that public opinion has reversed itself, then it would seem they should unhesitatingly indorse this plan for a legal national showdown.

"The purpose of this resolution is to provide a method for securing a national referendum on modification of the Volstead act within Constitutional limits. The overwhelming verdict for modification as presented by newspaper polls has been frequently challenged by spokesmen for the drys.

"While I disagree with their contention, still, it has appealed to me that an opportunity for a legal referendum vote should be provided."

FOUND GUILTY OF USING MONEY DUE MOTHER-IN-LAW

Wright City, Mo., Doctor Gets Two Years for Embezzling Interest on Bonds.

HANDLED ESTATE FROM 1908 TO 1925

Mrs. Louisa Knippenberg of St. Charles Said Dr. E. A. Fluesmeier Failed to Turn Over $5600.

A sealed verdict of two years in the penitentiary was returned today in Circuit Judge Landwehr's court against Dr. Elihu A. Fluesmeier of Wright City, Mo., tried by jury yesterday for the embezzlement of $15,000 in bonds and $5600 interest during 17 years he was agent for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Louisa Knippenberg, of St. Charles.

The charges dealt with 15 bonds of the St. Joseph Bay Co., which, it was charged, Dr. Fluesmeier transferred to his own name. Testifying for himself, he declared he received the bonds from his brother, Bruce, in payment for a personal debt. He was released on bond today, after his attorney announced a new trial would be sought.

Dr. Fluesmeier was executor of the $70,000 estate of Herman Knippenberg, who died in 1908, and handled the widow's property until January, 1925, when he was ousted and required to make an accounting.

Bank employes testified that Dr. Fluesmeier received interest on the bonds and deposited it to his personal account in a Wright City bank over a period of years. The bonds themselves were ruled out of the case by Judge Landwehr, inasmuch as they were taken up by the St. Louis Union Trust Co. in 1916 and exchanged for certificates. The case went to the jury on the question of embezzlement of interest.

Dr. Fluesmeier's wife is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Knippenberg. Until 1914 the doctor was joint executor of the estate with Henry Knippenberg, a son, who was cashier of the Central Bank in St. Charles. In 1914 Dr. Fluesmeier was named guardian for Knippenberg, and continued in sole control of the property for 11 years.

Recognized creditors already have been paid 50 per cent and the receiver asks permission to pay another 50 per cent, amounting to $34,000. The receiver is contesting $37,600 in claims, including $5400 asked for by Edward Werner, former vice president; $2200 by Ben Eisenberg, salesman, and $29,205 by Levy-Kranzberg Co., which was merged with another firm to form the Brentworth.

McGowan was appointed receiver of the Brentworth company following the collapse of the Ferguson-McKinney company, with which the Brentworth was connected. He has asked to be relieved as receiver as soon as possible.

TACNA DISPUTANTS ACCEPT U. S. AID

Chile and Peru Have Agreed to Move for Settlement, Kellogg Announces.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Secretary Kellogg announced today that the Governments of Peru and Chile had accepted the good offices of the United States for the settlement of the Tacna-Arica controversy.

Arrangements for the procedure of mediation, the secretary said, are now going forward in correspondence between Washington and Santiago and Lima.

Definite announcement was made at the White House today that the United States, in tendering its good offices, will not abandon the plebiscite as a means for composing the difficulties between the two Governments.

How Diplomats Would Move.

The normal method in diplomatic mediation would be for each of the disputant Governments to name either its diplomatic representative in Washington or some other person to meet with Secretary Kellogg for a round table discussion of all aspects of the dispute.

It would then be the task of the secretary to offer such assistance as he could toward an agreement between the two countries regarding th sovereignty of the two provinces.

When an agreement had been reached, it would be subject to formal ratification at Lima and Santiago.

No Hint of Formula.

There is nothing definite to indicate whether Washington put forward, in offering its good offices, a formula for settlement of the dispute. Recent conferences between Secretary Kellogg, former Secretary Hughes and Gen. Pershing, however, would indicate that some scheme definitely to end the long quarrel was under consideration.

Gen. Pershing served for several months in South America as head of the plebiscite commission, and is understood to have returned to the United States in grave doubt whether a fair plebiscite could be held. His successor at Arica, Major-General Lassiter, declared only yesterday that although preparations for the election were proceeding, the prerequisites for a satisfactory decision at the polls had not been fulfilled.

Move to Delay Tacna-Arica Plebiscite Meets Defeat.

ARICA, Chile, March 26.—The Tacna-Arica plebiscite commission at a meeting has defeated all measures advocating postponement of the registration for the plebiscite to decide the sovereignty of the territory, as between Chile and Peru.

The commission also defeated a motion introduced by Manuel Frayre y Santander of the Peruvian delegation, demanding neutralization of the territory.

The registration therefore, it is understood, is due to begin Saturday, although Maj. Gen. Lassiter, the American chairman, declared: "By no means have all the prerequisite to a fair plebiscite been complied with."

The Peruvian indefinit postponement measure was defeated on hopes that appropriate safeguards for the plebiscite will be provided.

The neutralization of the territory by the substitution of neutrals for all the Chilean forces and authorities in the zone, was denied on the grounds that the arbitrator, President Coolidge, had already decided the question in his note of May 9, 1925.

DIVORCES MAN WHO ELOPED WITH TYPIST

Mrs. Myrtle McGinnis Obtains Decree — Husband Was Lieutenant in 138th.

Mrs. Myrtle Mae McGinnis yesterday obtained a divorce from Elzie Virgil McGinnis, who was a First Lieutenant in the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry overseas and who eloped in 1919 with a stenographer, for which he faced Mann act charges. His wife at that time insisted his actions were due to mental derangement caused by his war experience.

McGinnis, who is now 39 years old, was tried under the Mann Act in San Francisco in March, 1920. The young woman who had accompanied him there testified she was responsible for going with him and the jury disagreed. Later the charge was dismissed. Returning here with his wife, McGinnis was placed in a private sanitarium at Glendale, where he remained for some time.

Adjudged Sound on Monday.

A jury in Probate Court adjudged him to be of unsound mind, June 15, 1920, after physicians said he suffered from moroseness and hallucinations, apparently due to shell shock. Physicians had stated in his trial that he had more than usual intellectual ability before the war, but came back from France not immoral but unmoral.

Last Monday, it was learned today, McGinnis was adjudged of sound mind again by Probate Judge Holtcamp, on petition of Dr. R. C. Fagley of the Veteran's Bureau. Dr. Fagley and two other physicians stated that he was now "correctly oriented for time, place and person," and "suffering from no disturbance of attention or comprehension."

Mrs. McGinnis had been her husband's guardian during the six years he was held to be of unsound mind. She was present when the guardianship was ended last Monday but was not called to testify. Insanity is not a ground for divorce, but when an insane person is sued for divorce he must have a guardian to contest the suit.

The divorce suit was filed last Wednesday, charging McGinnis with general indignities, failure to provide a home and having a nagging, jealous and quarrelsome disposition. McGinnis filed a general denial, but did not enter his appearance and the decree was granted by default.

Declares She Always Worked.

Mrs. McGinnis related to Judge Pearcy that they were married at St. Charles, Sept. 1, 1906, and had not lived as husband and wife for the last five years. McGinnis quarreled with her constantly during their married life, she said, and once, before their separation, caused her to lose a position by telephoning her place of employment to quarrel. She worked throughout their married life, she went on, and he never contributed to their household expenses. Mostly they resided with her parents, but sometimes at a rooming house, where she paid the rent.

Often, she said, McGinnis promised to reform, but he associated constantly with other women. McGinnis has been working as a clerk since July and, his wife stated, has been earning $145 a month. He resides with his parents at 3904 West Florissant avenue. Mrs. McGinnis, who was granted restoration of her maiden name, Davis, resides with her parents, whose address she did not give.

$425 Gross Alimony.

In Probate Court Monday it was stated McGinnis received $70 a month veteran's compensation from the Government and has about $2000 accumulated from his compensation. In Court of Domestic Relations his wife was granted $425 gross alimony, payable $10 a month.

McGinnis, who was with the Headquarters company of the 138th in the A. E. F., was wounded three times in the thighs and gassed, in storming a German machine gun nest in the Argonne. He had been secretary to an M.-K.-T. Railway official. Returning to his job in January, 1919, he met the stenographer with whom he eloped seven months later.

PAINTERS DEMAND $55 FOR A FIVE-DAY WEEK

Proposal for Increase of 7½ cents an Hour Over Scale of $1.30 to Be Resisted by Employers.

A wage increase of 60 cents per day and a five-day work week are the principal demands made by the 2500 union painters in St. Louis in a notice to their employers today.

The wage demand, based on an 8-hour day, represents an increase of 7½ cents over the present scale of $1.30 per hour for 5½ days and would bring a union painter's daily pay to $11, or $55 per five-day week.

The demands are incorporated in a questionnaire sent to all proprietors of union shops. The employers are asked if they favor the five-day week the year round, or just during the slack period, approximately Nov. 1 to March 1. An attached memorandum deals with the wage demand, stating "many of our members held out for $12 per day, but the $11 figure was finally arrived at as fair to all concerned." It is suggested that the proposed changes be discussed by joint committees representing employers and the union in time for a decision May 1.

Possibilities of the painters gaining either point are not bright, employers say. The Master House Painters' and Decorators' Association is affiliated with the Associated Building Interests of St. Louis, an organization of contractors that has successfully resisted increased wage demands here. Josh Lowis Jr., a member of the House Painters' Association, is president of the Associated Building Interests and has been active in opposing wage demands generally.

The present wage scale of $1.30 per hour was arrived at in 1924 after a demand for $1.50 per hour for five 8-hour days was successfully resisted by employers. The move for decreased working time has been characterized by employers as an effort to create an artificial increase in the demand for labor. With the five-day, 40-hour week, in force more painters would have to be employed to get the same amount of work done within a given time. Employers also point to the fact that union painters in St. Louis receive a higher scale than painters in other American cities with three exceptions.

Demands by members of the Asbestos Workers' Union, an organization of about 200 men, for an increase of 17½ cents per hour over the present scale of $1.25, were also made known today. This demand will also be resisted, employers have indicated.

MAYOR BACK IN HIS OFFICE AFTER ABSENCE OF FIVE DAYS

Miller Silent on Movement to Recall Him and His Decision in the Wall Case.

Mayor Miller returned to his office today, after five days' absence caused by his attendance on the funeral of Col. Charles S. Riche. The Mayor went to Houston, Tex., Saturday night, after being notified of Col. Riche's death, and accompanied the body to Philadelphia, where the funeral was held Wednesday. Col. Riche was an army engineer of note. His son, Swift Riche, assistant manager of the St. Louis Coliseum, also made the journey to Houston and to Philadelphia.

The Mayor departed without having announced his verdict in the case of Director of Public Utilities Wall, whom he tried the first part of last week on charges of inefficiency, neglect of duty, misconduct in office and insubordination. The charges were filed by the Mayor for the purpose of effecting Wall's removal from office, and the Mayor was Judge, star witness and jury in the trial.

On the day after the Mayor's departure, a movement to recall the Mayor was launched at a meeting in Musicians' Hall. An organization was formed, which has established downtown headquarters and is about to begin circulating petitions.

Mayor Miller said this morning, through his secretary, that he had no announcement to make on the Wall case, no comment on the recall movement, and nothing else to communicate on any subject.

COUNTY LEADER CONTROL SOLD

F. L. Kerth Disposes of His Stock in Newspaper.

Controlling interest of the St. Louis County Leader at Clayton has been sold by Fred L. Kerth, treasurer and largest stockholder, to George E. Bolte, newspaper publisher at Newton, Ia. Bolte said its present independent policies in county affairs would be maintained. Kerth has recently organized the Fred L. Kerth Realty Co. and will devote himself to real estate.

The newspaper was established in February, 1923, by William M. Boaz of Kirkwood, president of the publishing company, who retains his interest, and others, to carry on the political ideas of the Clean Election League, which defeated the Republican machine in 1922.

SHARP RISE IN WHEAT ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Wheat prices shot up sharply today on good buying by locals and by commission houses. Buying was based on strength in Liverpool which was up 2⅛c to 2¾c on better continental demand for Argentine and Australian cargoes. Selling against indemnities checked the rise. Prices opened 1½c to 2⅝c higher. After the first hour new May was $1.58⅜, old $1.57¼, July $1.37⅞, September $1.33⅜.

MUST TURN OVER $1500 TO BANKRUPT FIRM

H. V. Gibstine, Officer of Millinery Company Had Reported Money Stolen From Home.

Herman V. Gibstine, treasurer of the bankrupt American Millinery Co., today was ordered by Federal Judge Davis to turn over $1500 to replace a sum which he had reported was stolen from a "bedspring bank" at his home at 6683 Kingsbury place on Feb. 13.

The $1500 was realized on the sale by Gibstine of 166½ dozen hats. When he failed to turn the money over to the bankrupt estate, John C. Dyott, receiver of the company applied for an order to make him do so and Judge Davis took the application under advisement yesterday after a hearing.

If Gibstine fails to comply with the order he is liable to punishment for contempt of court which could take the form of imprisonment in the St. Charles County jail until he obeys the Court's instruction. Under the order the money must be turned over by next Wednesday.

Testimony of Receiver.

In the hearing yesterday Receiver Dyott testified that after taking over his position he sent a demand to the officers of the company for the firm's moneys. On Feb. 17, he said, Gibstine turned over $370 to him but said nothing of the $1500 nor of the alleged robbery which Gibstine later reported as having been committed on Feb. 13.

"Later I learned of the $1500 sale," Receiver Dyott said, "and since Gibstine had said nothing of it I applied for an order directing him to turn it over. The first time I learned of the robbery he now pleads, was last Wednesday when he filed his answer to my application."

Gibstine testified he had sold the hats to protect the interests of creditors and had taken the money home to his wife, who was president of the millinery firm.

Story of the Robbery.

"She put the money in the bed springs for safe keeping," Gibstine said. "That was on Jan. 29. From time to time I made collections and added to the account or took money from it to pay bills and expenses."

He testified he had taken the money home because Harry Ziebol, secretary of the firm, had "threatened" him and he was afraid Ziebol might get possession of the funds.

Gibstine opened a bank account at the Liberty Central Trust Co. in which records showed he had deposited a total of $1487 between Jan. 29 and Feb. 17, when he turned over the $370 to Dyott. At that time a balance of less than $10 remained.

The treasurer was somewhat indefinite about his disposition of these funds. He had kept track of them on a slip of paper, he said, and the slip had been stolen when burglars got into his apartment and walked off with the money in the bedspring.

Remembered Some Payments.

He did recall, however, that he paid himself a salary of $50 a week for three weeks, paid "Herbie," his assistant, $20 a week and a bonus of something more than $100, and spent other money for expenses.

He explained that he believed these expenditures justified because he was conserving the assets of his company for creditors.

Several of his neighbors told of being called to his apartment after he reported the robbery and being shown marks on the door, made, supposedly, by a burglar's jimmy. Chief of Police Ward and Patrolman Price of University City testified, however, that they saw no marks on the door when they were called at the time of the robbery, although the marks are on the door now.

WEDS MAN SHE MET ON WEST INDIAN CRUISE

MRS. DONALD SHYLO McCORD.

MISS ELINOR MAXWELL, ST. LOUIS WRITER, WEDS

Telephones Parents She Is Bride of Widower She Met on Cruise.

Miss Elinor Maxwell, writer of verse and magazine stories, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Maxwell of 5922 Clemens avenue, telephoned her family from New York, last night, apprising them that earlier in the day she had been married to Donald Shylo McCord of Great Neck, L. I., whom she met on a recent cruise to the West Indies.

The ceremony was performed at Newark, N. J., by the Rev. Joseph Hunter, pastor of a Presbyterian church there and a relative of the family. Besides informing her mother and relatives here, Miss Maxwell telephoned her father, vice president of the Wabash Railroad, in charge of operation, who is in Chicago.

Miss Maxwell and her fiance reached New York Monday at the end of the cruise.

The bridegroom is about 40, a widower, having a young son. He is president of the Standard Motor Co. of New York. His bride is about 30. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended Washington University. Twice she has served as maid of honor at Veiled Prophet balls.

Miss Maxwell's advent into the literary field consisted of the composition of random bits of verse and short sketches, but in August, 1924, a book of verse, "Little Beggar, and Other Poems," was published.

WHAT COLLEGIANS SAY IS ENOUGH TO WED ON

St. Louis U. Questionnaire Fixes $40 a Week and $1276 as Average.

A young man may marry safely, as far as financial considerations are concerned, if he has a bank account of $1276 and a weekly income of $40. That is the average conclusion reached by senior students of St. Louis University in a poll on matrimony conducted by the Varsity Breeze, a student newspaper.

While some students refused to consider the financial aspect of marriage, preferring to dwell on such points as compatibility, love and "the harmonic phase," many others declared they had determined the amount requisite for successful financial equipment, by doubling or tripling the resources of their own parents when they approached the altar.

The most optimistic reply was given by a dental school student, who wrote: "To expect a man to have $2000 at marriage is admirable, but to say that $2000 is an absolute prerequisite for successful marriage is something else. A sum smaller than $100 a month would be sufficient."

Favors Early Marriage.

A medical student, who declared a man should marry before he is 30, thinks the aspiring benedict should not embark upon a matrimonial venture until he has saved $3000 and has a good income. Another, who advocated marriage before the age of 25, declared $100 a month and a bank account of $1000 enough.

"After the age of 30 it is more difficult to exercise an option on the gentler sex," he wrote, in support of his plea for youthful marriages.

Another dental student placed the monetary prerequisite at a salary of from $150 to $200 a month and a bank account ranging from $2000 to $2500.

An art student set the minimum income at $2500 a year and as to bank account noted "no more capital than is necessary to pay the expenses of the wedding trip."

A young woman student of one of the corporate colleges volunteered the observation, "If I really loved a man I would marry him if he didn't have a cent, but I would be extremely careful not to fall in love with a man who wasn't worth at least $50,000."

"Harmonic Angle."

Another woman student placed the requirement at $200 a month income and $2000 bank account, but added that she "would be inclined to stress the harmonic angle of the question more than the financial."

Other answers ranged in their figures from nothing to $10,000 in the bank and from $100 to $500 a month income.

"Many laboring men today raise a family on $100 a month," one student observed. "If the college graduate cannot exist for several years with an added $1000 in bank to start, he had better go back to school and learn the practical things of life."

Murder Sentence of 14 Years.

Joseph Konick of Madison was sentenced ot 14 years in the penitentiary in Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville yesterday on a charge of second degree murder. Konick, who was a bartender in a Madison saloon, admitted killing George Hale, a customer, two weeks ago. He said he shot in self defense.

HAWES ANSWERS CRITICS OF CASE AGAINST ENGLISH

THINKS MISCONDUCT ENOUGH FOR OUSTER

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Representative Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis, who inaugurated the congressional investigation of Federal Judge George W. English's conduct, basing his action on the inquiry which had been initiated by the Post-Dispatch 14 months ago, yesterday made a speech in the House in which he cited numerous precedents to show that the term "high crimes and misdemeanors," as used in impeachments, simply meant misbehavior of any sort that would bring the court into disrepute and interfere with the administration of justice, and did not necessarily mean an indictable offense.

The term, he said, was originally borrowed from English law and he quoted Lord Coke as declaring that: "It is so large and capacious that I can place no limit upon it, either in time or space." Lord Brougham, at the trial of Queen Caroline, said: "In short, wherever mischief is done, and no remedy could otherwise be obtained, it is competent for Parliament to impeach."

Precedents in U. S. Cases.

The precedents in American impeachment cases, Hawes continued, supported the point even more emphatically, for in the nine impeachments which have occurred, only two were based on indictable offenses.

He recited some of them as follows:

"Judge Samuel Chase was impeached for interfering with counsel who attempted to argue a point of law before a jury, and for refusing to excuse a juror, for making an improper award legally, for rushing a case to trial. Not one of the charges involved an indictable offense.

"Judge Pickering was impeached for intoxication and profanity while on the bench, for making an erroneous release of a vessel without a certificate from the collector of a port and for refusing an appeal. These charges did not involve an indictable offense.

"Judge Peck was impeached for wrongfully citing an attorney for contempt over certain newspaper publications in which the attorney pointed out an error of the court at law. There was no charge of an indictable offense.

"President Andrew Johnson was impeached for his part in an alleged conspiracy to remove a Secretary of War, and by this act to secure control of certain properties of the United States and thus disburse certain monies already appropriated, and for usurping the right to give certain orders to certain military officers, and for an alleged villification of Congress. There was no charge of an indictable offense.

"Judge Swayne was accused of riding in a car in the possession of a receiver of his appointment, of charging an excessive amount in the way of traveling expenses and for nonresidence of the district in which he lived. It was not agreed that any of the charges constituted an indictable offense.

Conviction of Archbald.

"Judge Archbald was convicted by the Senate, as were Judges Pickering and Humphreys, on nonindictable offenses."

"In fact, this point was made one of the chief issues in the Archbald case, which was the most recent impeachment trial in the United States. It was not alleged that Judge Archbald had committed a criminal offense. In that case Representative (now Senator) Norris, one of the prosecution managers, said: 'If we follow the Constitution we must hold that lack of good behavior is synonymous with the term "misdemeanor" in all those cases where the offense is of less magnitude than an indictable one.'

"Representative Edwin Webb, another of the managers, said: 'If judges hold their offices during good behavior, as provided by the Constitution, it follows that they must be removed upon bad behavior, and impeachment is the only remedy.' "

Hawes called attention to the interesting fact that in one case where the impeachment of a Federal Judge was recommended, the charges were based upon his close personal association with an assignee in bankruptcy who was shown to have corruptly administered estates. The Judge resigned. There was a strong resemblance between the circumstances in his case and the relationship between Judge English and his referee in bankruptcy, Charles B. Thomas.

PROPOSAL TO LET FIRE CHIEF BUY APPARATUS

Board of Estimate Withholds Decision on Plan Pending Opinion on Legality.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment today withheld concurrence in a proposal of the Public Safety Committee of the Board of Aldermen, that the Fire Chief should have power to select Fire Department apparatus, subject only to the approval of the Director of Public Safety. The Board will seek the City Counselor's opinion as to the legality of the proposal.

The question was raised, in the Board of Estimate, whether the proposal does not violate the charter, which provides that the Board of Standardization shall prepare specifications for bids on city equipment, and that the Board of Standardization may reject any or all bids.

In voting yesterday to submit this proposal, the Safety Committee of the Aldermen decided that, if the plan were not acccepted, no ordinance would be passed at this time for the purchase of motor pumpers. The amount available for this purpose from the bond issue funds is $186,000, and it has been proposed to buy from 14 to 18 pumpers. Unless the Fire Chief and Director of Public Safety can select the apparatus they desire, the Aldermen decided that the purchase should wait indefinitely.

Director Brod and Fire Chief Alt, who appeared before the committee, favor purchase of the pumpers from the Ahrens-Fox Co. of Cincinnati. The bill, as first recommended, provided for purchase of the equipment from that company, but the name of the company was stricken out by the Board of Estimate. Brod and Alt said they did not wish to buy any more of the American La France pumpers, five of which were purchased recently, three having been out of service part of the time since, because of accidents. The American La France pumpers were bought on the order of Mayor Miller, and over the protest of Comptroller Nolte, the bid for this apparatus having been lower than that of the Ahrens-Fox Co., though it was not the lowest received.

GEORGE F. RANDOLPH, FORMER B. & O. OFFICIAL, DIES AT 69

Entered Railroad Service in 1873 as Clerk; Retired From Active Duty in 1916.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 26.—George F. Randolph, former vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, died at his home here, following a heart attack. Mr. Randolph was 69 years of age. He was born in Norwalk, O., and attended Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H.

Mr. Randolph entered railroad service in 1873, as a clerk at Sandusky, O., and was associated in various capacities with a number of Western and New England railroads during the following 20 years.

In 1896 he became general traffic manager of the Southwestern lines of the Baltimore & Ohio. In 1899 he was elected president of the Staten Island Railway, and vice president of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway, acting also during this time for the Baltimore & Ohio.

Mr. Randolph was chosen first vice president of the Baltimore & Ohio in 1904, and of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern in 1910, serving also as a director of those roads. He retired in 1916, and his last activities were as traffic assistant to the regional director of the Eastern District of the United States Railroad Administration during the first half of 1918.

His widow, Mrs. Annie R. Randolph, a son, Francis F. Randolph of New York City, and a daughter, Mrs. James B. Lalor of Baltimore, survive.

R. W. Cummins Has Not Stated Whether He Will Pay Fines Assessed Against Him.

By the Associated Press.

BEGGS WILL ACCEPTED; DOMICILE UNDECIDED

Milwaukee Probate Court Acts After Return of $15,000,000 in Securities to Wisconsin.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, March 26.—The question whether John I. Beggs, traction and utility multimillionaire, was a resident of Wisconsin or of Florida, is left undetermined, in a partial settlement which has been reached in the contest between the heirs and executors, on one side, and State and local officials here, on the other.

The will of Beggs, who died Oct. 17 last, was admitted to probate in the Milwaukee County Probate Court here yesterday afternoon, following announcement by attorneys for the heirs that the $15,000,000 of securities, taken from Beggs' safe deposit box in the First Wisconsin National Bank by Richard McCulloch of St. Louis, Beggs' son-in-law, had been returned to this State.

Return of these securities has been demanded by the Wisconsin authorities, who are endeavoring to hold the estate liable for State income and inheritance taxes. The matter has been under debate for more than three months. McCulloch was in court when the announcement of the return was made. The court, in admitting the will to probate, stated that the action was taken without determination of domicile.

Plans Paris-New York Flight.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 26.—Capt. Rene Fonck, France's premier fighting aviator of the World War, has announced plans for an attempt to make a nonstop flight between Paris and New York, but said he probably would not be ready for the adventure before next year. It is possible an American aviator may accompany him as an aid. "I am going to New York at the end of April," he told the Associated Press, "to study the possibilities and expect to remain in the United States two or three months. After that I shall take up the study of the problem on this side."

Here's A Real Prescription for the Torturing Pains of Neuritis
When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to some good druggist and get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form, for the liquid form is a special preparation for Rheumatism only.
Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, those persistent nerve-racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights. A few more doses and the pains have left you forever.
While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in all forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.
You needn't be afraid of its containing dope of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can only at the best give temporary relief.
Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington Av. and Grand and Olive Sts., and Johnson Bros. Drug Co. can supply you.

BLACKWELL, Ok., March 26.—J. H. Ketchum of La Harpe, Ill., and Mrs. Dave Davidson of Ponca City, and her six months' old son were killed when an automobile, in which they were riding, was struck by a Santa Fe passenger train near here last night. Mrs. Ketchum and a second son of Mrs. Davidson were injured.

TENDER FEET

TENDER FEET. Aching burning, swollen, shoe-chafed feet. The minute you put your feet into a "Tiz" bath you feel pain being drawn out and comfort just soaking in. "Tiz" draws out the poisons and acids that cause foot misery. It is almost magical.

"Tiz" takes all the soreness out of corns and callouses. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store. End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet, comfortable.

PLAN WOULD PREVENT DELAY IN PAYING CITY EMPLOYES

Proposed Appropriation From Revenue of New Fiscal Year, However, Presents Problem.

A legal problem will be presented by the proposal of Alderman Baur, that an appropriation of $1,115,000 from the revenue of the fiscal year 1926-27 be made, before the close of the present fiscal year (1925-26) to prevent delay in paying the salaries of city employes.

The last payroll of the present fiscal year will be made up Wednesday. The scal year ends April 8. The new session of the Board of Aldermen will begin April 20. In past years the time taken for discussion and passage of the budget bill has frequently caused the pay of city employes to fall several weeks in arrears. The result is to keep retailers waiting for money which the city employes owe them, and to drive some of the employes to money lenders.

In the Comptroller's office it was said today that, under the Charter, all salary and general expense funds remaining unexpended at the close of the fiscal year revert to the City Treasury, and would have to be reappropriated before they could be available for payroll purposes.

Alderman Baur planned to present his proposal in the form of a bill at today's meeting of the board. Such a proposal, when taken up in committee, probably will be referred to the Comptroller and the City Counselor.

PLAN TO PAY U. S. CITIZENS' GERMAN CLAIMS PREPARED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The administration's proposal to pay off immediately the claims against Germany of American citizens and to liquidate the holdings of the Alien Property Custodian, through the aid of the German Reparations payments is ready for submission to Congress.

Under Secretary Winston of the Treasury, author of the scheme, and Representative Mills (Rep.) of New York, who will introduce the legisation, have virtually redrafted the original plan which provided for the issuance of bonds, guaranteed by the Government, and to be redeemed with reparations funds.

Despite the likelihood of an eary adjournment of Congress, Secretary Mellon is hopeful that this, as well as legislation now being drafted to facilitate prohibition enforcement, will be acted upon. The latter proposal, submitted by Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, has been ordered modified by Mellon and may not get to Congress until next week.

How Doctors Treat Colds and the Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsilitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger.

Men! Don't lose $15 on your clothes this Spring! You don't have to do it. Hundreds of men who always paid $37.50 and more for their Suits and Topcoats are now coming to Millards—because they are getting precisely the same value for $22.50 and they are saving at least $15. Why Pay More? You don't come into Millards to pay $22.50 and go out after paying $45. No, sir! You can't pay more than $22.50 at Millards. That's our only price, and when you pay $22.50 you save that extra $15 or more. Why pay more?

Figure it out for yourself. Every merchant must make a profit over and aboe all expense. If a store has a high rent, costly fixtures, expensive delivery service, losses on credit sales, and big office force, it is compelled to tack on these "selling expenses" to the cost of the clothes, and the customer must pay for them all, plus a profit on each one of them. THOSE EXPENSES ADD NOTHING TO THE STYLE OR VALUE, BUT THEY DO INCREASE YOUR COST. Millards have NONE of these expenses. We buy and sell for cash only. That's why we do NOT tack on an extra $15. That's why you SAVE AT LEAST $15 every time you buy a Suit or Topcoat at Millards.

It will pay you to go to Millards Saturday—because you KNOW you'll buy your Easter clothing at a fair and fixed price.

LOREE TO TELL OF KATY PLANS ON VISIT HERE

Official of Three Railroads Recently Merged Financially Expected in St. Louis Next Week.

TO CENTRALIZE CONTROL OF LINES

Tour of M-K-T System to Gulf Points Expected by Local Officers of Company.

L. F. Loree, chairman of the board of the Kansas City Southern Railroad, and director of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) lines, will be in St. Louis next week, probably Thursday, and is expected to announce, while here, his plans for financial consolidation of the three railroads.

Operating consolidation is not to take place at this time, railroad officials here believe, and the K. C. S., M.-K.-T. and Cotton Belt will retain their own organizations and their distinct offices, and will be competitors for business to the same extent as at present. However, they will use common terminal facilities at some points, chiefly in Texas, and will furnish each other new outlets for through traffic.

The Cotton Belt, which does not extend to the Gulf of Mexico, will have access to Galveston over the M.-K.-T. connection at Waco, and to Port Arthur through Texarkana. The "Katy" and K. C. S. will have access to eastern Arkansas points by the Cotton Belt. On through business from St. Louis and Kansas City to the Gulf, it is understood, competition will be maintained.

Loree's plan, so far as known here at this time, is for centralized banking control of the three roads. He will meet the directors of the M.-K.-T. on his arrival here, and will make a tour of inspection over the "Katy." Whether he will also inspect the Cotton Belt lines at this time is not known.

Associated Press dispatches from New York today and last night stated that Henry Ruhlender, chairman of the board of the M.-K.-T., would resign at the annual meeting April 9, and that Harry S. Black, head of the United States Realty and Improvement Co., probably would succeed him. Black is believed to represent the Loree interests.

The choice of C. N. Whitehead, now executive vice president of the M.-K.-T., as president of that road, to take office May 1, succeeding C. E. Schaff, retiring, was announced recently. So far as is known here, the new program will not change this arrangement, or otherwise affect the executive direction of the three railroads.

The financial consolidation of the three roads, two of them known as St. Louis lines and the third distinctly a Kansas City road, is regarded as a move to meet the competition of the enlarged Missouri Pacific system, which now embraces 14,254 miles, and the Frisco, which has been balked in attempts to acquire Texas lines, but is expanding toward the Southeast.

The Kansas City Southern extends due south from Kansas City to the Gulf at Port Arthur, running close to the Missouri-Kansas, Arkansas-Oklahoma and Texas-Louisiana boundaries. The Cotton Belt, which enters St. Louis over tracks leased from the Missouri Pacific, extends from Illmo, Mo., to Waco and Fort Worth. The "Katy" runs from St. Louis through Central and Western Missouri, and Eastern Oklahoma and Texas, to Galveston, Austin and San Antonio. The combined mileage of the three roads is 5825 miles, or 425 miles more than the Frisco lines.

Franc Forced Down to $.03445.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Heavy selling of French francs in today's foreign exchange market carried demand bills on Paris to 3.44½ cents, a new record for the year, within 3 points of the extreme low for all time of 3.42 cents established in March, 1924.

Condition of Texas Farmers.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Farmers throughout Texas are better prepared for planting than they have been at corresponding seasons in many years, in the opinion of George W. Orms, supervisor of extension work for the A. and M. College.

OWN-YOUR-OWN HOME PLAN MAKES HEADWAY IN SWEDEN

Two Famous Estates to Be Divided; Crown and Church Lands to Be Surveyed.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, March 26.—Two famous old Swedish estates are to be divided soon as part of the movement to provide small holdings for as many families as possible, a movement which has the active support of the Government. They are Lundholmen in Smaland and Hoek in Uppland.

The Riksdag already has established a loan fund of 18,000,000 kroner (about $4,800,000) to support the "Own Your Own Home" movement, while the Government has decided to make a general survey of all tillable land with a view to the establishment of further small holdings. Even the crown and church domains will be included in the survey.

Observers say that Sweden's new "Land Hunger" is due in part to the fact that the surplus population no longer finds an outlet in emigration to the United States.

BEN PHILIPSON RECEIVER FOR YARD-O-METER CORPORATION

President of Company Admits It Has Lost Money but Declares Prospects Are Bright.

Ben Philipson, an attorney, was appointed receiver for the Yard-O-Meter Corporation, 1224 Monroe street, yesterday by Circuit Judge Calhoun after a hearing. The receiver's bond is $10,000.

The receivership had been applied for by Dr. Charles W. Thierry, one of 500 stockholders, who asserted the company was insolvent and had lost money constantly in its efforts to market a fabric-measuring device. William Wentz, the president, opposed the receivership. He admitted the company had lost money, but asserted prospects had improved since he became president last January. Judge Calhoun was informed the corporation has tangible assets of $25,000 and liabilities of $80,000.

ATTORNEY SEEKS JUDGESHIP

A. Samuel Bender Announces Candidacy for G. O. P. Nomination.

A. Samuel Bender, attorney, with offices in the Wainwright Building, yesterday announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Circuit Judge in the August primary. Bender said his decision to run was prompted by a petition signed by 300 members of the bar.

There will be three judgeships made vacant in the fall by the expiration of the terms of Judges Killoren, Rosskopf and Miller. Bender is the first man to announce his candidacy. He is 33 years old, a graduate of Washington University Law School, and at present a member of the Republican City Central Committee.

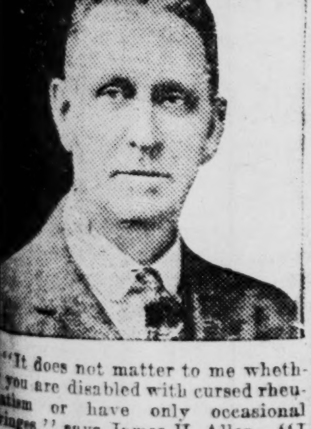
Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington nd Grand and Olive St.—Great Offer to hronic Rheumatic Sufferers.

oney Back if Allenrhu Fails to Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.



''It does not matter to me whether you are disabled with cursed rheu- tism or have only occasional inges,'' says James H. Allen. ''I ow that Allenrhu, my own discov- y, will stop the agony, do away the gnawing pains and reduce swollen joints.''

''I know it will dissolve the uric acid deposits that have become deeply imbedded in joints and muscles and quickly drive every trace of rheumatism from your body. I know this because I was crippled for years and many times was unable to work, and Allenrhu made a well, robust, healthy man of me.''

''I know because since I cured myself, hundreds have taken Allenrhu and speedily rid themselves of this agonizing disease.''

Allenrhu is no laggard; it starts right in at once; it gets into the blood, searches out the poisonous uric acid deposit and in two days starts to drive the concentrated impurities that cause rheumatism out of the body through the natural channels.

James H. Allen of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., the discoverer of Allenrhu, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases.

With this understanding he has instructed Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington Av. and Grand Olive St. and druggists everywhere to guarantee it in every instance.

ALIEN BILLS ASSAILED AT HOUSE HEARING

Former U. S. Attorney Says One Measure Would Create System of Intimidation.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Registration of aliens and extension of the present deportation laws, as provided in pending bills, were severely criticised before the House Immigration Committee.

A clash between Representative Johnston (Rep.) of Washington, and officials of the American Civil Liberties Union featured the meeting yesterday. Johnston charged that members of the union had misrepresented the purport of the bills.

Allen Olmstead, attorney, of Philadelphia, introduced the speakers.

Francis Fisher Kane of Philadelphia, former United States District Attorney, principal spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union, directed attention to the Aswell bill providing for alien registration. His objections were based on these grounds:

A system of espionage and intimidation, contrary to American traditions of liberty and justice, would be created. The alien population would be segregated and treated as quasi-criminal. The administration of such a system among an alien population of 7,000,000 is not feasible and would be enormously costly; the registration of citizens would inevitably follow the effort to enforce the registration of aliens.

Low Professor's Objections.

Prof. Ernst Freund of the University of Chicago Law School, and former president of the Immigrants' Protective League, criticised the proposed deportation bill and pointed out that to place the burden of proof of lawful entry on the alien was directly contrary to the traditions of British and American law, which presumes innocence until guilt is established.

Prof. Freund also condemned the proposal to remove the present statutory limitation of five years so that aliens could be deported no matter how long they had resided in the United States.

Dr. W. L. Darby, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, said:

"The item in the bill which sems to call for gravest anxiety is the power which is proposed shall be vested in individuals authorized by the Commissioner-General of Immigration to issue warrants of arrest and to conduct the deportations hearings. The safeguards provided appear wholly inadequate. The issues of the warrant of arrest may, so far as appears in the bill, be the local immigration inspector himself, who is to take the evidence and submit it to the Secretary of Labor, whose decision on the evidence solely as sumbitted will decide the fate of the individual concerned.

Chance for Blackmail.

"I submit that this provision of the law opens the door to blackmail and subjects the inspector himself to temptations. The fate of a man should not be intrusted to single individual's judgment, however honest and sincere he may be.

"I desire to raise also the question whether it is not unreasonable and extreme to provide that an alien shall be deported if 'convicted of any ofnese for which he is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of one year or more.'

"The immigration act of 1917 provides for such deportation in case of 'a crime involving moral turpitude.' The new proposel might easily result in the deportation of an alien for a relatively slight offense."

Auto Stolen in Garage Holdup.

Lawrence Williams of 4522 Newberry terrace, was robbed of his Reo coupe by two men, who held him up at the door of the garage behind his home at 9:30 p. m. yesterday.

Rejoices Daughter Can Resume Studies

"Everything my little 12-year-old girl ate distressed her; even a glass of water would cause her to belch gas and she was unable to go to school for nearly a year. I bought her a bottle of MAYR'S, and since taking it she is eating us out of house and home and is attending school again." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Walgreen Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.

IMPERSONATED DEAD MAN; TO BE DEPORTED

Chinese Had Resorted to Deception in Trying to Bring Family to U. S.

Charles Gow, Chinese proprietor of a laundry at Springfield, Mo., was ordered deported by Commissioner Atkins today after Immigration Bureau officials had introduced evidence at a hearing to show that, in his effort to bring his family to this country, he had taken the name of a Chinese who has been dead since 1918.

To secure the proper passport to bring his family here it was necessary for Gow to establish his identity. He told Immigration Inspector Nash in St. Louis that his name was Chung Fook, born in Pacific Grove, Cal., March 24, 1887, but that he had lost his certificate of residence. The Inspector investigated and related the results at the hearing, whereupon Commissioner Atkins ordered Gow deported for not having a certificate of residence.

The Inspector's investigation resulted a week ago in the arrest of Gow at Springfield on a charge of impersonating another Chinese, in violation of the Chinese Exclusion Act, a felony punishable by a 2-year prison sentence. He told the Commissioner he had affidavits from an undertaker in Monterey, Cal., to show that Chung Fook died there in 1918. Further, he said, Fook's brother had told him that Gow offered to pay him if he would permit him to impersonate Fook, the deceased.

Gow's counsel, Charles Lich, offered no evidence at the hearing and said he would appeal the ruling. Following his arrest a week ago Gow was at liberty under $3000 bond.

'BIG TIM' MURPHY, CHICAGO LABOR LEADER, OUT OF PRISON

By the Associated Press.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., March 26.—"Big Tim" Murphy, political and labor leader of Chicago, was released from the Federal penitentiary here today, upon expiration of a four years' sentence for complicity in the $380,000 Dearborn street mail robbery, April 6, 1921.

Murphy was met at the prison gates by his wife and a party of friends. They departed immediately in automobiles, presumably for Kansas City, as that had been his plan. His sentence, lightened 336 days because of good behavior, was up at midnight, but prison regulations required that he remain until after the morning "count."

Prison officials said that he had obeyed all prison regulations, in spite of his assertion that he would "unionize the prison." After several months he was made an outside trusty.

He was employed as a steam fitter's helper in the prison power plant, where his experience with gas house workers came into play. He is honorary president of the Chicago Gas House Workers' Union.

Vincenzo Cosmano, convicted with Murphy for complicity in the Dearborn robbery, was released about one hour after the departure of his former chief. Cosmano was held until immigration officials approved his bond, which will allow him to remain in this country 60 days before he is deported to Italy.

SEEK EMBEZZLER IN CANADA

Mounted Police Asked to Watch for Missing Chicago Teller.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26. — Royal Northwest Mounted Police have been set on the trail of Joseph Morrison, paying teller of the Bankers' State Bank, whose accounts were found to be short $11,000 when Chicago police learned that Morrison has a wife and two children at Gambri, Sask. The Canadian police also are asked to be on the lookout for Florence Bowman Lee, show girl, also missing. Although no warrant has been issued for an employe of a grain brokerage company, also missing, he completes a triangle of two men and a girl involved in the embezzlement of more than $50,000.

The police have discarded the first theory of rivalry over Miss Lee as the cause of the shortages and now hold a theory that the two men used the girl to play the grain market for them. She seldom had more than $2000 on the books at a time, and in spite of rumors that she was caught in a wheat slump, now has a credit of $200 in her name with one firm.

FACE-LIFTER SUES LADY DIANA

Chicago Surgeon Acts to Collect From "Miracle" Star and Mother.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Lady Diana Manners, who concluded an engagement in "The Miracle," and her mother, the Duchess of Rutland, were sued, just prior to leaving for New York to sail for Europe, for a bill that Dr. H. J. Shireson, plastic surgeon, claims they refused to pay after he had performed operations on them.

He claims $1000 from Lady Diana for "lifting her face" and $1500 from the Duchess of Rutland for a similar operation. Dr. Shireson said they merely promised to induce prominent European members of royal families to submit to operations by him when he asked for his fee.

Two Children Suffocated.

By the Associated Press.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 26.—George Domonik, 6 years old, and his brother, Joseph, 2, were suffocated today when an oil stove exploded in their room while they were alone in the house. Joseph Domonik, their father, was doing carpenter work next door. He heard their screams, but flames barred the hallway leading to the bedroom on the upper floor and he was unable to reach the boys.

Back Salary for Steck.

Brookhart was silent when he got the bad news. He has until April 29 to file his candidacy for the primaries.

There can be no invalidation of any votes that Brookhart cast when sitting in an office to which he was not elected, according to this verdict, nor can it take away the salary he has drawn. Steck, however, will be entitled to back salary from March 4 a year ago.

Two members of the Election Committee who refused to sign either report, Senators Shortridge, California, and Williams, Missouri. They said they wished more light on the subject before they made a decision.

Senate leaders expect to bring up the contest in the Senate early next week and hold it before the body until it is decided.

CHURCH TRIAL IN INDIANA
OVER RECREATION POSTPONED

Critics of D. C. Martin at Palmyra Unable to Find Good Prosecutor for Case.

By the Associated Press.

PALMYRA, Ind., March 26.—Witnesses leaving the trial of D
Clyde Martin here today said the case against him had been continued until April 1, because those pressing the charges had not been able to find anyone whom they considered capable of properly presenting their side.

Martin was brought to trial by members of his church, the Church of Christ, on charges involving his recreational activities among young people of the church.

This is the second time the crusader for recreation for the young people has faced the elders charged with recreational heresy, the first trial having been postponed on account of the wide publicity given to it. Efforts to keep the date of the second trial secret also failed.

Martin has issued a statement saying that in his trial he would "have his opponents outline what we can wear, say and do."

If found guilty of heresy and it is decided that he must "prohibit roller skating in Ranger Hall, or worse, close it, or be dismissed from the church, my answer will probably be, 'I won't.'"

"Above all, I will not sacrifice my principles."

Martin said in outlining his defense that "I intend to prove that the Bible does not oppose recreation."

EXPECTED TO RUN AGAINST CUMMINS

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa will be ex-Senator within a month and candidate for the nomination against Albert B. Cummins for the senior senatorship.

The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections voted yesterday, 10 to 1, recommending that Daniel F. Steck, Democrat, be declared elected. No serious chance is apparent that the majority report will not be sustained. Stephens of Mississippi will file a minority report. Five Democrats and five Republicans joined in turning thumbs down on Brookhart.

Intent of Voter.

Broadly speaking, the verdict is based on "the intent of the voter" in the case of some 1500 disputed ballots. Stephens, on the other hand, insists Brookhart was elected according to technical language of the Iowa statute.

When the Senate accepts the majority report it will have provided Iowa with its first Democratic Senator since the Civil War. The Democrats hope it will provide two Democratic Senators, for if Brookhart wrests the nomination from Cummings, they think the regular Republicans will vote for the Democratic candidate, who may be either National Committeeman Clyde Herring or former Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, just as they voted for Steck to keep Brookhart out of the Senate.

CAUSES OF CRIME AND CURES DISCUSSED IN AN ADDRESS HERE BY CLARENCE DARROW

Noted Lawyer Holds That Few Persons Who Have Been Taught Gainful Occupations in Childhood Become Criminals.

Clarence Darrow gave his famous and familiar lecture on crime and criminals in the Darrow fashion of reducing popular notions on the subject to seeming absurdity before an audience of 1000 men and women gathered in the City Club Thursday night under the auspices of the brotherhood of the four reformed Jewish church congregations of the city.

As he has repeatedly expounded, Darrow believes that crime breeds chiefly in poverty and ignorance and is born in childhood.

His suggested cure is education for every child but not of the sort that is being passed out in unchanging spoonfuls by present school curricula. Rather he would diagnose possibilities, child by child, and prescribe accordingly for the individual. Three-fourths of all school children, he thinks, are incapable of profiting by a high school education and one-half by grammar school. However, he holds that few persons who have been taught a gainful occupation in childhood turn to crime and he thinks all children will absorb such education. He would provide it in public schools.

Urges Serious Thinking.

Darrow, as in the courtroom, sent his shafts out to his audience winged with splitting, scornful, satirical wit. To his simple verbiage and short sentences, he frequently appended bits of irony like crackers on a whip lash and he rubbed the smart of it in with allusions to the general national absence of serious thinking. In fact, he disavowed any originality for his philosophy and said it was the accepted opinion of any scientist who had applied himself to the subject. "I would rather set people to thinking than convert them," he said. "The public at large simply has not thought on this thing."

He sought first to analyze what constitutes crime. "A criminal," he said, "is a person who has violated some statute, has got caught, has been tried and convicted. The statute may have been a wise or a foolish statute and the man may have been too bad to observe it or too good. Both have happened. When a man says that the duty of all citizens is to obey the law, I know that man is interested in some particular statute, probably the Volstead act. Statutes are made by Legislatures and I leave it to you who know the makeup of Legislatures whether you would go to Legislatures to find out what is right or what is wrong. No, you can't settle whether a thing is right or wrong by consulting the statutes.

"Some people say that you can find out what is right or what is wrong by religion, but first you must determine what religion is right, and that in itself is some job. But suppose we happened to have learned which is the right religion—say the Christian, which came to us by way of Jerusalem. There are so many texts to interpret and so many sects to interpret them, that yet it is not easy to determine what is right and what is wrong.

Discusses Bible on Killing.

"Let us go to the old Bible. It is set down plainly and clearly, we think: 'Thou shalt not kill.' Kill what—when, how, where, why? It doesn't mean animals, else we would eat no meat. Thou shalt not kill human beings? Obviously not, for we recently finished a war in which Christian nations were trying to kill each other and bringing in the heathen to help. It doesn't mean wholesale killing. What about retail? It doesn't mean the hangman, for each and every one of you are behind killing by the hangman. Every one accepts that a man has a right to kill in self-defense or in defense of his home, unless the home is invaded by a prohibition agent and then the agent has the right to kill.

"Religion gives us no light on what is right or wrong. Conscience? What is conscience? Merely a state of mind, assuming the subject has a mind, which is a very violent assumption indeed. State of mind comes from what somebody told you. Some people's conscience won't let them eat meat. Other people's conscience won't let them eat meat on Friday. Still others can't eat a certain kind of meat. Conscience once wouldn't let girls appear on the streets except in long dresses. Today conscience won't let girls appear on the street in long dresses. Of all silly guides to what is right or wrong, conscience is the silliest.

"The fact is our ideas of right and wrong grow out of our habits and we begin to do wrong when we break custom. We must stay with the pack. We get into as much trouble if we get ahead of the pack as behind it. Sometimes I think we get into more trouble by getting ahead. Often a man is thought to be doing something very wicked, when he merely is doing it in a more daring, better way than custom has established.

How Lives Are Determined.

"And most of the things that determine our lives are settled for us. Our color and sex are determined before we are born and both have a great deal to do with what ultimately will happen to us.

"Our strength and weakness is settled. We may be born brilliant; probably not. We may be born idiots, probably not. We may be born morons; most likely. Maybe we will be just average people. Our emotions are settled and emotions govern us largely. Nature doesn't entrust many things to intellect. Environment—we don't choose that.

"In short, we have nothing to say in the matter before we are 12 to 15 years old and it is pretty well finished then. All these things we consider as going to make up character, are settled for us.

"Now let us turn for a minute to any large jail. Jails grow in any community in about the same ratio as restaurants and churches and real estate agents. Take any jail. We find that 90 per cent of all persons in jail are poor—have always been poor.

Most Prisoners Ignorant.

"Then 75 per cent of all the persons in that jail are ignorant. They have had no schooling that in any way fits them for life. One-half are subnormal intellectually. At least 85 per cent, possibly 90, are either immature children or were immature children when they began their careers of crime.

"Any man familiar with the subject can, with great accuracy, map any city and tell you where the criminals will come from and what kind of criminals from each section. The criminal is born of poor parents, is an orphan or half-orphan, has no education, plays in the street and as a child has responded to the instinct of all children—to take what they want. A policeman picks him up. Juvenile court—a reprimand. Another court. Jail. Then the penitentiary, possibly the gallows. The way is as exact as that of the other boy who goes up the ladder through college.

"Is the child to blame? Certainly not. It is their lack of training, education. It is true that three-fourths of all children are so made that a high school education will add little to their advantage in life. One-half cannot fully profit by grammar school. There is a considerable percentage who cannot even assimilate that much. But it is the unintelligent that most need education. Most of the real work of the world is done by morons. Put all the morons in jail and you would cripple the railroads and shut down the factories. Even the idiot can learn to do something. And no child should be permitted to grow up without learning how to do something.

What Education Should Do.

"But we haven't learned the first rudiments of what that education should be. A few educators have made a start, but it is only just a start. I learned to bound Missouri when in school. I don't want to go through Missouri, let alone around it.

"I learned grammar by ear and I say it is the best way. X still represents an unknown quantity that I first heard of in Algebra. I sat beside a dunce in school. I could learn anything out of books; he could learn nothing. But he could make a cart and I couldn't nail a board to a post without splitting both. It would be utterly foolish to make a lawyer or preacher out of him. He could work.

"Yet we lay out for our children a regular uniform course that all who come must take. No two children are alike, yet they take the same educational dose. It seemed never to have entered the head of educators that education ought to fit the pupil and that we must stop trying to make the pupil fit into our narrow educational trough. There is neither science or sense in our present method.

"No child should grow up without having learned how to do something. Each should be appraised over and over and over to find out whah he can best do. Morals don't amount to anything; habits do. The child who has been taught something by which he can make a living seldom goes wrong.

"When you have taught in childhood a habit of living you will have removed nine-tenths of all crime."

SOCIALISTS TO OPPOSE BRIAND'S TAX BILLS

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

The Socialists last night decided to vote against the new tax measures. The Premier's only hope of a majority in that case is the conservatives, and they are saying that unless he gives them M. Malvy's scalp they, too, will vote against the financial bills.

The Interior Minister, after his ordeal last week in which he was assailed by cries of "traitor," fainted in the Chamber of Deputies, and it has already been announced the heart trouble which caused his collapse will necessitate a long rest. This amounts to resignation, but the conservatives insist he be kicked out.

Malvy was found guilty during the war of trafficking with the enemy while he was Minister of War. Last year the Senate granted him amnesty, for the Left bloc has considered him a martyr.

It was this feeling that led the Socialists to support the Government and give Briand his vote of confidence last week. They made it clear at the time it implied no support of the tax bills.

M. Briand has attempted to counter the conservative attack by having Finance Minister Peret make public a statement showing that the fall of the franc during the last week is due entirely to the Chamber's dalliance over taxes. But in the present temper of the Right this may not be enough to bring them into line.

The correspondent learns that Malvy, before leaving paris for his long rest, left his resignation so his chief could pacify the Right. But it is recalled that in the debate on Malvy, Briand shouted, "If he goes, I go too."

NEW TARIFFS FOR CHINA VIRTUALLY AGREED UPON

Schedules and Uses of the Revenues Yet to Be Taken Up With the Chinese.

PEKIN, March 26.—Representatives of the Powers in the international conference on Chinese tariffs, after many weeks of committee discussion and in spite of the reign of civil war and the rapid changing of Chinese Cabinets, have practically reached an agreement on a new tariff schedule for China, but have yet to agree with the Chinese as to the disposition of the additional revenues to be derived.

The schedules evolved in committee are in substantial accord with the proposals made by the Chinese delegates at the openings of the conference last October, for the levying of surtaxes ranging from 5 to 30 per cent prior to the granting of full tariff autonomy to China in 1929. These schedules have yet to be discussed with the Chinese.

There remains, moreover, the difficult problem of reaching an agreement with the Chinese Government as to the purposes to which the new revenues shall be applied. The Powers are fully determined that they shall be employed to finance the abolition of the likin, or tax on internal trade, which China has undertaken to do away with; for the service of bonds issued to cover China's outstanding unsecured or inadequately secured foreign and domestic debts, and for administrative purposes. The Powers also demand that adequate assurances be given that the funds are so employed.

LAKES-TO-GULF ROUTE CHANGED

New Orleans to Be Terminus of Highway Instead of Galveston.

By the Associated Press.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., March 26.—The Southern terminus of Lakes-to-Gulf Highway was changed from Galveston, Tex., to New Orleans, La., and the optional route through Iowa and Minnesota was made permanent to Duluth, Minn., at the annual executive meeting of the Highway Association here.

The Lakes-to-Gulf Highway as changed conforms with the designated route of the United States Highway No. 65 from St. Paul, Minn., to New Orleans, by way of Des Moines, Ia., Chillicothe and Springfield, Mo., Little Rock, Ark., and southeast, crossing the Mississippi River at Natchez, Tenn., and then south through Baton Rouge to New Orleans. This makes a scenic highway under Federal supervision, embracing the northern lake country, the Ozarks in Missouri and Arkansas, and the Mississippi Valley to the Gulf.

CONVICT-LEASING SYSTEM OF ALABAMA; HOW STATE PROFITS BY ITS PRISONERS

(Copyright, 1926.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 26—Alabama has two ways of handling its convicts. In 51 of 67 counties the county prisoners are leased at so much per head to private concerns and individuals for work in coal mines, saw mills, on farms, roads and otherwise.

The leasing concern, with its bosses and guards, inflicts its own punishment for derelictions, and the only State supervision is a requirement to get permission from the State Board of Administration before flogging prisoners and to submit to a monthly inspection as to such things as sanitation.

State convicts originally were leased the same way. A year ago, in response to popular disapproval, Gov. Brandon changed it. The State now leases three coal mines, works them with its convicts under State guards and control, and sells the coal back to the company the mine is leased from.

It leases men at so much per head to a sawmill, but all guards and control are under the State. It maintains four other prisons, none of them mines, where cotton mill and similar work are done.

Cruelty in Each System.

According to an inquiry by the New York World each system swings the door wide open to possible cruelty and inhumanity, the only difference being who has the opportunity to administer the cruelty and inhumanity.

There is testimony that convicts in the mines have been beaten with steel trolley wire, hickory sticks, shovels and other instruments because they were not getting out as much coal as it was thought they should.

The State legally countenances and administers flogging with a leather strap as one form of punishment. It is directly charged that under this system many unrecorded floggings are administered, although this is denied by prison wardens.

The State authorizes punishment known as confinement in "dog houses." These are coffin-like affairs, just big enough for a man to wedge himself in. The convict is locked in one for periods of 48 hours for such offenses as fighting or failing to work.

The State nets a tremendous revenue through trafficking in convicts. For the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1925, the net profit after paying all upkeep and administrative expenses, from the labor of an average of 1507 prisoners in the three state-operated coal mines was $595,394.36. The total tonnage mined was 1,171,781 in the Flat Top, Banner and Aldrich mines. The counties get approximately $200,000 to $250,000 a year on their outright leases.

The State maintains that it is necessary to make it convicts self-supporting and that to do this it is necessary to work them in mines. Against this are figures from the State itself showing that the five non-mining prisons, with 1784convicts, turned in a net, clear profit of $331,140.14 for the last fiscal year.

These prisons, River Falls, Kilby, Speignor, No. 4 and Wetumpka, each proved themselves individually self-sustaining with the exception of Wetumpka. There the tuberculosis hospital is located for all convicts and they of course cannot work. Later figures indicate that even Wetumpka may be self-sustaining this year.

Deaths of Convicts.

During the last fiscal year 33 of the 62 convict deaths took place in mine prisons. Of the other 29, 12 were at the Wetumpka tuberculosis hospital, some of these cases coming from mines. Sixteen of the deaths in mines were from causes existing only in the mines, nine from pneumonia, influenza and grip, and only three from ordinary diseases.

While the State maintains that many prisoners prefer to work in the mines, the fact remains that there have been many cases, particularly at the Wegra mine for county convicts, of prisoners deliberately maiming themselves with dynamite to avoid mine work. Two men at the State Flat Top Mine recently put dynamite in their shoes and set it off.

The mines, so far as physical condition goes, are usually kept in the best possible shape, particularly as to ventilation and sanitation. They are electrified and only at Aldrich is pick work done. At the others the coal is brought down by machines and blasting, the men simply loading the cars with shovels and picking out the rock.

The situation has been jockeyed with politically. Three committees have investigated in the past—legislative bodies in 1915 and 1919, and a group of citizens in 1923. Each made almost identical reports, denouncing the conditions in the mines as cruel, inhumane, barbarous and damning to the State. In no case has any definite action resulted.

Paid About $4 a Month.

Convicts in the mines earn approximately $75,000 a year or an average of about $4 a month each by mining coal in addition to the tonnage assigned. Under the rules, extra work is not compulsory, but it is freely charged that the convict bosses make it so, beating any man who does not stay down for extra work.

In the midst of a system viciously attacked from within and without the State, Alabama has one of the finest prisons in the country at Kilby, Ala., costing around $2,000,000 and erected during the administration of former Gov. Tom Kilby.

The recent death of a convict named Knox has become the crux of the whole situation. Attorney General Davis, in his report to Gov. Brandon after exhuming Knox's body and taking testimony in several states, charged that the death certificate showing Knox died from ploson was false and presented medical testimony that bichloride of mercury was pumped into his stomach after death to simulate accidental death or suicide. This report was a direct attack on Warden Charles R. Davis, in charge of all convict mines, who was in charge and at the prison when Knox died.

U. S. EXPENDITURES FOR TRIAL OF WHEELER TO BE DISCLOSED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The Department of Justice has been asked to render an accounting to the Senate on the amount of money spent in the prosecution of Senator Wheeler (Dem.) of Montana.

By a vote of 61 to 13, the Senate adopted a resolution by Senator Wheeler's colleague, Senator Walsh, amended by Senator King (Dem.) of Utah so as to include a request for the number of persons engaged in the prosecution and preceding investigation, and the salary paid to each.

The resolution is broad enough to cover both prosecution in Montana, where Wheeler was acquitted by a jury, and in the District of Columbia, where an indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the Government was quashed.

By agreement betwen Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leader, and Senator Walsh, a second resolution by the latter was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee. It would ask the Attorney-General whether he proposed to bring perjury action against George B. Hayes of New York, the Government's "surprise" witness in the Montana trial.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS EXCHANGE FIRE IN DRY LAW DEBATE

OBJECTS TO WET ATTACKS ON CLERGY

Oliver of New York Says Prohibition Has Become Issue Because of Volstead Law "Tyranny."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The sobriety of members of Congress was discussed concurrently, and from different viewpoints, by members of the House and by prohibition enforcement officers of the District of Columbia.

While on the floor debate was centering yesterday around the reported remarks of Dr. Clarence True Wilson on drinking among Congressmen, the local prohibition officials were announcing they meant to go the limit in discovering the intended ultimate consignee of six quarts of liquor found Saturday night in a corridor of the House office building.

The threat of the prohibition officers apparently aroused but passing interest among the representatives, although the alleged purveyor of the six bottles was taken into custody early in the day and released on bond after questioning. The incident was not even mentioned in the daily round of prohibition debate.

Objects to Attack on Ministers.

Representative Rankin (Dem.), Mississippi, opened the discussion with a speech saying he was sorry Representative O'Connor (Dem.) of New York had seen fit to attack Dr. Wilson's reported statement on the state of congressional sobriety in the days before Volstead. Rankin pointed out that Dr. Wilson is secretary of the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Attacks on ministers and religious organizations, he continued, would get the wets nowhere.

There was applause on the Democratic side when the Mississippi member declared such a speech as that made by O'Connor, in which he called Dr. Wilson "a liar" ought not to be regarded as a gauge of Democratic sentiment. He estimated that the party was 75 per cent dry, and added:

"The prohibition amendment is just as binding on Democrats as Republicans, and we are not going to meet you in 1928 or any other time on a platform of light wines and beers."

Wilson's Telegram Read.

A telegram from Dr. Wilson, saying Representative O'Connor apparently has misunderstood his meaning, was read to the House by Representative Blanton (Dem.) of Texas. It reiterated the explanation previously made by the Methodist leader in a public statement.

Undeterred by the criticism of their Democratic colleagues from Mississippi and Texas, the Democratic wet bloc from New York later returned to the attack. Just before adjournment Representative Oliver (Dem.) of New York put in a bill to permit sale of wine and beer in states that approve such a course by referendum.

Replying to Rankin, Representative Oliver said it was regrettable but the wet and dry question had been made a national issue by the "tyranny" of the Volstead act.

He declared the State of New York has had to submit to nullification of its own laws because of the Federal prohibition act.

The House lobbies heard all sorts of stories in connection with the liquor found Saturday night in the office building, where it apparently had been abandoned upon the approach of a police officer. Enforcement officers denied they had evidence so far to connect the incident with any member of Congress, but said they would follow the trail no matter where it might lead.

Old-Time St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A SHORT time ago Mr. Cyril Clemens inquired in the Post-Dispatch if any of its readers remembered "The Mississippi Valley Sanitary Fair," which was held here in 1864, not 1866. I attended and have the badge I wore, being a pupil in the Elliot School, then located on Fifteenth and Pine streets. Nellie Grant—quite a small girl at that time—the daughter of our late President Grant, was "The Old Woman in the Shoe."

Shortly after the fair my class was sent to the Central High, then on Fifteenth and Olive streets, to take examination for entrance. While there we heard the glorious news Richmond had been taken by Gen. Grant. Being so thrilled, imagining we could see the Stars and Stripes floating over that city, we almost ran back to our school, where we went thundering up the stairs like a small army and were confronted by our principal, Miss Wilson, who gave us a good calling down, as they say nowadays, for being so noisy, which cooled our fervor for the afternoon. Also I have one of the first certificates issued making me a life member of the St. Louis Public School Library, now known as the Public Library.

If the Recall Goes Through.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE determination and arrangements to recall Mayor Miller suggest that in the event of his recall we will have another election to elect a Mayor to serve out the remainder of the term for which Victor J. Miller was elected.

As a woman voter, I think it would be a perfectly grand idea to get away from the perennial crop of mayoralty candidates, Democratic and Republican, and choose a man, young, modern, capable, tried and true, who has not heretofore been a candidate for any political office on any ticket whatsoever; a man who has the city's welfare at heart and a man big enough for the job and who will honor the position and be a credit to the city.

Walter B. Weisenberger is the man I would like to see Mayor of Greater St. Louis. ST. LOUIS WOMAN VOTER.

Automobile Liability Insurance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN YOUR editorial entitled "This Law Should Be Passed," in regard to the Holtsclaw tragedy, you advocate the passage of a compulsory liability insurance law. I have been driving an automobile for more than 10 years, regularly every day, and have never yet had occasion to need any liability insurance. Although I am not opposed to it, I believe it very good and think everyone should get same, but not be forced to. I feel about liability insurance like the Post-Dispatch does about prohibition—that is, to give the people individual liberty. From people whom I talk to about liability insurance, many seem to get the impression that when they have such protection (instead of their cautious, intelligent reason) that they can dare to take chances that they would not otherwise. If a great many people had liability insurance they'd certainly want their money's worth. I've met quite a few people who boasted that they could make people step aside because of their liability insurance protection.

I believe a better way would be to pass a law to keep the automobile graveyards and auto junk dealers from patching up the old, discarded automobiles and putting them out on the market. Automobiles should not be sold without a signed statement in the bill of sale from the dealer that the brakes, wheels, axles, steering wheels, radius rods, etc., are in good mechanical condition.

In Re County Sanitation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR recent publication of the report of the sanitary engineers of the State Board of Health, and your own follow-up article in Tuesday's edition is invaluable to workers for sanitation in the county. In Overland, one of the 14 communities mentioned, petition for a sewer district under the Ralph act, embracing the watershed, is already heavily signed and will shortly be completed under the stimulus of the recently formed association, organized to complete the petition and provide proper safeguards when the sewer is being built. We appreciate the aid your paper has given this movement. It has focused attention on conditions steadily growing worse and which conceivably might become dangerous in the hot months to come. REPORT AGAINST JUDGE ENGLISH

Another step in the long and arduous process by which impeachment proceedings are brought to final judgment in Congress was accomplished in the English case by the Judiciary Committee of the House.

The committee submitted its report favoring impeachment. The articles of impeachment, under the able direction of Chairman Graham, have been reduced to five main charges, with specifications setting forth the offenses of Judge English on the bench.

The five articles are brief but comprehensive, charging Judge English with the abuse of the powers of his office; with tyranny and oppression; with improper and unlawful conduct in connection with the bankruptcy ring under Charles B. Thomas, referee in bankruptcy, for the interest and profit of both; with misbehavior in office, in that he corruptly extended partiality and favoritism; with corruptly and improperly handling and controlling the deposits of bankruptcy and other funds, and using the funds for the pecuniary benefit of himself and Thomas; with treating members of the bar in a manner coarse, indecent, arbitrary and tyrannical, and conducting himself in a manner unbecoming the high position that he holds.

The conclusion of the indictment is that Judge English's misbehavior as Judge and his misdemeanors in office "have brought the administration of justice into discredit and disrepute, degraded the dignity of the court and destroyed the confidence of the public in its integrity."

Chairman Graham's attitude is significant of the strength of the case against Judge English. Mr. Graham voted against impeachment, but declares that careful study of the testimony submitted against Judge English has wrought a complete change in his opinion. He is now convinced that Judge English is guilty and ought to be impeached and convicted. The chairman is largely credited with the formulating of the articles of impeachment and specifications in the convincing report made to the House.

In its report the committee draws a significant distinction between high crimes and misdemeanors, as these words were understood in common law, and acts which are not defined as criminal and made subject to indictment, but which affect the public welfare. An official may be impeached for offenses of a political character; for gross betrayal of public interest; for abuses or betrayal of trusts; for inexcusable negligence of duty, and for the tyrannical abuse of power. It declares that a civil officer may behave in public office so as to bring disgrace upon himself and shame upon the country, and continue to do it, and yet might not be subject to indictment under any law of the United States. The only remedy is impeachment. Declaring that the conduct of Judge George W. English is of such character that it must be regarded as reprehensive and tending to bring shame and reproach upon the administration of justice and destroy the confidence of the public in our courts, if not rebuked, the report adds:

> No one reading the record in this case can conclude that this man has lived up to the standards of our judiciary, nor is he the personification of integrity, high honor and uprightness, as the evidence presents the picture of the manner in which he discharged the high duties and exercised the powers of his great office.

The report must yet be adopted by the House and impeachment ordered before the case can go to the Senate. This action is anticipated. Trial by the Senate, with prosecution by the managers appointed by the House, is the final step.

The report of the House Judiciary Committee, however, thoroughly vindicates the demand of the Post-Dispatch for an investigation with the charges submitted in support of that demand. It vindicates the Post-Dispatch's undertaking of a costly and laborious public service when it directed the attention of Congress to the misconduct of Judge English.

PASSING OF THE SOUSE JOKE.

The London Telegraph comments editorially on the virtual disappearance from British humorous journals of the traditional souse joke. In seeking an explanation of why the tipsy fellow, his mistakes and antics are no longer funny, the Telegraph hints at a wholesome change of public opinion. This paper suggests that Britishers no longer look upon an intoxicated man with that indifference which is the basis of laughter. The souse, observes the British editor, has become an object of pity. He is a nuisance, not a diversion. Heavy, under-the-table drinking is not the general rule in England. The Telegraph professes to see a more temperate use of alcoholics among Britishers and a different attitude, in this soberer day, toward the drinker who makes a pig of himself over the bottle.

"What has produced the swift change no one can easily define, so many factors are at work," says this conservative London daily. "But perhaps we shall not be far wrong if we estimate as most powerful the modern cult of physical fitness and the better understanding of health which science has given us."

Thus, the British public moves slowly and with self-respect toward temperance. On the other hand, an examination of what we Americans find humorous presents a startling contrast. A joke on prohibition always gets a guffaw from an American audience. Drunken escapades are sure-fire laugh provokers on vaudeville stage and movie screen. British onlookers must wonder sometimes if the American people really understood the meaning of temperance when they voted for prohibition. Our current humor speaks absolutely to the contrary. American audiences show utter indifference to license. The souse is still a joke with us. We pass a law to make him sober and laugh at it; then, we laugh at him for laughing at the law. All wet and dry arguments aside, our public taste in humor reveals an inherently superficial viewpoint toward the ideal of temperance.

MR. AID'S RESIGNATION.

Herbert H. Aid has shown a business man's impatience with the slow and cumbersome methods of street condemnation. Mr. Aid's service on the Twelfth Street Condemnation Commission lasted only two months, but it was long enough to convince him that there is small chance of accomplishment under the present system. The project has been pending six years, and, unless the speed is increased, it is likely to drag along for many more. Mr. Aid succeeded W. L. Sturdevant, who resigned for the same reason.

During Mr. Aid's tenure the commission has been meeting three days a week for two-hour sessions. At these meetings property owners appeared to present their own appraisals. These Mr. Aid found to be ridiculously high, and in many cases to bear no relation to the revenue derived, or to the benefits which will be received from the improvement. Testimony of this prejudiced sort is of little value in aiding the commission to come to a fair and judicial decision. It is mere haggling.

Mr. Aid suggests that the system should be revised so that property could be appraised and taken over promptly by the city. Hearings could be held later and necessary adjustments in compensation made without interfering with the progress of the improvement.

Another method would be to create an official commission with good pay to keep at work every day in the week. This would probably be more suitable to property owners and would get results.

FATAL SIX O'CLOCK.

Two children, a girl 6 years old and a boy of 7, were killed by automobiles at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. The verdict in each instance was accident. The drivers were exonerated.

The streets today, as we all sadly realize, are dangerous at any time. They are especially so during the period of heaviest traffic, say from 4 to 7, the hour of greatest hazard being 6 o'clock.

It happens, too, that 6 o'clock, by reason of mealtime requirements, is the errand hour. The peril of sending a child on an errand at that hour cannot be overemphasized. Parents, and drivers, too, should keep the fact constantly in mind that 6 o'clock is the fatal hour.

A NEW PICTURE OF MEXICO.

Here's a new story about Mexico—told by Samuel M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. The occasion was a luncheon in honor of Mexico's Secretary of Education.

The theme was prosperity. Our own prosperity, Mr. Vauclain asserted, is due to the high wages paid labor. "Cut the present wage level in half and you would see the greatest panic this country has ever had." Mexico is copying us, and "through the expansion of manufacturing and general industry is approaching the level of prosperity enjoyed in this country."

It must be remembered that Vauclain is speaking from first-hand observation. He has learned about Mexico in Mexico. His audience, we are sure, was surprised to learn that Mexico now has in operation "probably the largest cotton factory in the world." Surprised, too, to hear that "the manufacturing plants in the large centers of population would put to shame many in the United States from the standpoint of modern appliances and efficiency."

Remarkable testimony, surely. If submitted, say, by a reporter for a liberal newspaper, it would be largely rejected. Shuffling, shambling, illiterate, indolent—Mexico, as ordinarily pictured, is buried under all the adjectives of contempt. But Vauclain speaks by the book. He is a captain of industry and therefore an expert witness.

He has written a new meaning into manana. Mexico, as he sees it, has thrown off the coma of procrastination. The land of tomorrow is the land with a future.

THAT SNAIL CREATOR.

A so-called news item has been going the rounds to the effect that a young scientist, engaged in the study of bacteriology, has succeeded in creating real living cells. And not only cells, but such highly developed creatures as snails. Out of certain chemicals he has evolved hundreds of snails. If that were true, it would be the most remarkable discovery of the age.

Ever since the minute organisms known as bacteria and bacilli were discovered biologists and microscopists have speculated as to whether this low form of life was ever evolved from lifeless matter. Over and over again vessels filled with culture fluids have been exposed to sunlight with the object of finding out if life would spring up under all favorable conditions except that germs of life were excluded. No life was thus ever known to evolve.

But our young scientist has created snails, says he. He admits, too, that, in addition to the chemicals, whatever they were, he used "decaying vegetable matter." And snails lay their eggs in such matter. Did he filter out all such possible eggs?

What would Huxley have thought of such scientific amateurism?

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"I think the wets are on the right track now," Mr. Antwine said. "They have decided to drive the drys to drink, and a good many expert observers think they are going to do it. Among these is the New Republic, which says it was open-minded as to prohibition. It thinks the wets have taken the offensive away from the drys, and it does not see how the latter are going to be able to hold their ground. It considers modification of the law certain.

"The trouble with the drys, as I make the situation out, was that they asked us to accept as a fact what was never anything more than an experiment. I think we gave the thing a fair trial. We certainly did for it everything that could be done for it when we put it in the Constitution. This gave it all the authority we possess, and if it could not seriously impress the country with that advantage, we can only believe that the country doesn't want it.

"After all, there is nothing new about that. The country didn't want George III. It didn't want England taking our seamen off their ships. It didn't want slavery. It didn't want Spain beating up the Cubans, and it didn't want the Germans drowning our people with submarines. It didn't want Mexico grabbing at Texas. When it says it doesn't want a thing, it doesn't want it, and that is all there is to it. The drys would just as well make up their minds that they have lost. The tumult will grow, and if they mean to say anything sensible they would better say it while we can hear them.

"Isn't democracy an institution for you? We do it, and then we undo it. However, we make our own mistakes, which are vastly preferable to the mistakes of anybody else," Mr. Antwine said.

Now that an Olive street tobacconist has sold his wooden Indian to a Boston art buyer, we may expect to see other tobacconists get their Indians out of the basement and paint them up. These are the American equivalent of what are known in European art as the primitives. There never were any Indians like the effigies we had in front of cigar stores. Neither were there any Italians like those we see in Italian primitives. Both the Indians and the Italians have had their sinking spells, but they never sank to that. There is nothing wooden about either, though the artists would have us believe there is. When they get all our wooden Indians rounded up, it will be interesting to see how many types there were. We are familiar with two—the Pontiacs and Pocahonti. The Pontiacs brandished a tomahawk, and the Pocahonti held out in the right hand a package of cigars. We always liked the Pontiac gesture best. After all, we never did anything to the Indians to condemn us to what they thought was tobacco.

SPRING WITH RESERVATIONS.

Oh! Spring is here and soon we'll have
The pleasantest of weather;
The daisies gay and clover sweet,
Will soon grow wild together.
The gleeful lamblets gambol forth,
The violets ope their eyes;
Oh! spring indeed, my friends, is here—
But how about the flies?

The tiny brook that babbles yon,
The green that paints the hill;
Oh! how I rave about it all,
My heart will not be still.
The fleecy clouds float overhead,
Like fairies in a dance.
Oh! lovely spring at last you're here—
But how about the ants?

Thither a lark spills forth its song,
A-soaring in the blue;
The whoofle-pipkin seeks its mate,
And vows it will be true.
Small wonder that my soul exults,
When spring at last I greet;
Such bliss not often comes around—
But how about the heat?

Let poets sing and blue bells ring,
And joy be unconfined;
Let's hie ourselves to meadows sweet
And dodge the daily grind.
Why, I'd run like mad o'er hill and dale,
Away with facts and figures!
I'll sate my soul with vernal charms—
But how about the chiggers?

Sir: Though our municipal Moses has gone up into the mountains (perhaps to prepare a certain death-warrant), he has not altogether forsaken us—fidus Achates, otherwise Col. House-Kratky, is still here to guide our faltering footsteps with admonitory, didactic words hurled at us from the pulpit.

More clairvoyant even than Aaron of old; fidus Col. House-Kratky has "looked into the heart" of Moses Miller and finds there nothing but jewels of incomparable luster. Moses Miller's noble heart beats for us alone, even our sins are forgiven us by that great soul. Not an unkind thought regarding us has ever possessed that mighty spirit—according to Col. House-Kratky!

But, though Moses Miller is a far better man than Washington, Lincoln or Roosevelt, yet he is, mirabile dictu! only a man after all, and, occasionally perhaps, makes a mistake. If he played the part of a fractious yearling when he ordered the purchase of certain second class fire engines—if he made an asinine settlement of the Delmar crossing controversy (and blew his personal trumpet loudly over it)—if he angered all decent citizens with his silly charges against and medieval trial of Mr. Wall—well, we should remember that other great men have been misjudged, that he is quite young and full of pep, that he means well and will no doubt settle down and make a good Mayor if given time enough. Anyhow, "God will not permit" him to be recalled.

Thus saith Col. House-Kratky, at any rate; and surely with such golden words from such a potent source the hoi polloi should be satisfied. If these things be true (and who am I to cast suspicion on them?) may one ask, "Why do the heathen rage, and the people imagine a vain thing?"

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reflect without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

THE LIQUOR ISSUE IN MISSOURI.

From the St. Joseph News-Press.

ANY hope there may have been that the liquor issue could be avoided in Missouri this summer and fall seems to be dashed by the announcement of Blodgett Priest of St. Louis as a Republican candidate for United States Senator. Priest is a wet and an anti-world courter, but first of all, a wet. He will run on a light wine and beer platform. His father, Judge Henry S. Priest, is also a wet, and may make the race for the Democratic nomination for Senator—so here we have the unusual possibility of a Democratic father and a Republican son, both wets, opposing each other for the high office of United States Senator, and each offering the people the same remedy, though under different labels. The Priests, father and son, are seasoned politicians and the record shows three times the people of Missouri have voted on prohibition and three times they have rejected it. In 1910 Missouri went wet by a majority of 218,125; in 1916 by 121,538 and in 1918 by 73,964. In the recent nation-wide straw poll conducted by the Newspaper Enterprise Association the ratio of wets and drys in Missouri was shown to be more than six to one. This might not be maintained in an official test which would call for an expression from a much larger proportion of the voters. Missourians might not be satisfied with the light wine and beer palliative. They might take it on the theory that half a loaf is better than no bread; they might prefer it, believing that almost any change from the present method would be a change for the better. If they feel that way about it—and the straw poll indicates some such idea—it is likely that they are wrong, as light wine and beer will not solve the grave problems growing out of prohibition. However, considered merely as an issue of political expediency, as a plank in an individual platform, it may serve its purpose, especially if, in the ante-primary campaign, the dry strength is sufficiently divided. So the liquor question is pretty sure to be injected into the canvass this year and if it is, it will likely overshadow all other issues, which is unfortunate, as there are questions of more vital importance to Missouri as a state than that of whether we shall be represented in Congress by a delegation committed to light wines and beer.

EUGENE FIELD.

From the Washington Post.

THERE was something peculiarly appropriate in the ceremonies attending the removal of the remains of Eugene Field from an obscure grave in Graceland Cemetery to a specially built tomb in the cloister of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Comforter at Kenilworth. Not only was his most famous poem, "Little Boy Blue," which with its simple but poignant pathos has touched the hearts of all who have read it, recited as a requiem by a personal friend, but also little children in scores mingled with the throngs of distinguished literary and journalistic personages who had assembled to do honor to the memory of the author of "Wynken, Blynken and Nod," "The Rock-a-By Lady from Hushaby Street" and "Seein' Things at Night."

It is impossible to think of Eugene Field or to write of him, without a peculiar feeling of affection.

MUSIC

New York String Quartet Presents Contrast of Moderns and Classic School.

By HARRY R. BURKE.

TONAL painting by the moderns and pattern weaving by the classic school were contrasted brilliantly last night in the program of the New York String Quartet, given under auspices of the St. Louis Chamber Music Society at Sheldon Auditorium. As against the Beethoven quartet in F major there was Ravel's quartet in F major. As against the Romanza and the Intermezzo from Grieg's G minor quartet and the quartet arrangement of Edward McDowell's "To a Wild Rose" there were heard Goossens' "By the Tarn" and a Nocturne by Borodine. The last three named were encore numbers. They served admirably to make more clear the line of demarcation between the old and the new.

Though the New York string quartet is comparatively a newcomer in the concert field, its visit is eagerly looked forward to by St. Louis music lovers. These four men—Ottokar Cadek, first violin; Jeroslav Siskovsky, second violin; Ludvik Schwab, viola, and Bedrich Vaska, 'cellist—are no mere routineers in chamber music; they do not sacrifice virility to finish. There is a fine precision of phrasing, there is a splendid balance of tone, but the outstanding characteristic of the ensemble is the creative enthusiasm with which its members endow their programs. And back of the art and its spirit is keen directing intelligence.

The reading of the Beethoven was forthright, rather than subtle—but so was Beethoven. To the demand for an encore number Eugene Goossens' "By the Tarn" was played, a lyrical impression as delicate and as colorful as a painting by Claude Monet. The 'cello song in the Grieg Romanza was plaintively saccharine and the Intermezzo's humors, if somewhat heavy, charmed the audience. In the McDowell encore was fine lyricism of spirit, but most intriguing of all was the Ravel quartet. Here the French genius, which in three centuries transformed the face of Europe and created the Gothic cathedrals, reasserts itself in song. Almost orchestral are the effects of the strings, so massive, yet never strained, is the architectonic of the work.

LECTURES ON CHILD CULTURE

Prof Veeder Takes Up Locomotion Period of Development.

The second stage of a child's life—that of locomotion—is the period when habits are formed which dominate the entire life, according to Dr. Borden S. Veeder, professor of clinical pediatrics, Washington University Medical School, who spoke yesterday before a group of institutional workers who are taking the child training course, which the Community Council has formed. Dr. Veeder divided the mental development of a child into four phases—the stage of recognizing sight, sound, touch, stages of locomotion, adolescence and the stage in which the youth begins to think for himself.

Lectures are held at 10:30 a. m. and 1 p. m. every Tuesday and Thursday at the Social Service Building, 2221 Locust street.

Judge Calhoun Urges Legal Reform

Circuit Judge Calhoun, addressing the Twenty-eighth Ward Republican Club at Rose Hill Hall last night, concerning reform of criminal procedure, suggested abolition of the presumption of innocence for defendants. REVIEWS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA'S SUCCESS

Oliver Richards Addresses Force of Solicitors for $450,000 Three-Year Fund.

The growth and accomplishments of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, now in its forty-sixth season, were reviewed yesterday by Oliver Richards, vice president of the Symphony Society, before 300 men and women who are soliciting subscriptions to a guarantee fund of $450,000, or $150,000 for each of three years, for the orchestra.

"Unlike the orchestras of other cities, our orchestra has grown up through many years of devoted labor by music lovers," said Richards. "It began in 1860 as the Philharmonic Society and passed to many organizations until the present Symphony Society was formed.

"Because the orchestra grew up here and was not created all at once, it can be operated with less loss, but also because it grew up here, it has never had the financial or social support of the new orchestras of the Western cities.

Children's Concerts.

"The achievements of the past five years are the most hopeful indication for future success. During that period the orchestra has visited the entire trade territory of our city, appearing in more than 80 localities, the only traveling representative of the culture of our city.

The achievement of our children's concerts is particularly noteworthy. St. Louis is the only city in which the Board of Education has financed a series of children's concerts through which we reach 20,000 public school children.

Most Complete in U. S.

"The position of a conductor is not an easy one, for the programs have to be both educational and entertaining. During the past five years we have heard 60 novelties at our regular concerts. Both old and new masters have had first hearing. Thus our audiences should should be as well informed of the progress of musical art as are those in the larger music centers in the East.

"During Mr. Ganz's regime as conductor, several of the important members of the orchestra have been brought from the East. They have all made their homes in our city and in a way St. Louis can boast of the most complete home orchestra in the United States."

About 30 Republicans voted with an equal number of Democrats in support of the resolution, which was passed 60 to 32. The action followed rejection of legislation designed to put more teeth in Rhode Island's enforcement law. The resolution as passed stipulates that support of modification legislation be accorded "provided that said bill shall be amended by adding thereto a referendum clause."

NEW COURT TO SPEED UP BOND WORK SUGGESTED

Proposal of Attorney Would Require Amendment to State Constitution to Provide Machinery.

PROCEEDING WOULD BE UNDER INITIATIVE

Status of Projects Provided For in $87,000,000 Issue of 1923 Cited as Need for Move.

A suggestion has been made to the Post-Dispatch by a St. Louis attorney, who has made a study of the laws applicable to public work, that conversion of the $87,000,000 bond issue money voted in 1923, into completed improvements could be speeded up materially by an amendment to the Missouri Constitution to provide new machinery for the condemnation of the property needed.

The suggestion of this attorney, who desired that his name be not used, has the approval of W. Frank Carter, chairman of the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee. It contemplates the circulation of initiative petitions for a constitutional amendment to create in St. Louis a Condemnation Court, which would be in continuous session, and which would have elective Judges with the same qualifications as Judges of the Supreme Court, with salaries large enough to command the services of able lawyers.

How Court Would Work.

This court would appoint the commissioners to assess benefits and damages, and property owners would have the right to appeal to this court from any decision of the commissioners. The decision of the court would be final, however, and there would be no appeal to any higher court.

It was pointed out that the suggested amendment could take care of such questions as notice to property owners, permitting notice by publication except to resident owners, and that through such a system the city could gain title to all property involved in any bond issue project in one year or less time.

The submission of an amendment would be under the initiative section of the Constitution, and would require the circulation of petitions in 11 of the 16 congressional districts of the State, in each of which the signatures of 5 per cent of the qualified voters would be required. It could be voted on at the election next November, and within a year of that time the condemnation proceedings on a number of projects could be completed.

Would Apply Only to St. Louis.

It is the expressed belief of those who have examined the matter that there would be no difficulty in obtaining the signatures required and in the ultimate voting of the amendment. It would apply only to St. Louis, and there is no apparent reason why there would be opposition to it out in the State.

The record of condemnation cases involved in public improvements in St. Louis is one of delay after delay. In one improvement, that of Kingshighway from Easton avenue to Penrose Park, 17 years were taken in the necessary legal proceedings from the time the petition for the condemnation was filed until the appropriation finally was passed by the Board of Aldermen.

The City Plan Commission has estimated that the normal time required to carry a condemnation case through all its stages is one year, seven months, making no allowances for objections to benefit and damage awards tying the matter up. Very few projects in St. Louis have come within this period of time. None except the Kingshighway improvement have taken 17 years but there have been others which have taken many years, many having taken from five to seven years and having progressed little beyond the starting point.

Improvements at Standstill.

Just now the major improvements are at a standstill awaiting the decision of the Missouri Supreme Court in the Olive street widening case. There the Commission performed its duties promptly. The city paid into court approximately $2,000,000 to meet the awards, but a few property owners, objecting to the price they would receive for their property, obtained from the Supreme Court a writ of prohibition which stopped the city from proceeding with the improvement.

This case was argued 10 months ago and a decision may come from the court on any decision day. If the city wins the case, work on Olive street probably could commence immediately, and on other projects as well. If the city should lose, it would have to start all over again on the Olive street improvement, legal proceedings on which continuous antiseptic treatment. Gargles and sprays fail, because their effect lasts but a short time—and they can ordinarily be used only night and morning.

The ideal throat antiseptic—one of proved germicidal power, that can be carried with you and used at frequent intervals wherever you may be—is now realized in Formamint.

As the pleasant-tasting tablet slowly dissolves, it bathes every fold and crevice of the throat tissues with a powerful but safe antiseptic fluid that searches out and destroys throat germs.

Danger Signals of High Blood Pressure

compensation to $5 a day. It has been found in many instances that business men would refuse to give more than two hours a day once or twice a week at this compensation.

Under a constitutional amendment such as proposed, compensation of commissioners could be taken care of to provide a payment which would attract business men qualified to act, and to justify them in giving sufficient time to push the work to speedy completion.

In the project for the widenfng of Twelfth street north from Washington boulevard, which has been pending more than six years, two commissioners have become disgusted with the delays encountered and have resigned.

Two Commissioners Have Quit.

The first was W. L. Sturdevant, a lawyer, who retired from the commission last November, and was succeeded by Herbert H. Aid, who resigned several days ago. Edward C. Wagner, a real estate dealer, was appointed to succeed Aid.

In a statement regarding his resignation, Aid said that under the present system it was impossiblue to make progress in condemnations, and that nearly all the time of commissioners was taken in hearing arguments from property owners who demanded unreasonable prices for their property, or who were dissatisfied with a reasonable amount of benefits. He urged that the compensation of Commissioners be increased to justify business men in giving an adequate amount of time to the work.

WHY BOW TO THE PARISIENNE?

Why must American women look to her as the personification of chic?

What I think is the one difference between the Parisienne and the American.

By Sarah Van Rensselaer

BOTH in New York and Paris, I've always been concerned with the buying habits of women of fashion. I don't mean of women of wealth alone because the woman of a most limited income may have the style of a princess.

By the term, "a woman of fashion," I mean nothing which concerns the pocketbook exclusively.

Of course, there is one fundamental difference between the Parisienne and the American which does concern money—the former never has so much to spend on gowning herself. Her fame for chic is certainly not on the basis of expenditures alone.

I think the real secret is in a mental, rather than a financial realm.

My feeling is that the French woman always thinks before she buys, whereas the American is too often led by impulse.

Yet this is strange. An American will spend days and days deciding on the interior decorations of her home. For instance—she will have numerous conferences regarding a treasured antique piece of furniture—or the proper cretonne—the harmonizing walls. She will preplan her home with infinite detail.

Primarily, the French woman does that with her wardrobe; secondly, with her cuisine; thirdly, her interior decorations. Her costume is the most serious matter with her. She dares not make a mistake. Her purchases must be thought out carefully because she cannot afford to be impulsive.

This tendency, happily, is growing in America. With the transplanting of fashion so expeditiously nowadays, there is also coming to America something of the Parisienne's "feeling" for chic.

This is a hopeful situation. Not so long ago there were many who felt that "the latest" was all-important. Nowadays there is a growing tendency to apply the Parisienne's ideal of thoughtful preplanning.

Nowadays there is also enlightenment as regards the combination of style and economy. One need not sacrifice all to the vogue of the moment. While French ingenuity provides the mode, it takes American ingenuity to wed it to practical durability.

To generalize less, I mean that while the latest edicts of Paris can be adapted over here, it takes a house like Julius Kayser & Co. with all its world-wide resources to give, for instance, a sheer pair of evening hosiery that other wanted quality—sturdy wear.

In my goings about from spring opening to spring opening, from shop to shop and manufacturer to manufacturer, I am delighted with the Kayser offerings this spring, as I know you will be.

This great house specializes in those three intimate articles of the toilette, hosiery, lingerie and gloves, the three items which touch one's skin.

They specialize, likewise, in silk. They bring, this season, the elegancies of Paris, seemingly fragile, yet uniquely durable. They bring the current originations, yet not at import prices. They offer exquisite and dainty things, but made to wear.

All because Julius Kayser & Co. has one unchanging policy. Its label guarantees 100% pure silk and 100% pure dyes, plus fine workmanship.

Styles may change with the seasons, but Kayser quality never. Kayser standards are ever the highest.

This accounts for the ever increasing number of women, I believe, who are learning to THINK before they buy. They insist upon seeing the Kayser label.

To buy otherwise is sometimes disappointing. Mere "looks" and mere "feel" are often deceptive.

Let me give you an example. There is the genuine full fashioned hosiery, such as Kayser makes. There is the imitation. The genuine has a real seam which runs from the toe-tip to the top of the stocking. It becomes a fitted hose, knit to conform to the leg and not losing its shape.

The imitation is merely the old-fashioned tubular hosiery with a fake seam running up the back. With the first washing it loses its shape—twisting and wrinkling around the ankle in loose folds.

So often it is with the claim of "pure silk" and "pure dyes." There is often "loading" or "weighting" also which gives a fictitious impression of weight. Mere weight is not an indication of quality. Kayser hosiery is never weighted.

With the present day tendency of "outfits"—that is, the proper set of lingerie, hosiery and gloves for each occasion—it is highly necessary to THINK, as the Parisienne does, before one buys. It isn't at all wise to buy on impulse.

To do so means short satisfaction and quick disappointment.

My advice is to buy carefully, to look for the label. Do not be misled by pretty pictures or hysteric claims. Do not be guided by "feel" and "looks" alone. If your purchases bear the Kayser label you can be assured of both chic and economy, you can follow the successful plan of the Parisienne, who, we must all admit, sets the pace in having solved that most coveted secret of style, a proper sense of the fitness of things, an understanding of the delicate balance between the appropriate and the inappropriate.

The Kayser offerings, as announced in the adjoining columns, are well worth your inspection. I have seen them and I promise that you will be delighted.

SOCIETY WOMEN RIDE HORSES IN NOVEL RACE AT TAMPA

Mounts Obtained From Local Riding Academy Used, but Event Gives Spectators Enjoyment.

TAMPA, Fla., March 26.—Eight local society women who doffed the new spring styles yesterday to don the garb of a jockey and ride four furlongs in the fourth event which featured the racing program at Tampa Downs, near here, held the ear of society today.

"How was it like to be a jockey for a day?" the usual question came.

"Never was so thrilled," was the rejoinder.

It was a real race, even to the mutuel sales, the crowded stands alternating between waves of laughter and applause. Elimination of the drop of the barrier at the start was the only difference between it and the usual race. Instead, the horses got away at a walk and picked up speed as they cantered down the stretch.

Billy, pride of a local riding academy, flashed in to win for his rider, Miss Virginia Buford. The time was one minute. A half-length behind was Hal, mounted by Miss Adalbert Oberman. For the whole first stretch, Hal led, but Miss Buford saved ground on the turn. Starlight, ridden by Miss Pauline Jones, sped up toward the last but was only able to take third.

None of the horses is a thoroughbred. All belonged to the stable of a local riding academy, but the fair jockeys had been tutored for a week in the pointers of their role. They wore the regulation outfit, but chose to pick their own colors. These mingled on the track like a rainbow.

One rider came near losing her seat when a gust of wind lifted the headgear. She leaped wildly, however, and caught the errant cap out of the air and her mount missed not a stride.

POPE SPEAKS ON MIRACLES

Pontiff Declares Science, Instead of Denying, Proves Them.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, March 26.—Modern science confirms the reality of miracles, Pope Pius declared in a speech in the Hall of the Consistory, after reading a decree dealing with miracles performed by the Venerable Fournet, founder of the Order of Daughters of the Cross.

His Holiness stressed the importance of the fact that miracles, which constantly renew themselves in the church, have also acquired an important position in science; the Pontiff asserted, as it progresses, instead of denying miracles—as many through ignorance believe—sets them off in an ever-clearer light and by evermore convincing proof.

Floating Hospital for the Yukon.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 26.—Gov. George A. Parks of Alaska announced here today that a floating hospital to carry a physician and two nurses will be put in service this year along 4000 navigable miles of the Yukon River in the interior of Alaska and serve 5000 isolated natives and whites. "Throughout the district drained by the Yukon and its tributaries," Parks said, "we have only two doctors and three nurses."

Retiring Viceroy Says Farewell.

By the Associated Press.

DELHI, India, March 26. — The Earl of Reading, retiring Viceroy of India, delivered his farewell address to the Council of State and House of Assembly yesterday. His term expires April 3. He will be succeeded by Lord Irwin, who, before his elevation to the peerage, was E. L. Wood, Minister of Agriculture. Lord Reading said he hoped historians would chronicle the fact that the foundation of responsible self-government was laid during the last five years in India.

Panama Receives Draft of Treaty.

PANAMA, C. Z., March 26.—The draft of the new treaty between the United States and Panama has been received and will be discussed by a Cabinet Council immediately. WHERE TO BUY
MALLORY Soft Hats and Derbies are on sale at better hat shops. Watch local newspapers for announcements of merchants who feature Mallory Hats and ask for them by name.

HOW do the sun, wind and rain affect a cheap-and-shoddy hat? They rob it of its shape, color and lustre. A fine hat—a Mallory—resists the elements stubbornly; retains elegance permanently.

IT pays you well to pay enough for your hat to get a fine one—a Mallory. You take pride in it, and care of it, and compliments on it. And—it takes a long time before you will have to replace it.

FIND THE LABEL
MALLORY Soft Hats and Derbies bear the Mallory Label stamped in the crown and upon the sweatleather. It is important that you find the Mallory Label in the Hat you buy.

600 Strikers Routed by Police.

By the Associated Press.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 26.—Six hundred striking textile workers, converging in lines of 300 each from opposite directions, were routed by the clubs of the Clifton police. Five men were arrested charged with being disorderly. When the struggle between the strikers and the police was at its height three trucks from New York with a shipment of foodstuffs for the strike relief arrived. As the drivers attempted to flee from the scene of the riot they were arrested for speeding.

U. S. CONVICT LABOR BILL OPPOSED BY MISSOURIANS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Three Missourians appeared before the House Labor Committee yesterday afternoon in opposition to the Cooper convict labor bill which proposes to regulate the shipment and sale of "all goods, wares and merchandise manufactured, produced or mined, wholly or in part, by convicts or prisoners."

Former Lieut.-Gov. William R. Painter of Carrollton, as a representative of Gov. Baker, was the principal speaker for the Missouri delegation. The two other members were J. I. Burnett, State Superintendent of Industries, and Dr. Cortez Enloe, Director of the Department of Penal Institutions.

The bill, which was introduced in January by Representative John G. Cooper (Rep.) of Ohio, has the support of labor organizations and garment manufacturers' associations. Painter told the committee he was opposed to the bill because its enactment would render 1500 convicts idle and necessitate the scrapping of $150,000 worth of machinery. He emphasized the humanitarian aspect of the present system by stating that if the bill became a law, insanity would increase.

The bill does not specifically state the extent of the regulation it proposes, but merely declares that when convict-made goods are shipped from one state to another they become subject to the laws governing the sale of convict labor products in the state where they are received. Under the present system interstate shipments are not subject to state laws, except where public health questions and safety are involved.

SAYS HE WAS CHOSEN BY LOT TO KILL PRUSSIAN MINISTER

Man Under Arrest in Czecho-Slovakia Tells of Plot — Police Think Him Demented.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 26.—The Prussian Ministry of the Interior has sent a commissioner to Oderfort, Czecho-Slovakia to investigate the story of a youth under arrest there who said he had been designated by lot to assassinate the Prussian Minister of the Interior.

The youth is quoted as saying that he fled from Germany to avoid committing the crime and in fear of reprisals by a Nationalist organization, which had selected him to slay the Minister.

The Berlin police are inclined to scoff at the story, terming the youth demented.

A dispatch from Oderfort to the Zeitung Am Mittag describes the young man as Friedrich Gruschozyg, 26, born at Breslau. He said he was designated by the Breslau branch of the secret organization "consul" to assassinate Minister Severing. When three accomplices from Westphalia failed to meet him at Leobschuetz, near the Czecho-Slovakian frontier, he wrote a letter to the Breslau organization advising it of the fact.

Before mailing the letter, however, he became intoxicated and later found the missive had been stolen from him. Fearing that it would incriminate him, he fled across the border, hoping to reach Hungary.

OLIVER LODGE IN CONFLICT OVER VIEWS ON SPIRITUALISM

Says Certain Co-Members of Royal Society Want Him to Resign and He Will Heed Request.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 26.—The belief of Sir Oliver Lodge, in spiritualism and communication with the dead has brought him into conflict with some of his comembers of the Royal Society, the foremost of the British learned associations.

In a letter to the Scientific Journal Nature, Sir Oliver says that Prof. Armstrong virtually has called for his resignation "because I have gradually reached a conviction on a subject of age-long debate and uncertainty and have said so."

Sir Oliver declares in effect that he attaches greater importance to truth than to membership in the society.

"When such a request is made officially," he adds, "I will resign without causing trouble. But I will not refrain from stating what I firmly believe the truth as demonstrated by clear and repeated evidence. * * * It is madness to be false to the truth, no matter what the penalty be."

NEW WHISTLING RULE ON KATY

Engineers Required to Give Double Warning at Crossings.

In an effort to reduce the number of grade-crossing accidents on its lines, the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad has adopted a rule requiring locomotive engineers to sound the whistle twice when approaching crossings, instead of once as is required by law in most states. Tests have shown that engineers on a 190-mile run are required to sound the whistle 1800 times under this plan.

The signals are sounded at 80 rods and again at 500 feet from all grade crossings. Whistles on Katy engines have been removed from the rear of the cab to the front with good results. Officials of the railroad assert that the rule requiring the second warning has resulted in several accidents being averted.

Three Stabbed in Strikers' Raid.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Three men were stabbed and four shots were fired in a general fight in the lower East Side when 15 striking fur workers raided the home of William Levy, 55 years old, who they charged was secretly doing his work at home instead of co-operating with them. When the word of the fight reached the police, two patrol wagons were sent to the scene. They found Levy, his wife and son, and two men trying to beat back a mob, armed with clubs, from the door of their tenement. Twelve of the invaders were arrested.

NEW PLAN TO FINANCE OSAGE POWER PROJECT

Proposal Before State Service Body to Issue $20,930,000 in Securities.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—An application for approval of a new plan of financing construction of a proposed hydro-electric power plant on the Osage River near Bagnell, Mo., involving issuance of $20,931,000 in securities of two allied companies, the Missouri Hydro-Electric Power Co. and the Super-power Corporation of Missouri, is being heard this afternoon by the State Public Service Commission.

The plan now before the commission was substituted for one involving about $19,900,000 in securities, which was filed with the commission last December, but later withdrawn. The new plan involves several changes in the financial structure and the method of issuing securities. The commission, Jan. 27, last, granted the Missouri Hydro-Electric Power Co. a certificate of public convenience and necessity to construct and operate the dam.

The estimated cost of the proposed dam and storage reservoir, 100 miles in length, is placed at $15,345,000, and cost of an auxiliary steam-driven electric generating plant, the company also proposes to build, is estimated at $1,350,000. Other financing items, including $2,310,000 for interest charges in the first three years, and a 10 per cent discount on the bonds and notes to be issued, amounting to $1,900,000, run the financing estimate up to $20,905,000.

Details of Scheme.

The Missouri Hydro-Electric Power Co., headed by Walter Cravens, president of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, is carrying on the preliminary work, and it later will be supplanted by the Super-power corporation, also formed by Cravens and his associates.

The financing scheme provides for issuance of $14,000,000 in 6 per cent mortgage bonds, maturing in 40 years, $5,000,000 in 7 per cent debentures, maturing in 10 years; $1,000,000 in 7 per cent preferred stock; 20,000 shares of no par value common stock of the Super-power Corporation, assigned a value of $200,000, and 200,000 shares of no par value common stock of the Missouri Hydro-Electric Power Co., assigned a value of $731,047. The $19,000,000 in bonds and debentures are to be sold at 90.

The 200,000 shares of common stock of the Missouri Hydro-electric Power Co. is to be issued to Cravens and his associates, the application states, in return for 20,000 shares of the common stock of the Super-power Corporation, and in repayment for money advanced by them for preliminary costs and construction, said to total $1,196,384.

$730,000 Spent Thus Far.

The application states that Cravens and his associates then are to exchange the Missouri Hydro-electric common stock received by them, for the sole authorized capital stock of 200,000 shares of common stock of the Super-power Corporation. The promoters are to issue 55,000 shares of the stock to the banking group that will sell the $5,000,000 in debentures.

Approximately $731,047 has been expended on the project thus far, it is stated. This includes $200,000 for financing, $173,000 for preliminary construction and other items of engineering and similar expense.

A financial report presented with the application stated the company has acquired 30,000 of 70,000 acres of land on which it holds options in Miller, Cole, Camden, Morgan, Benton, St. Clair, Henry and Osage Counties. An investment of $2,620,125 is claimed. The report shows only $30,522 expended for land, and $1,423,740 is reported due on miscellaneous accounts and land purchases.

CITIZENS' CAMP AT BARRACKS TO TRAIN 1725 THIS SUMMER

Arrangements have been made to train 1725 young men at the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Jefferson Barracks this summer as part of the War Department's nationwide plan for the schooling of citizen soldiery. The camp will be conducted at the barracks from July 8 to Aug. 6.

Included in the enrollment this year will be 125 advanced artillery students who will close their training with a hike to Arcadia, 85 miles south of St. Louis, where they will fire on the range with Battery "C" of the Fourteenth Field Artillery, a regular outfit stationed at the barracks.

The other students at camp will get infantry training in the basic, red, white and blue courses. Students who complete all four courses in successive years are eligible for reserve commissions. Arrangements for the camp are in charge of Maj. Charles T. Smart of Jefferson Barracks. Men between the ages of 17 and 24 are eligible for the training. Information about the camps may be obtained at the old Customs House, army recruiting stations or any high school.

Boy Accidentally Slain by Brother.

By the Associated Press.

DIXON, Ill., March 26.—Francis, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jeanblanc, farmers, is dead as the result of being accidentally shot by his brother, Leroy.

Wife of Slayer Seeks Divorce.

Mrs. Bessie I. Williams of East St. Louis has filed suit in the St. Clair County Circuit Court to divorce Floyd C. Williams, who is now serving a life term in the Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Chester, Ill., for the murder of Detective Henry Bodendieck of the East St. Louis Police Department, April 3, 1924. They were married Aug. 18, 1923, and separated Jan. 10, 1924.

Abounding health in this amazing oil

COD-LIVER oil has always been a source of astonishment to physicians. Experience proved that it had surprising medicinal values. It protected children against rickets; it aided convalescents to recover in astonishingly short periods of time; it increased resistance to disease; it aided the growth of bones and teeth in children; it was of enormous value in the treatment of tuberculosis; it gave new vigor to people everywhere.

Once it was thought that this high therapeutic value was due to the presence of two acids which were found in cod-liver oil, but not in other foods. But this explanation never seemed quite adequate.

Then scientists discovered vitamins. Experiments proved that these mysterious elements were almost of the essence of life itself—without a sufficient supply of them people inevitably fell ill, and, lacking them entirely, no human could live. And good cod-liver oil was found to be the richest known source of the important fat-soluble vitamins! That was the explanation of its amazing properties.

The discovery explained, too, why different oils on the market varied in therapeutic value. For it was found that the vitamins are easily lost from cod-liver oil in the process of preparing, packaging and transporting the oil.

The first to solve this difficulty has been E. R. Squibb & Sons. Scientists in the Squibb Laboratories perfected an exclusive process which protects the oil against loss of vitamins to a greater degree than has been possible before. That process also makes Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil more palatable. So it is best to insist upon Squibb's. At druggists.

FATHER AND BROTHER SEE YOUTH EXECUTED

Parent Proud That Ted L. Coggeshall Goes to Death Like a Man.

By the Associated Press.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 26.—Athough Ted L. Coggeshall of Clyaton, Ill., and Floyd McClelland of Brooklyn, N. Y. from the death chair yesterday denied they were guilty of murdering Prof. W. C. Wright, Putnam County School Superintendent, Mrs. W. T. Rigby, Macon welfare worker, said both had confessed to her. Mrs. Bigby declared Coggeshall told her he had "continued to state that he was innocent because he did not want to hurt his own mother and father who believed that he was not guilty."

Mrs. Bigby visited both Coggeshall and McClelland shortly before their execution and had visited them daily in the jail at Macon for some months.

The father and brother of Coggeshall witnessed his execution. Bitterness marked the appearance of the elder Coggeshall in the death chamber.

"The State of Georgia will regret this the longest day it lives," he said as he turned away after bidding his son farewell, and expressing pride that the youth was "dying like a man." The youth's voice was clear and strong as he bade both his father and brother goodby. He flipped away a cigarette to permit guards to tie his hands and turned toward newspapermen ranged along the white walls of the death chamber.

"Pease say for me at my death, gentlemen," he said, "that I am innocent."

"You call this civilization," the father cried, struggling to reach the chair. "Let me take his place." But guards stepped between him and his son.

"Goodby, dad, don't worry, we will meet again," said young Coggeshall.

"Yes, my son," the father said. "We'll meet again and we will hunt and fish together again, but you will never meet any of these people. Another place will be provided for them."

TORNADO RAZES SCHOOL WALL; TEACHER KEEPS PUPILS SAFE

Principal at Orange, Tex., Calms 300 Children With Talk Until After Storm Passes.

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, Tex., March 26.—A modest gray-haired teacher was the hero of this section of Texas today.

Through the thoughtfulness of Principal P. N. Powell of the Orange Field School, more than 300 pupils escaped injury in a tornado yesterday that wrecked 125 derricks in the Orange Oil Field and did damage estimated at $1,000,000.

When he saw the storm approaching he ordered all of the pupils into the auditorium. There he warned them against any outcry and cautioned them not to make any move that would start a panic. He talked to them calmly while the storm raged outside. When the noise of the tornado became so great that he could not make himself heard he walked up and down the aisles, stopping to allay the fears of those who seemed most frightened.

The children appeared to sense the situation and remained quiet. Even when one wall of the two-story brick building was blown away, they remained in their seats and not an outcry was heard. Through it all, Powell was master of the situation and not a child was hurt in any way.

Glenn Keown, 24 years old, an oil field worker, was killed and five other persons were injured in the tornado. Scores of residences were unroofed.

As the forest of derricks tumbled, flowing wells began to spout oil into the air and the high winds carried it far over the field. Soon the landscape resembled a lake of oil. Work of capping the wells was well under way today.

Wood Hauler Inherits $10,500.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., March 26.—Fred Highmith, 17 years old, son of W. A. Highmith, has been notified that he had inherited $10,500 by the death of his grandfather, Isaac Boyd, an Olney, Ill., oil man and farmer. The boy makes his living hauling wood in Poplar Bluff.

MAIL LESSONS MAKE CONVICT AN ENGINEER

Wisconsin Prisoner Completes Electrical Studies—Invents and Patents Signboard.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., March 26.—Despite the labors that keep prisoners busy, one convict in the State penitentiary at Waupun has become an electrical engineer and inventor, with the aid of a University of Wisconsin correspondence course. The story of the convict, who will be released from the penitentiary on May 28, is told by the university extension division. Five years ago he did not know even the elements of arithmetic. When released, he plans to become an electrical contractor.

The prisoner's mastery of a large field of electrical engineering and his invention of an electric sign and flasher, which he has patented, is a result of determination. Never idle during the day, the prisoners at Waupun, if they desire to study, must do it in their cells at night and on Sunday. They have to work overtime to earn the money to pay for the course.

Several years ago the man in this case attempted a burglary in Milwaukee. Encountering opposition, he attempted assault upon a citizen and was sentenced to Waupun.

He was devoting his time in prison to working, eating, sleeping—the ordinary routine. Some of the prisoners, however, were engaged in studying by correspondence, and then persuaded him to take a course, too. Half-heartedly he began a course in arithmetic. Finishing that, he began a course in algebra and completed it. Then he took the course in electrical engineering mathematics.

Encouraged by his success thus far he began a course in electrical magnetism and electricity. He made high grades in examinations, and continued studying electrical engineering, taking courses in alternating currents and the theory and operation of direct current machinery.

Finding that he needed still more mathematics in order to understand the field, he registered for calculus. Then he took such courses as electric power transmission, alternating current machinery, and electrical central station distribution systems.

Recently he discontinued his formal study and began working on an electric sign and flasher, a device in which the electric circuits are opened and closed so as to illuminate outline figures on a signboard. The device makes use of some of the principles used in weaving figures into cloth, and was inspired by an apprenticeship the prisoner once had served in the textile industry. He is now working on two other devices which he believes can be used in the hosiery industry.

In a few weeks the prisoner will be released. He plans to come immediately to Madison to meet Prof. C. M. Jansky and others of his instructors whom he has known only through correspondence and to inspect the university.

LEADER OF ROBBERS WOULD CONFESS TO FREE HIS WIFE

Suspect in Four Murders and Thefts of $1,000,000 Promises to Tell Startling Story.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Promising to tell a story that would startle New York, Richard Reese Whittemore of Baltimore, leader of a gang implicated in at least four murders and in robbers totaling $1,000,000, today sought freedom for his wife, "The Tiger Girl," indicted for a holdup of her own. Weakened by two confessions, the six men under arrest in one of the most highly organized bands ever captured, have begun to talk, Whittemore hitherto defiant, being the latest to "crack."

"If they will release my wife, turn her out on the street, I'll startle New York with what I can tell," he says. "I'll give up the works and astonish the city!"

District Attorney Banton said he would give consideration to the request provided Whittemore would give definite information on half a dozen recent robberies in which $830,000 in cash and jewelry was stolen. The system outlined by Anthony Paladino, one of the gang, in a confession Wednesday named the jewelers through whom the gems were sold. Police today were making intensive search for these men, several of whom have been regarded as respectable merchants.

Baltimore seeks Whittemore for the murder of a prison guard and Buffalo wants him for the murder of two bank guards in a $93,000 holdup. Where he will be tried is yet to be determined.

Another gang of robbers, which like the Whittemore mob, spent lavishly in night clubs, also was in custody today. Six youths and three girls were held for a series of robberies in small shops. Against five of the youths are homicide charges. The youths, all dressed in the height of fashion, and the girls, one of them a bride of three months, make their headquarters in a cabaret in the Negro section of Harlem. All are in their 'teens.

U. S. WAR CLAIMS DISCUSSED

Borah Says Britain Will Pay Some Damages to Commerce.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—After conferring with Secretary Kellogg, Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee declared that some of the American claims against Great Britain growing out of British war orders affecting commerce would be paid, but that others should never be paid.

Borah declared that there was no foundation for statements that claims in question were taken into consideration in the settlement of the British debt to the United States and added that information regarding them asked for in a resolution introduced by him recently was being prepared in the State Department. Some of the claims he said would have to be arbitrated.

Seeks Divorce After Remarriage.

Henry L. Hackmann yesterday filed suit to divorce Mrs. Lillian M. Hackmann, 2305A Nebraska avenue, to whom he was remarried Sept. 8, 1924, after she had obtained a divorce Jan. 17, 1923. He alleges that after the remarriage his wife stated her only consideration in making up with him was on account of their child, now 9 years old. He also alleges she went out unaccompanied by him at night and that she declared she would do as she pleased. They were first married 12 years ago.

A. F. OF L. CAMPAIGN AGAINST INJUNCTIONS IN STRIKES

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 26.—A legislative campaign by the American Federation of Labor against the use of injunctions in labor disputes, which it was announced would be carried into every State capital in the country was begun here today, Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenburg, Democrat, New York, introduced a bill defining combinations and conspiracies in trade and labor disputes and proposing that issuance of injunctions be prohibited in industrial controversies.

The bill, according to Hackenburg, is intended to "end the present abuse of discretionary injunction power by courts to inject themselves into labor disputes, arbitrarily and without hearing."

Briefly reviewing the history of labor's campaign against issuance of this type of injunctions, the Assemblyman declared that the power first was employed after the railroad strikes in the latter part of the nineteenth century and that since the American Federation of Labor has conducted a fight in every State and at Washington against the injunction power.

The New York Legislature, he added, is the first in which the present bill has been introduced but that similar action will follow this year or next in Legislatures of all the States.

SUGGESTS CHANGES IN MISSOURI HUNTING SEASON

Game Commissioner to Propose New Open Dates on Ducks to Federal Officials.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—Changes in the season for hunting duck and geese in Missouri will be recommended to the Federal Government soon by Kieth McCanse, State Fish and Game Commissioner.

According to Commissioner McCanse, the Federal statutes allows three and a half months' open season on migratory water fowls, which, in Missouri, runs from Sept. 15 to Dec. 31. The Game Commissioner will ask that the season in Missouri run from Oct. 1 to Jan. 15; or from Oct. 15 to Jan. 31, he said.

He will be governed in his recommendations to the Government for the change by a concensus of Missouri hunters, McCanse said.

CRIMEAN WAR VETERAN IS 125

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 26.—William Smith of Dromara, County Down, Ireland, has celebrated his 125th birthday. He was middle-aged according to ordinary standards when he went to fight in the Crimean War. His most strenuous exercise now is walking a mile each Friday to receive his pension.

Ireland has produced many long-lived persons, but women in the British Isles as a whole are much longer lived than men. There are about 10 times as many woman centenarians as males, but even the oldest of them are young, compared to Thomas Carn, a Londoner, who died Jan. 28, 1588, at the age of 207. At least this is a record said to have been inscribed in the parish register of St. Leonard's Church, Shoreditch, which the great fire of London destroyed.

REGISTRATION RULING ISSUED

Minors Who Will Have Come of Age Before Election Eligible.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—A resident of Missouri who is not 21 years at the time of a registration for an election but who will attain that age before election day has the right to register as a voter, if he has other qualifications required by law, Attorney-General Gentry ruled in an opinion issued today to the Prosecuting Attorney of Cape Girardeau County.

The Attorney-General held that the right to vote cannot be destroyed or interfered with, by the Legislature although the Legislature is authorized to impose reasonable restrictions, such as registration of voters. However, these restrictions cannot deprive a citizen of the right to vote.

FRISCO FARE RISE SUSPENDED

Proposed Increase for Suburbs to be Investigated.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—Proposed increased commutation fares to suburbs of St. Louis, between Gratiot and Meramec Highlands, on the Frisco Railway, were suspended for 120 days today by the Public Service Commission. They were to have become effective next Thursday.

The commission will inquire whether the increase would be reasonable, but has not set a date for the hearing. The St. Louis County Protective League is opposing the higher fares.

AUTO INSURANCE FIRM FAILS

Court Orders Liquidation of Great American Mutual Co.

COLUMBUS, O., March 26.—Investigation of the financial standing of the Great American Mutual Indemnity Co. of Mansfield, O., has culminated in an order of the Franklin County Court of Appeals placing the company in the hands of Harry L. Conn, State Insurance Superintendent, for liquidation.

Whether the policyholders will have full protection is not known and they were advised to cancel their policies and to obtain coverage in a sound company in a statement issued by Conn. The company is one of the largest automobile insurance companies in this part of the country.

CLAIMS ON RECLUSE'S ESTATE

CHICAGO, March 26.—A fourth claimant to a share in the $50,000 estate of Mrs. Mary Grilley Sterling French was disclosed when the name of Walter Danielson of Lincoln, Neb., who claims to be a son, was entered before Probate Judge Elliott.

Discovery of a will bequeathing the estate to a neighbor, Mrs. Harriet Dahlman, after Mrs. French, a recluse, died in seeming poverty Jan. 8, brought widespread claims of kinship and charges that the purported will was a forgery. Shelton Cook of Denver, Col., says he is a nephew, while Mrs. Elizabeth J. Shugru and Mrs. Margaret McKay of Quincy, Mass., say they are cousins.

JURY DOESN'T INDICT SLAYER

The grand jury yesterday voted a "no true bill" relieving William Ely Taylor, of 1225A Dillon street, of charges growing out of the killing of Vinson Marcasol, March 17. Taylor had been ordered held for homicide in the Coroner's verdict.

Taylor shot Marcasol, who boarded in the flat downstairs, after reproving him for improper advances the latter had made to Mrs. Taylor. Taylor said Marcasol was about to strike him, so he drew his revolver. In the scuffle the weapon was discharged accidentally, he declared.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Hugh Gibson, Minister to Switzerland, at the head of the American delegation to the preliminary arms conference to be held at Geneva beginning May 18, will sail from New York March 30.

He is prepared through instructions worked out here to play the role of a "listener-in" to a large extent, except when opportunities arise for the presentation of American ideas on the disarmament question.

CRITICISM OF MRS. PINCHOT

Church Worker Says She Advocated Sunday Fishing.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26.—Criticism for trying to use her influence in favor of Sunday fishing was made today of Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gov. Pinchot, by speakers at the annual Philadelphia Methodist Episcopal Church Conference.

"When a Sunday fishing bill was before the Legislature," said the Rev. Dr. T. T. Muchler, secretary of the Sabbath Observance Association, in his report to the conference, "Mrs. Pinchot wrote to members of the Legislature and by intimation promised all the influence in her power to obtain passage of the bill, which would have made Sunday fishing legal."

MONKEY ESCAPES; GETS IN ZOO

After Night of Adventures, Animal Back in Own Cage.

Harold, a small monkey which escaped Tuesday afternoon from the home of his master in south St. Louis and after being recaptured made another break for liberty in Forest Park, is back in a cage again and glad to be there.

Driven by lack of forage in Forest Park to look for food near the bird cage the monkey was captured by two Zoo keepers after a night in the chilly breezes and was locked up with the other monkeys in the warm monkey house. John H. Barry, 19 years old, of 3954 Shenandoah avenue, owner of Harold, will take the monkey home.

TOKIO, March 26.—The Prince Regent has commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence passed on a Korean and his Japanese wife for plotting against the throne in 1922, and attempting to import bombs from Shanghai. The commutation was granted on grounds of humanity and to show that Japan has no feelings against Koreans.

Uses Resinol for boils

First application gives relief

Paintsville, Ky., June 30:—"I had five boils on my neck, and after reading of your treatment for them I used it as directed I was very much surprised on waking the next morning to find that they were not a bit sore and the swelling was going down fast. I will know the next time what to get when I have sores of this kind.

I must say that your Resinol Soap is a wonder for cleansing the hands and face. I am a painter, and at the end of my day's work I use your soap. It makes my hands and face whiter than any other soap has been able to do so far." (Signed) Chester E. Vanhoose, 341 East Third St.

After Severe Illness Gain Strength Quickly The New Pleasant Way

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the ill-smelling, horrible tasting stomach-upsetting oil itself, so nowadays, up-to-date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil, and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness, and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Enderle Drug Co., or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good, healthy solid flesh, and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Your Home City

ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS—your home city—is making remarkable progress. The city now is in the midst of its greatest development. Its vast expansion and aggressive spirit have caused it to be pointed out as one of the really progressive cities of the nation.

There are reasons why St. Louis has been leaping forward. It has central location, industrial advantages, shipping facilities and excellent home conditions. And it has the Municipal Advertising Campaign, which for six years has been telling outsiders of these resources. This advertising has been an immense success.

196 New Industries

One hundred and ninety-six (196) new industries have come to St. Louis in the last six years, 53 of which are directly traceable to the advertising campaign. This results in more payrolls, more population, increased business, and benefits every property owner and taxpayer in the city.

When the Municipal Advertising Campaign started six years ago, St. Louis needed industries in 16 different lines of business to make it a well-balanced industrial center. Factories have been brought here in 12 of these lines. St. Louis' greatest strength lies in this diversity of its industries. No depression in one branch of manufacture can seriously affect its prosperity.

The Municipal Advertising Fund is now being raised for the coming year. Contributors may well feel proud of their part in developing a greater St. Louis. Every business house should aid this splendid work by sending their subscriptions to the address below.

COMPOSERS OF U. S. OPERA INCREASING

Chicago Society Has Awarded 25 Medals to Native Writers, Including Isaac Van Grove.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—The business of writing American operas is not such an infant industry as one might be led to suppose.

This has been brought to light by an announcement of the American Opera Society of Chicago that 25 native composers of operatic scores already have received the David Bispham Memorial medal for American grand opera, of either the tragic or comic variety.

In addition to talent and technique, requisites for the award include American citizenship, and a libretto in the English language.

Seven Illinois composers received the award this month, while four had won the honor previously. Outside of Illinois, the Bispham medal has been awarded to 14 musicians.

Purposes Set Forth.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick is honorary chairman of the American Opera Society, which was founded and is now directed by Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, well known American composer. Its purposes are set forth:

"To encourage the use of our native language in opera and concert in English-speaking countries by recommendation of adequate translations; to encourage the performance of American opera or music-drama; and to give just recognition to the American composer of ability.

"To award the David Bispham Memorial Medal in Chicago whenever possible; or elsewhere, when satisfactory information of an American opera has been obtained by the society."

New Awards Made.

The seven Illinois composers who received the award this month and the work that brought them recognition, follow:

Mrs. Afired Burrit Andrews—"Guido Ferranti," given with success by the Aborn Opera company at the Chicago Auditorium.

Charles Carlson—"Phelias."

Hamilton Forrest—"Yzdra," dedicated to Mary Garden.

Henry Purmont Eames—"Priscilla," comic opera.

William Lester—"Everyman," choral opera.

Previous Illinois awards were to J. Lewis Browne, "The Corsica Girl"; Simon Bucharoff, "Sahkara"; Isaac Van Grove, "The Music Robber"; Mrs. Freer, "The Legend of the Piper," and Massimilliano, "The Court Jester."

Other composers who have received the medal are Charles Wakefield Cadman, Victor Herbert, W. Frank Harling, Aldo Franchetti, Carter, De Leone, Stearns, Hugo, Lyford, Patterson, Stewart, Hadley, Converse and McCoy.

Operas by Harling and Franchetti were presented last season by the Chicago Civic Opera Company, which nevt season will produce Cadman's "The Witch of Salem."

TURKISH WOMEN ADVISED AGAINST SOLDIERLY STRIDE

Daily Paper Prints Rules for Walking, Including "Take Dainty Steps."

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 26.—Turkish women are exhorted by the Constantinople daily, The Republic, not to adopt amidst all their new Western practices, the Anglo-Saxon woman's "soldierly stride." The sheet devoted to women, a recent innovation of this newspaper, lays down the following rules as to the proper method of walking for the ladylike:

"Do not drag your feet, but slide them gently along the pavement. Do not waddle from side to side or move your shoulders or swing your arms. Take short, dainty steps—a long stride is unlovely in woman—and above all, don't rush. Keep your eyes on a high point directly ahead of you and appear to see nothing."

Although the older generations of Turkish women is not likely to infringe upon any of these precepts, the majority of younger women have declared open war on the traditional Oriental method of strollling languorously through life. One of the most startling manifestations is the cross country race now being organized by the girls' section of the Galata Serai Sports Club of Constantinople. It will be the first event of the kind for Moslem girls in the history or Turkey."

GAG FOR ITALIAN DEPUTIES

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 26.—Members of the Chamber of Deputies who try expressing their individualities against the dictates of the Party Directorate are either suspended from the party for indeterminate periods or expelled outright, a punishment which usually means the end of their political careers.

No fewer than seven Deputies have been expelled and three suspended as a result of Secretary Farinacci's campaign to weed out party members who insist on having opinions of their own. They are: Expelled: Edoardo Torre, Massimo Rocca, Gio Batta Rebora, Battista Boido, Tommaso Benassi, Aldo Oviglio and Michele Tersaghi; suspended, Pietro Bolson, Pietro Pisanti and Amadeo Belloni.

CHEMISE GREAT CATHERINE GAVE ORLOFF IS ON DISPLAY

Courtier's Inscription on It Is "From Dearest and Most Devoted of Wives.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 26.—With the revival of interest in Catherine the Great, the soviet authorities have placed on exhibition in the Moscow and Leningrad museums a number of heirlooms, personal clothing, jewels, books and love letters of Russia's gayest and greatest woman sovereign.

The most striking and unconventional is a pink silk chemise which Catherine presented her lover, Count Orloff, as a keepsake. This is shown in Moscow's principal museums and bears the inscription, in Orloff's own handwriting:

"From the dearest and most devoted of wives."

Most Easily Digested

This table proves that thoroughly ripened BANANAS are one of the easiest foods to digest in the whole dietary.

That eminent dietician, Dr. Arnold Lorand of Carlsbad, declares that "a perfectly ripe banana melts in the mouth, without any actual mastication. Two or three large bananas may be eaten without there being any feeling of discomfort in the stomach."

MORAL—Serve them when they're ripe—when the skin is spotted.

UTILIZE RURAL LIFE AS PLOT FOR STORIES

Writers' Trend and Its Significance for Sociologists Theme of a Report.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis.—Novels of rural life are studies in sociology and reflect a new interest in the farm problem. This is the finding of Mary Katharine Reely, of the University of Wisconsin, in a report on the country town in its rural relationships, published in the current issue of the Wisconsin Library Bulletin.

American fiction depicting farm life has the same significance for the rural sociologist, she states, as the novels of Walter Scott have for the historian.

"For the realistic novelist is not concerned with inventing pretty and entertaining fictions," Miss Reely writes. "He is concerned with setting down in the form of a pattern or story some truth as he has been and felt it in his lifetime.

New Note of Hopefulness.

"There is a new note of hopefulness divorced from sentimentality in farm fiction. Not that it replaces the old attitude of pessimism. The two attitudes will always be represented. The city-minded will always prefer the city and the country-minded the country. Fortunately the country-minded are beginning to write novels.

"There are three tendencies today sufficiently marked to deserve attention. The first is interest in our immediate past, an interest which has produced a new type of realistic-historical novel.

Interest in Farm Problems.

"There is a new interest in the farm problem. Rural life no longer serves as a mere background for a story. Its problems form the stuff of the story itself.

"A third tendency is toward the uneventful chronicle of life as it is lived without the introduction of fictitious plot interest."

While the life of the Middle West continues to be primarily agricultural, the typical novel of the Middle West will be the novel of rural life, Miss Reely concludes.

The rural novel depicts such social institutions as the school, the church, community life, social changes, town and country relations and leadership, her study revealed.

PRINCESS BEING EDUCATED IN EVERY DAY HOUSEHOLD DUTIES

Queen Marie of Rumania Training Iliana in Practical Ways of An American Girl.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, March 26.—Queen Marie is educating Princess Iliana in the simple and practical ways of an American girl. Iliana is only 17—and in the Queen's eyes is wholly unprepared for the duties of matrimonial life, or for the tasks of a responsible Queen or reigning Princess.

"First of all," said Queen Marie, "a good Queen must be a good housekeeper. And so I am training Iliana not only in the ordinary educational subjects, but in the useful arts and in the everyday duties of the household. Until that is finished, I do not desire her to marry."

Victoria's Letters Show That in 1869 She Gave Edict Regarding Mustaches.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 26.—Queen Victoria's letters indicate that in spite of her grief over the death of Prince Albert and her refusal to have anything to do with public ceremonies for many years she found time to go into official matters very thoroughly and even decided how the navy men should wear their whiskers.

In June, 1869, orders were issued at her command that naval men were not to wear mustaches unless they also wore beards.

EVIDENTLY Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Americans, was pretty well pleased with the makeup of his club during the 1925 campaign. For, in addition to Bill Wambsganss, taken from the Red Sox by the waiver route, few newcomers are striving for positions. Included in this list are at least two athletes who are expected to help the team.

One of these players is Joe Pate, a veteran pitcher from the Fort Worth club of the Texas League, while the other is Jimmy Fox, a young catcher recalled from Providence of the International. Fox was behind the bat for the Mackmen in several clashes last fall.

By the Associated Press.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 26.—Harry Stutts, jockey, who was ruled off the turf last week by the Kentucky Racing Commission, and his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Stutts, were named in court actions filed here yesterday.

In a cross complaint to a divorce petition recently filed by Stutts, Mrs. Anna Stutts of Venice, Cal., charged the jockey with desertion and asked for alimony of $1000 a month and $5000 attorney fees.

Mrs. Myrtle Stutts is named defendant in a $16,000 suit filed by Mrs. Lizzie Baker, who charges Mrs. Stutts alienated the affections of her husband, F. E. Baker.

Mrs. Harry Stutts states in her petition that Stutts' earning capacity a year was $36,000.

Stutts was a newspaper boy here until 1909 when he attracted the attention of "Snapper" Garrison, who took charge of him, developing him into a prominent rider.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—In addition to the jockeys, owners and trainers ruled off the turf by the Kentucky Racing Commission last week from 15 to 20 other prominent individuals will be absent from the Kentucky plants when the spring season opens at Lexington, April 24, the Chicago Tribune quotes "a man high up in Kentucky racing affairs" as saying today. His name was not mentioned but he is said to have been one of the first to urge the appointment of Stewart S. C. Nuckols to head the Investigation Committee which figured in the recent scandal exposure.

It is unlikely that formal action will be taken in these cases but that the applications for riding and owners' and trainers' licenses will be quietly pigeonholed, says the Tribune.

The newspaper further quotes their informant as declaring that the Coney Island meeting near Cincinnati is under close scrutiny.

STRIBLING BRUSHES ASIDE A LEFT JAB AND PUNISHES SLATTERY

Georgian Has Jimmy Close to Kayo in Seventh

Stamina and Strength of Stribling Amazing to Critics.

By Hype Igoe.
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The Georgia Peach got down under the wire first. Billy Stribling received the decision over Jim Slattery of Buffalo at the end of 10 rounds at Madison Square Garden last night. The Peach didn't win by a mile—indeed, many thought that the worst that Jimmy should have suffered was a draw. However, the man with the tally sheets scored a victory for the Georgian. The vote of the officials was 2 to 1 for the Peach.

It was a fast bout, but as rough as any that has been uncorked hereabou's in moons.

Slattery tried neat and natty boxing, but Stribling would have none of that. The Peach wanted to make it as rough as possible and he outdid himself.

He fairly flogged Jimmy all over the lot when he elected to cut loose. There wasn't any question as to who was the stronger boy when Stribling rushed and flogged. He was like a young bull, and "Slats" was pitifully weak against such tactics. When it came to nice Sunday school fisticuffs, the orthodox, Slattery put it all over Stribling. He was under a handicap of nearly 10 pounds in weight, and when Strib charged and bumped and mauled those 10 pounds seemed to swell to 50.

Cotton Ball in Tiger's Claws.

Jimmy was cotton ball in the tiger's paws, that's all. For the most part of the bout "Slats" did the leading, not much to brag about, but leads just the same. They were usually light left jabs. William didn't relish being poked in his handsome face, and when stung he would cut loose and at times got fits.

It was on these occasions that Stribling proved he was the better fighter of the two, in sheer power and punch at least. Slattery has not come back. That was as plain as the nose on your face. Jimmy had no punch at all. He didn't land more than a half a dozen righthanders, his best wallops in all the fight, and Stribling was always rolling and wriggling out of harm's way, so that at no time was he in real danger.

On the other hand, Slattery was almost out in the seventh. He crumpled like a tea rose under one's heels when Stribling charged in full fury. Once he hung over the middle ropes limp as a dishrag and he would have been flogged out of the ring entirely had not Stribling stepped back to allow him to regain his stance.

Jimmy's Stamina Gone.

The upshot of it is this: Jimmy Slattery can't stand the gaff as he once did. He collapses under the first hard punch that reaches him, whereas he once took the hardest and laughed them off.

Slattery needs more of the mountains, that's plain.

Stribling is the same rough giant, a truly remarkable figure in fisticuffs. His endurance is amazing. He seems never to tire. I don't think he has improved in boxing. He has grown stronger and strength is what he banks on.

The Peach tipped the beam at 173 and Slattery at 163½ pounds when they came to Madison Square Garden to weigh in at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Slattery surprised the onlookers with his general appearance. There had been talk of his being as heavy as 168.

There were 18,250 persons present for a gross of $86,275.20.

Rickard Probably Will Match Tunney and Stribling for May 11

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.

TODAY Gene Tunney again looms before Stribling and Billy Gibson, manager of the American light heavyweight champion, says that the match can be made by a promoter of standing at any time.

"Indoors or out suits me," said Gibson, "and I am not demanding $50,000 for Tunney's appearance as reported."

The battle may be signed for May 11 at the Garden or may await the opening of the baseball parks. It is more than probable that Tex Rickard will be behind it this time.

Texas U. Team Pounds Dyer, but Cards Win, 14-8

By William J. McGoogan.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WACO, Tex., March 26.—With 12 successive victories to their credit, the Cardinal regulars arrived here this morning to meet Del Pratt's Waco Cubs. Hornsby's men have not lost a game on the spring trip. They have played only minor league clubs and a college nine.

Against the University of Texas at Austin yesterday the Cardinals turned in their worst performance. Either the big leaguers thought the game was in before it started or the wretched exhibition of the rah-rahs caused them to become infected with the same virus. In any event, it looked for a time as though anything might happen. Finally the game was called at the end of the eighth inning, with the Cards on the long end of a 14-to-8 score.

Eddie Dyer Pounded.

Eddie Dyer, who, in his school days at Rice Institute, was a sworn enemy of the Longhorns, was brought over from the second team at San Antonio to pitch against his ancient rivals, but had nothing. Dyer was belted for eight hits and eight runs during the five innings he worked, and although his team scored eight runs for him in the three innings it wasn't enough. Hornsby put Keen in the box at the start of the sixth inning, and Vic ended the game without much trouble. He was found for a couple of hits and walked a man, but was never in danger of being scored upon. He fanned four batters in the three innings he worked.

The collegians got as many hits as did the Cardinals, each team collecting 10 safeties. Two Texans hit home runs over the left-field fence off Dyer in the first inning. The barrier was within putting distance of third base. Hornsby's men thought they were going to establish a home record when they saw how close behind third base was the wall, but only O'Farrell and Bottomley were able to find the mark.

It is hard to imagine a hotter place to spend the summer than the Cardinal dugout if the team is going badly, for Hornsby is not a manager to pass lightly over errors especially if they are caused by poor headwork. Blades and Douthit allowed a fly to fall safely between them yesterday and Rogers told them both that such a thing wasn't done on his ball club.

A Mean Trick, This.

Otto Williams and Hornsby took advantage of the innocence of Cox, the Texas pitcher, when they talked him into throwing the ball to third base while nobody was covering and permitting Hornsby to score a run. Rogers was on second and Bottomley on first when Hafey bunted. Cox and the third baseman ran after the ball and Cox got it.

"Throw it to third!" yelled Hornsby, and Williams gave the same advice and held out his arms invitingly. The young hurler turned around and tossed the ball over the bag and into the crowd. Hornsby was still blushing this morning for having worked the old trick on a poor college boy.

About 2000 students, the best crowd of the trip, turned out to see the game. Secretary Lloyd said, however, that it didn't mean much as most of them got in on students' tickets.

What! Another One?

Ollie Falk, the Texas first baseman, is a brother of Chester Falk of the Browns and Bib Falk of the White Sox.

The Texas pitchers issued 14 bases on balls.

After the game today, the Cardinals go by bus to Fort Worth, to play the Cats tomorrow and Sunday. Fort Worth should provide some real competition for they have won the Texas League pennant six times in a row.

STAR GOALTENDER WHO WILL PLAY HERE WITH CHICAGO TEAM

VIC NEATE.

ST. LOUIS soccer fans take especial pride in the excellence of the goaltenders playing with local teams but they are quite ready to admit that Vic Neate is one of the greatest goal guardians in American soccer. Vic is a native of Ireland but he has been playing with Chicago teams for about five years. Last Sunday he received an offer from a representative of the Bethlehem Steel Co. team to join them next season. He will appear here Sunday as a member of the Canadian Club in their Western cup final with the Ben Millers.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS FROM 33 STATES IN BASKETBALL TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—High school teams of 33 states will begin to arrive here today for the national interscholastic basketball tournament of the University of Chicago.

Undoubtedly the greatest gathering of high school basketball talent in the game's history, between 400 and 500 youths, will compete in the event. Thirty-four entries are on file and a place is being held open for the winners of state tournaments in Minnesota, Pennsylvana, New York, Michigan and Wisconsin, whose state titles are being decided today and tomorrow.

The entry list will be kept under 40 teams. Drawings will be held Sunday and play will begin March 30, continuing to April 3.

The 34 competitors already listed include 28 state champions. Wichita, Kan., which won the national championship here a year ago, will be supplanted this year by Newton, champion of Kansas.

Three of the 1925 semifinalists will be in the lineup—Wheeler, Miss., Westport High of Kansas City, Mo., and El Reno, Ok

Winnipeg Team Wins.

DULUTH, Minn., March 26.—Winnipeg shot four goals in the third period last night to defeat Duluth 4 to 3 in a central hockey league game, tying the post-season prechampionship series at a game apiece.

Petersen Will Play Sunday For Ben Millers

Regular Center Halfback Recovers From Injury and Is Ready for Match.

By Dent McSkimming.

The danger of a patched-up team which has confronted the Ben Miller club management has been removed with the announcement today that Allan Petersen, regular center halfback, has recovered from an injury which kept him out of the game for two weeks. He will be fit and ready to play Sunday in the Western Cup final against the Canadian Club of Chicago. The Ben Millers engaged in a training grind at St. Louis University Field last night.

Efforts are being redoubled by the local officials to obtain the national final in the event the Ben Millers are successful in their Western final. A tentative date of April 11 has been set by the committee which selected Ebbets Field of Brooklyn, as the site for the game, but W. E. Barker, president of the St. Louis Soccer and Exhibition Co., has pointed out to Secretary Andrew Brown that in the event of bad weather on the day of the game it is highly improbable that the Brooklyn Baseball Club management will permit the soccer teams to play. A postponement at the last minute would prove disastrous. If the game is played in St. Louis, on April 4, a large crowd is assured regardless of weather conditions, Barker points out.

The national challenge cup committee rules empower the committee to assign the game where it chooses but it must be played on or before April 10.

It is understood that the Bethlehem Club is quite willing to have the national final played in St. Louis.

Baer Captures National Junior 220-Yard Title

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 26.—Swimmers from Washington University in St. Louis played a prominent part in a record-breaking evening at the Kansas City Athletic Club pool last night.

R. Baer of the St. Louis school won the national A. A. U. junior championship and set a new mark in winning the 220-yard free-style event in 2 minutes 42 6-10 seconds. M. McArdle unofficially bettered the Western A. A. U. record in the 220-yard breast-stroke race by making the distance in 2 minutes 48 9-10 seconds. The old mark was 3 minutes 2 6-10 seconds. D. Ullman, also of Washington University, was second.

Bears First in Relay.

The Washington U. team won the W. A. A. U. 220-yard relay race, nosing out two K. C. A. C. teams which took the other two places. Kaercher, Ewerhardt, Baer and Millstone were the Bear participants.

Ewerhardt took first place in the 100-yard free style event, defeating Watson and Mullins of the K. C. A. C. Ewerhardt also placed second in the W. A. A. U. 50-yard free style race, which was won by Mullin of K. C. A. C. in record-breaking time. Baer was second to Arden Allen of Stanford University in the 100-yard backstroke event.

O. Lanche of K. C. A. C. broke the W. A. A. U. record for distance plunging, making 75 feet in 41 2-10 seconds. The old record was 73 feet. In an exhibition race with Carl Stephenson, a teammate, Wally O'Connor of Stanford bettered the intercollegiate record for the 220-yard free style swim in 2 minutes 22 2-10 seconds, the old mark being 2 minutes 28 8-10 seconds.

The Stanford team, in a special exhibition, bettered the W. A. A. U. 200-yard relay record by paddling the distance in 1 minute, 43 7-10 seconds. The old mark was 1 minute, 49 3-5 seconds. Dave Fall of Stanford gave an exhibition of fancy diving.

Extra Foot Added to Pikeway Standards for Hoff's Benefit

Norwegian Smasher of Pole Vault Records to Perform at Washington U. Field House Tomorrow Night.

Charley Hoff's propensity for the unusual heights in vaulting has necessitated the construction of a special set of elongated pole-vault standards in preparation for the Norwegian champion's visit at the Washington U. fieldhouse tomorrow night. Measurement of the equipment of the Pikeway track men revealed that the standards could be raised no higher than 13 feet 6 inches, the customary height for such equipment. An additional foot was added to the sliding pipe, allowing a height of 14 feet and 6 inches.

The sand and sawdust mixture in the vaulting pit was taken out and sifted yesterday and piled to a height of five feet from the base of the pit in preparation for the Norwegian's performance. The ordinary depth of the mixture is a foot and a half.

Hoff will arrive tomorrow morning and will inspect the field when preliminary heats for the 10 high schools entered in the interscholastic meet are to be run off. The evening program will start at 7:30 and will run on time schedule till its finish at 10:30 o'clock.

Murchison to Run.

Loren Murchison, sprint ace, who will give a 10-yard handicap to three Bruin track men, Moloney, Benz and Carroll, in a 300-yard run. Murchison's favorite distance, worked out yesterday on the Washington track. The former McKinley star who has set numerous records in distances from 40 to 300 yards expressed satisfaction with the manner in which a recent injury to his right leg had healed.

Dan Kinsey, Olympic hurdle champion, who is expected to arrive this evening also to appear at the Bears' stronghold tomorrow night, will have as an opponent in the high hurdles Harry Hudson, Washington, who will run from scratch with the star. Kinsey will arrive from Urbana where he is attending the University of Illinois.

Lanes are being marked this afternoon to accommodate the large number of high school track men who will participate in this first interscholastic indoor meet here.

Tickets for the meet, which is under Western A. A. U. sanction permitting the establishment of official world's records, are on sale at Spalding's, Lowe and Campbell's, and Leacock's.

Jack Horner Wins Grand National

Bright's Boy, Also an American Owned Horse, Third in English Turf Classic.

By the Associated Press.

AINTREE, England, March 26.—American-owned horses, both outsiders in the betting, won first and third places today in the Grand National Steeplechase, the world's most famous and difficult steeplechase.

Jack Horner, recently purchased by C. Schwartz, from an English owner, quoted at 25 to 1, won handily by three lengths, while Stephen Sanford's Bright's Boy snatched third place.

Old Tay Bridge, owned by Mrs. W. H. Dixon, was the favorite, backed at 8 to 1 against, but came in second, as he did last year. He led at the last jump, but gave way to Jack Horner close to the finish.

Only 14 jumpers finished out of the 30 to start in the gruelling test. Sanford's Mount Etna was among those failing to finish.

Jack Horner was ridden by W. Watkinson, Old Tay Bridge by J. Anthony, and Bright's Boy by E. Doyle.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 26.—Two New Yorkers, a Floridian and a Canadian won their way into the semifinals of the Florida winter amateur golf championship here yesterday.

They were Kenneth M. Reed, Scarsdale, N. Y., and J. L. Anderson, Garden City, L. I., Harry L. Evans, St. Augustine, and Frank Thompson, Toronto.

Reed won on the seventeenth green over George P. James of Washington, two up and one to play.

Anderson's victory carried him to victory over Roy Barnhill, Fox Hills, N. Y., after they made the turn all square. The score was four and three.

Evans beat Joe Craig, Jacksonville High School boy, seven and five.

Perfect Score Rolled in A.B.C. Bowling Tourney

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., March 26.—A perfect score was rolled here today in the American Bowling Congress by Charles Reinlie of Racine, Wis., a member of Riepels' Arcades team. It is the first time in 13 years and the second time in the history of the organization that a game of 300 has been chalked up in tournament. The only other perfect mark was made here in 1913 by Billy Knox of Philadelphia.

Reinlie, paired with R. Riepel, was bowling in the doubles. He scored but 167 in his first game, achieved his great performance in the second and wound up in the third with 183. He and Riepel went into seventh place by virtue of their combined total or 1278 in the two-men events.

The perfect game was rolled in two much-shunned alleys, Nos. 1 and 2, popularly accredited with being "jinxed." Reinlie hit "in the pocket" in every frame but two—the third and eighth—when he crossed over but knocked all the pins down.

On his last ball spectators believed that No. 8 pin had been left standing, but two others, rebounding from the sideboards, hit it simultaneously and wiped it off.

Reinlie, 30, has been bowling 10 years, and rolls an average of 192 in two Racine leagues.

The largest matinee crowd of the tournament, turning out to watch Jimmy Smith in action, witnessed a real exhibition of the art of spilling the pins in the Armory building here yesterday. The "worlds greatest" however, did not provide the fireworks but a pair of Rochester youths, Jimmy Hubert and Tommy Coley.

Turning in games of 423, 506 and 415 the Rochester duo crashed their way into top place in the doubles division of the major pin classic with a 1344 total, the fourth highest mark ever registered in the two-man event of the A. B. C. show. The customers cramming the building to watch "Smitty" in action saw him count 575 in the doubles and 577 in the singles, but most of their attention was focussed on the bowlers from Rochester.

Besides taking top berth in the doubles standing they turned in two of the best marks in the singles division, Coley hitting for 662 while his partner, Hubert was pulling up with 632.

St. Louisans in Prize Money.

Several prize winning totals were recorded by St. Louis bowlers, although the all-round work of the visitors was mediocre in the minor events.

St. Louis scores:

Two-man events—Huitt, 193, 194, 193; Steppacher, 177, 192, 203. Total, 370, 384, 396—1152. Heibert, 204, 182, 192; Kuhl, 177, 181, 201. Total, 381, 363, 293—1137. Hockey Teams in Tie

Oxford-Cambridge Race Tomorrow

No Americans in Either Shell, Both Crews Lack Experienced Men.

By the Associated Press.

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, March 26.—The Oxford and Cambridge crews will take to the Thames tomorrow for their annual eight oared race. No American oarsman will be in either shell.

The practice of the crews has revealed, in the opinion of experts, that they are evenly matched but fall far short of the usual varsity standards. The lack of first-class watermen is evident in both crews and the chance for a record row over the famous 4½-mile course from Putney to Mortlake is very slight, although the race possibly will be an exciting and close one.

The Oxford crew will use a new boat. It has slightly higher sides than last year's boat, being designed to prevent another disaster by swamping, such as overtook the crew last year.

The dark blues will have to carry a load of about 1530 pounds, heavier by 30 pounds than the Cambridge weight. They have been able, however, to distribute their weight more evenly than in the Cambridge boat. This will be greatly to their advantage if the Thames is choppy on Saturday.

Seasoned oarsmen are fewer in the shells this year than usual, Oxford has three and Cambridge four.

ST. LOUISAN DEFEATED BY LAMPRECHT IN DIXIE GOLF EVENT

BILOXI, Miss., March 26.—Southern golfers were victorious over their northern competitors in the golf states tournament here yesterday. Fred Lamprecht, New Orleans, national intercollegiate champion, defeated J. R. Kirk, St. Louis, 2 up in the first round of match play in the men's division.

The second 18 holes in this division will be played tomorrow with the semifinals and finals Saturday.

Miss Marion Turpie, New Orleans, won from Mrs. Don Hamilton, Chicago, 6 and 5 in the outstanding match of the second round of the woman's division, played during a downpour of rain.

Mrs. C. J. Young, Chicago, will play Miss Hurpie and Mrs. Barrett, Chicago, will meet Mrs. C. M. Case, also of Chicago, in the semifinals tomorrow. The winners will contest for the title Saturday.

L. E. NEWELL OPENS OFFICE IN CLAYTON; SELLS 3 TRACTS

L. E. Newell, who for the last 13 years has been vice president of the Newell Motor Car Co., has established an office at 7 North Meramec street, in Clayton, in connection with Alfred Kerth, a Clayton attorney.

Newevll's first transaction involved the sale of two 40-acre tracts adjoining, on Ladue road, just west of Price road, overlooking the St. Louis Country Club. One-half was handled through the Real Estate Mortgage Trust Co. and the other half through a county real estate company. The price was conceded to be the highest ever paid per acre in large tract acreage.

Newell also reported the sale of a 20-acre tract on the Warson and Ladue roads, which was sold to C. Harold Schreiber, which tract now has a valuation of about $40,000. Newell will continue active in the motor car business.

The Federer Realty Co. reports that the General Metal Products Co., formerly known as the Von der Au & Cluss Manufacturing Co., one of the oldest metal works on the South Side, has leased 35,000 square feet of space in the Anheuser-Busch plant, at 1115-1127 Pestalozzi street. The increase in the business of the products company was given as the reason. The firm, which was organized in 1889, is now capitalized at $75,000. Herman von der Au is president and R. A. Kaltwasser is secretary and general manager.

The firm is moving from its old location, at 2400-2408 South Jefferson avenue, the building which it has occupied for many years.

REAL ESTATE BOOM STRIKES LOWER TEXAS GULF COAST

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex.—A backwash of the Florida boom suddenly has struck the Lower Gulf Coast region of Texas. In Corpus Christi, Kingsville, Bishop and in towns of the lower Rio Grande Valley more property has changed hands during the last four weeks than during any similar period in their history.

Values have mounted without any apparent cause except that there has been an influx of buyers who seem to be willing to pay the higher prices. Several large subdivision projects are being promoted. Besides the demand for property situated within the corporate limits of these towns, there is much activity in the sale of acreage bordering the Laguna Madre, the purchasers having the idea that the long stretch of coast between Corpus Christi and the mouth of the Rio Grande may be developed into colonies of winter homes.

CAHOKIA SPECIAL ELECTION

A petition was filed in the St. Clair County Court signed by 32 voters of the Village of Cahokia, asking that a special election be called to submit to the voters of the village the question of incorporation. Judge Weber entered an order for the election and will fix the date in a day or two.

The village of Cahokia has been in existence since 1695. It was first the Mission of the Notre Dame of Cahokia and in 1715 King Louis of France granted the tract to the Bishop of Quebec. In 1765 the village became British territory and in 1783 a part of the State of Virginia, and in 1789 it became a part of the northwest territory. The village was the first county seat of St. Clair County. It has a population of 320.

We Fight Colds

We paid $1,000,000 for this way

Many years ago a great laboratory started to develop a way to fight colds. They worked 25 years to perfect it. All the best that science found was embodied in it.

We have lately paid $1,000,000 for that formula and product. Just because millions have proved it the greatest remedy for colds. And millions more will use it when they know.

It stops a cold in one day. It stops the spread of a cold. It ends the dread of a cold. In a lifetime of investigation we have found nothing more efficient.

The name is Hill's Cascara-Bromide-Quinine. It combines all the best that men know for a cold.

The best way is to have it on hand when needed. Have it ready to stop any cold at the start. Then is when minutes save hours of trouble.

But, if you lack it when the cold develops, get it as soon as you can. Get the genuine for nothing else is like it. The way in which it ends a cold will remove all your fears of a cold. At your drug store.

Clarence Darrow

W E B E R M O T O R C A R C O.

At the City Club, last night, Clarence Darrow spoke on "Crime, Its Cause and Treatment." He stressed the facts that crime is the result of poor training of children, and its treatment should be in the early education and training.

In like manner, any tendency for wear or abuse in the trade-in used car should be corrected in the work shops of the dealer who sells that car.

Weber Pledged Used Cars are all thoroughly overhauled and rebuilt before being offered for sale. Any sign of imperfect condition is checked at its inception.

SUPERSTITION AS TO GREEN HURTS BRITISH STYLE PLANS

Dress Designers Want to Use Color Englishmen Consider Unlucky.

LONDON, March 26.—Superstition is about to wreck the plans of dress designers to make green the prevailing color for spring. Englishmen as well as Englishwomen have an aversion to the emerald shades that is born with them as the fear of the boogay, only it lasts much longer.

To wear green is considered unlucky and in the provision districts a superstition exists that if one buys a green dress or suit one will be compelled to buy a black mourning outfit before the year is out.

This strange complex was common among the Victorians. Burne Jones, the great Royal Academian, rarely used green, and Disraeli had No. 10 Downing entirely redecorated because most of the rooms were done in shades of green.

ST. LOUIS MOTORMAN LOSES $20,000 ALIENATION SUIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., March 26.—Ending another episode in a three-year court dispute, a jury in 20 minutes last night decided against William Herbst, St. Louis motorman, in his $20,000 suit against his brother-in-law, Edward Baker, 41, Mexico farmer, charging alienation of his wife's affections.

Mrs. Herbst and Baker's wife are sisters, members of the Holliday family, residing near Shelbina. The Herbsts separated in 1922. Mrs. Herbst filed petition for divorce in the Hannibal Court of Common Pleas, charging desertion, cruel treatment and indignities. The petition was denied, but decree was granted to Herbst on a cross bill, based on infidelity charges.

Baker then filed a $20,000 slander suit against Tom Herbst, father of the plaintiff in the suit just decided, but no judgment was awarded. William Herbst then filed the alienation suit.

SYMPHONY TO CLOSE TOUR SUNDAY AT CAPE GIRARDEAU

Seven States and Sixteen Cities on Itinerary at Evanston, Ind., Today.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will complete its spring festival tour Sunday afternoon with a concert at the State Teachers' College in Cape Girardeau. Today the orchestra is playing at Evansville, Ind., and tomorrow it will be in Duquoin, Ill.

Returning to St. Louis Monday, the orchestra will take a brief rest until April 1 and 2, when concerts are scheduled for the meetings of the Southwestern Illinois Teachers' Association in East St. Louis, after which the orchestra will go on a week's tour of colleges through Missouri.

Seven states and 16 cities have been visited on the spring tour, in which were featured 12 matinees for children sponsored by local organizations.

DEFENDS ALASKA ENFORCEMENT

Judge Ritchie Says Dr. Clarence True Wilson Should Change Middle Name.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist Board of Morals, who was called a liar in the House Wednesday, was invited to change his middle name today by Federal Judge Elmer E. Ritchie, of Alaska, testifying before a Senate subcommittee. He added that while he would not characterize Dr. Wilson as a falsifier, he considered he was a retailer of falsehoods.

The question arose over prohibition enforcement conditions in Judge Ritchie's district, and the Judge, whose nomination is being considered, was testifying in his own defense. He referred to statements he said Dr. Wilson had made about Alaska enforcement, and defended the administration of justice in the territory as being effective.

JERITZA TO SING OVER RADIO

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Maria Jéritza, Austrian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., will make her radio debut tonight. Emilio de Gorgoza, baritone, and Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, also go on the air tonight in the same program.

Beginning at 9 p. m., Eastern time, the concert will be broadcast through stations WJZ, New York; KYW, Chicago; KDKA, Pittsburg; WBZ, Springfield, Mass.; WGY, Schenectady, and WRC, Washington.

Each of the artists will present two groups of numbers. Mr. de Gorgoza will sing a group of three Spanish songs, "La Golondrina," "Juanita" and "La Sevillana." Mr. Zimbalist's first group will be Drdla's "Souvenir," "The Swan" by Saint Saens, and a Chopin waltz (Opus 64). Madame Jeritza has chosen the aria "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon" from Massanet's "Herodiade" and "The Song of the Lute" from "The Dead City," by Korngold, for her debut before a radio audience. Following "The Dance of the Hours," from "La Giaconda," by the orchestra, de Gorgoza will present his second group, the aria from Massanet's "King of Lahore," and "In Old Madrid," by Bingham Trotere. "Old Black Joe," and "Drigo's Harlequin's Serenade," will complete Zimbalist's program, and Madame Jeritz' final group will consist of "Voi Lo Sapete," from Cavalleria Rusticana," and an aria from Massanet's "Le Cid." The concert closes the 1926 series by the Victor Talking Machine Co.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

SWEETIE.—In order to clarify honey, take 875 parts of water, 150 parts of washed, dried and pulverized charcoal, 70 parts of powdered chalk, and the whites of 3 eggs, beaten in 90 parts of water, for 3000 parts of honey. Put the honey and the chalk in a vessel capable of containing one-third more than the mixture and boil for 3 minutes, then introduce the charcoal and stir up all of it. Add the whites of the eggs while continuing to stir, and boil again for 3 minutes. Take from the fire and after allowing the liquid to cool for a quarter of an hour, filter, and to secure a perfectly clear liquid refilter on flannel.

ART. — A permanently plastic modeling clay can be obtained by first mixing it with glycerine, turpentine or similar bodies, and then adding vaseline. The proportion of clay to the vaseline varies according to the desired consistency of the product, the admixture of vaseline varying from 10 to 50 per cent. It is obvious that the hardness of the material decreases with the amount of vaseline added, so that the one richest in vaseline will be the softest. By the use of various kinds of clay and the suitable choice of admixture, the plasticity, as well as the color of the mass may be varied.

W. K. B.—The temperature at which a given substance passes from the solid into the liquid state is known as the melting point. Different substances generally have different melting points. Thus, mercury if solidified by cold would melt at a temperature of 40 degrees below zero C. Ice melts at zero degrees C; sulphur at 115 degrees C; tin at 230 degrees C; aluminum at 727 degrees C; silver at 968 degrees C; gold at 1072 degrees C; copper at 1082 degrees C; pure iron at 1704 degrees C; platinum at 1777 degrees C. The presence of more or less impurity in a given substance generally causes a corresponding depression of its melting point and hence the latter is often determined when it is required to ascertain whether a given substance, especially a carbon compound of known melting point, is perfectly pure. Strictly speaking, the melting point of a solid substance, just as the boiling point of a liquid, depends upon the external pressure. In the case of the melting point, however, the influence exercised by the external pressure is so very slight that it may generally be safely left out of account altogether.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

TAYLOR.—Probably he can be prosecuted for failure to support the children. Report the facts to the State's Attorney of your county.

S. W.—You cannot be held liable for a contract which your wife made before you married her, and your wages cannot be garnished for it. If you are sued you will have a good defense.

MRS. O. W. B.—Probably you have no claim on the estate now. However, you might write to a lawyer in the place where the property was located and ask him to investigate the matter.

DAILY READER.—It is usually desirable to obtain a good patent lawyer to write your claims and obtain your patent for you. The cost would probably be from $100 to $125.

CONSTANT READER. — A can sue B in St. Louis and can join the merchant who lives in Missouri outside of St. Louis. He can also join the Illinois merchant, but he will not be able to get a personal judgment against him unless he can serve him with a summons in Missouri.

GEORGE H.—She would have a claim upon the property, unless the divorce decree provided to the contrary.

L. H.—If there was a real, common law marriage, that is, an actual, mutual, marital agreement, followed by living together as man and wife, prior to the time when the 1921 law took effect, then you are his legal wife. However, if at the time this occurred he had another wife living from whom he had not been divorced, then you are not his legal wife. If the property and insurance is in your name you would probably get it.

A. U. S.—(1) The title company, of course, makes a charge for preparing a certificate of title, or for bringing an old certificate of title down to date. The charge depends upon the amount of work. If you had an old certificate of title brought down to date it would be returned to you together with an additional or supplementary certificate. (2) If there has been a fault in any payment under the second deed of trust he can foreclose, subject to the first deed of trust, of course.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

A FRIEND.—The cure you mention may be all that is claimed for it, and your best opportunity to get it on the market would be through some wholesale medical and chemical manufacturing company, such as are listed in the classified section of the telephone and city directories.

NUISANCE. — The trouble is doubtless a parasite, the treatment for which is to apply the following ointment for three or four consecutive nights: Mercurial ointment, 2 ounces. After each a general hot bath and an entire change of underwear and bed clothing. Each person should be treated separately and sleep apart. During the following four days apply cold cream to allay any irritation, when the ointment may be again applied to any spots where the parasites have not been destroyed.

TOM MC.—A visit to the Psyciatric Clinic, 154 Municipal Courts Building, might possibly result in providing you with the advice and information you ask for.

MR. WM. B.—Try the following formula for the rundown condition: Elixir of iron, quinine and strychnia, two teaspoonfuls in wineglass of water three times daily—before meals.

C. Z. E.—Sage will darken the hair. The following is a good lotion for the skin: Blanched bitter almonds, 2 ounces; blanched sweet almonds, one ounce; add distilled water (one quart). Mix well, strain and put into bottle, add boric acid in powder form, 20 grains, dissolve in two tablespoons of wine and shake well. Rose water can be used instead of wine.

STOCK LIST IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

Erratic Price Movement During Day — Shorts Cover, Early—Pressure on Utilities — French Franc Weak.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Mar. 26.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Notwithstanding the fact that several public utility and specialty shares declined to new low records for the year, speculative securities were in better demand today and the general list scored fair advances in moderately active trading. Improved credit conditions, reflected in a reduction in call loan and a higher reserve ratio at the Federal Reserve Bank, served to restore confidence to some extent, while professional operators showed an inclination to take the long side of the market for the time being. Prices showed a mixed trend in the bond market, some utilities being more freely offered in response to the break in stocks of this group. Chicago Railway securities were weak. Government securities were fairly well sustained, however, and rail issues received better support.

Credit Situation Better.

"A reduction in the rate for call loans from 5 to 4½ per cent in the afternoon was the most cheerful development the stock market has received this week and it served further to strengthen prices after a session of erratic movements. Although the industrial shares showed a tendency to rally most of the day, a drive against several of the prominent public utility stocks unsettled the market for a time and about a score of new low records for the year were recorded.

Resistance by Leaders.

"Most of the active market leaders displayed stubborn resistance and rallies from yesterday's low figures were numerous. Most traders were inclined to believe that the reaction had gone far enough to warrant a rally for technical reasons if no other. Consequently those who had sold for a decline covered their commitments freely. This buying was augmented by orders from the public, attracted by prospects of bargain prices.

Brokers Loans Down $81,000,000.

"Another favorable influence was the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, revealing a further shrinkage in brokerage loans of more than $81,000,000 and an increase in the reserve ration to above 81 per cent, against 77.8 per cent a week ago.

Leaders Work Higher.

"In response to the improvement in the credit situation, many of the active market leaders advanced sharply. General Motors climbed to above 121, while Hudson spurted about four points to above 85 and General Electric jumped more than eight points and got back above the 300 level. United States Steel, Baldwin, Dupont, Mack Trucks and a host of others rallied briskly.

Pressure on Utilities.

"New low levels for the year were recorded in many of the public utility and specialty stocks, however, weakness being noticeable in National Tea, Union Bag and Paper, Allis Chalmers, Kelsey Wheel, International Combustion and Kresge Department Stores preferred. General Gas and Electric was hammered down to 40, a new low for the year, and a decline of 20 points from the recent high. American Water Works, Columbia Gas and Electric, North American and Standard Gas and Electric were freely offered at concessions.

Railroad Group Steady.

"Railroad stocks again resisted selling pressure and many of the favorites worked slightly higher, although as a group the tone was steady and quiet. Oil shares showed some irregularity, but moved in narrow limits as a rule.

French Rates at New Low.

"Heavy offerings of French francs in London and Paris caused a sharp decline in rates on Paris today and francs were quoted at 3.42½ cents for checks within one-half of a point of the record low reached in the half-day session of March 9, 1924. In some parts of the financial district it was reported that a record low for all time had been reached here, but most banks regarded the figure established in 1924 as the lowest. Belgian rates were lower, while Norwegian crowns turned reactionary. Sterling held steady, however, and South American exchanges improved slightly. Japanese rates sagged.

Wheat Up, Cotton Down.

"Prices in the principal commodity markets showed an irregular course. Grain values rose sharply, but cotton showed a tendency to decline throughout the day. May wheat contract scored an advance of 4 cents a bushel, while later deliveries were also higher. Corn registered an advance of a cent a bushel.

Bond Market Review

NEW YORK, March 26.—No change in the character of bond trading was evident in today's dealings and prices continued to drift aimlessly. A tendency toward recovery was apparent in the railroad group, where substantial gains were recorded by Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Illinois Central and Seaboard issues. The advances, however, were not fully maintained. The downward trend of sugar prices led to renewed selling of Warner Sugar Refining 7s, but Manati Sugar 7½s were in demand and advanced a point. Skelly and Sinclair convertibles led a moderate rally in the oil group. Weakness of public utility stocks brought sympathetic selling of these companies' bonds, with traction issues the hardest hit. Foreign and United States Government obligations were heavy.

COTTON RANGE IRREGULAR ON NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 26.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 7 points and sold about 6 to 9 points net lower during the early trading under liquidation by recent buyers. Southern and local selling. Cold rains were reported in the South which were considered unfavorable for the coming crop start, but the prospect was for clearing weather while there is plenty of time for crop preparations, and there was probably some selling on the easier rate cables from Liverpool. May eased off to 18.71 and October to 17.60, and the market within 2 or 3 points of these prices at the end of the first half hour. Private cables from Liverpool reported some trade calling in the market there but complained of a continued poor demand for cotton cloths and yarns.

The market turned firmer after the early offerings were absorbed, on covering by May shorts and buying of later deliveries, partly for Wall street account. Reports that good planting seed would probably be scarce should much replanting be necessary this spring together with complaints that rains were delaying farm work were factors on the advance, which extended to 18.82 for May and 17.70 for October, or about 2 to 6 points net higher. These prices brought in some realizing, however, and the market was back to yesterday's closing quotations at midday.

Prices eased off during the early afternoon under realizing and local selling which was probably encouraged by a bearish interpretation of the week-end figures. May was selling around 18.73 and October 17.63 at 2 o'clock or about 4 to 7 points net lower.

Mysterious Sweetheart

by Ella Wister Haines

CHAPTER XXXII.

FOR a while Paul forgot time and place, even the thrill of pursuit was gone as he contemplated what had happened to him. He had met his half-sister and fallen in love with her. He had pursued her into Mexico, followed her through amazing adventures, and all for nothing but a terrible heartache!

It was cruel to be denied love for 25 years, and to have to deny it when it came! How could he explain to her loyal, trusting heart! The pain of it would be unbearable torture——

Gradually common sense reasserted itself and he was able to look at the situation in a more businesslike manner. After all, how could he be sure that Carolita was the kidnaped child? What proof did he have? Walter had a girl with him—a girl he had introduced publicly as Miss Cynthia Reynolds!

Hope rose again in a great burst of light! Walter had something up his sleeve? This was it! Milana and Gaines might be mistaken, yes, there was all kinds of hope!

Again he reviewed the girl's appearance, her decided brunette type. No Reynolds had ever been dark-haired—yet—Dugan had described Walter's girl in the same way.

And here ugly thoughts again intruded, the skeleton—Cynthia—Walter—the mystery! His head ached with the agony of it all!

The car plunged steadily forward. Neither of the men spoke. Once Uchita paused for gasoline, consulting with a rough-looking Mexican, and disclosing the fact that they were on the right trail.

"Sako he passed here, got young Mexican boy, Mr. Paul, that boy Miss Carolita!"

Darkness had descended once more, and as it deepened Paul became aware that the lonely road was no longer deserted. A man's shadow protruded now and then from the bushes, a stray horseman crossed their tracks.

"Mr. Paul not now call out! Uchita see trouble now, but we fight! No scare!"

"All right?" he asked sleepily, his heart dead within him. A volley of shots far off in the distance was his answer.

Pressing forward now, the shots growing nearer and nearer. A few miles further on a turn of the road revealed four horsemen.

"Now!" Uchita pointed excitedly at the group. "Sako there, I know, there in cave! Miss in cave, Sako shoot!"

Another wild dash forward.

"Shoot, Mr. Paul, shoot! Then run for girl! I keep back bandits!"

The car stopped, and Paul, hardly knowing what he did, but quick to glimpse the entrance to the cave, shouted to Sako:

"Reynolds to the rescue! Gangway!"

A second more, shots flying about his head, he had entered the cave and seized the slim form of a boy, dashing back to the cab, Sako following.

"Fly, Uchita, fly!" and the car plunged forward.

Carlotta, gazing in an agony of suspense and fear into the face of her rescuer, allowed her head to drop back upon his breast, and Paul, clasping her with one arm, used his free hand to keep his pistol cracking through the back window of the car, Sako doing his part.

But horsemen are no match for modern motors. A short, fierce race with much wild shooting, then the three bandits, for only three had survived the encounter, fell back.

"They no follow now," Sako cried, "they got money, too muchly trouble to fight longer!"

"Sako means roughnecks no fight more unless they get more money," Uchita explained. "Muchly safe now if no more come!"

Sako leaned forward, entering into a rapid conversation with his friend. Paul, holding Carolita closely, his head in a whirl, knew that they were speaking in Japanese, and made no attempt to listen.

"Carolita! Carolita! You're not hurt, beloved?" was all that he could say.

"No, Paul—no"—— was her halting rejoinder. Her heart was heavy with despair.

He made no attempt to kiss or caress her, as the car continued its journey. Soon, very soon, he must tell her the truth! The ordeal was almost more than he could face, and presently he noticed that she had fallen asleep, and breathed a prayer of thankfulness.

"Sako go now, Mr. Reynolds. Much good luck! His glance rested upon the sleeping Carolita, and Paul drew her closer.

"Why do you go, Sako? You have been a good boy. Mrs. Reynolds will want to reward you well. Drive to Los Angeles with us, won't you?"

"Sako thank boss, but no go. Muchly bad for boss if Sako get pulled. Uchita go, everybody glad now?"

"Best he go, Mr. Paul," Uchita threw in. "Madam she know Sako, she no forget he be good to Missy."

"Well," Paul held out his hand. "Good-bye. And thank you for—for Miss Reynolds and myself, and for my step-mother, too."

Uchita did not linger.

"We must make hurry back to California now, Mr. Paul," he commented. "I know all tired, but Mr. Walter make already much trouble, maybe. Madam worried. Take Missy home to her."

"Yes," Paul agreed, "we'll take Missy home."

"Back to her mother," Paul said over and over to himself, back to her mother who must break the news to her. Poor little soul, poor, poor little girl.

Murderous thoughts came into his mind, revenge seethed within him as he thought of Walter and his despicable crime. Wearied to the point of exhaustion, hungry, and parched with thirst, he still could not lose his troubles in sleep. His mind refused to be still at his command, he could only think and think and think, around and around in a circle.

"Uchita, we must get water somewhere!"

"Yes, Mr. Paul, soon! Milk for Missy too, then hurry some more!"

Presently they stopped before a ranch house, making a stay of several minutes, and, although Carolita did not awake, Paul was able to make her comfortable upon the rear seat, while he took his place beside Uchita, it being his turn to drive once more. And when they drove on again there was a can of milk in the car, some bread and a few oranges in readiness for the girl when she should awaken, while the men had had refreshment and felt the better for it.

"Uchita," Paul ventured to ask, "what has that man, Milana, to do with our young lady? He brought her back to America, didn't he?"

"Milana he friend to Mr. Walter, Uchita think, sir. Madame know, I think. Mr. Reynolds he did know. Uchita not know!"

"Uchita, you were with my father when this child was kidnaped?"

"Yes, sir! But not home, sir, Mr. Reynolds and Uchita in New York, Mrs. Reynolds and baby in Santa Barbara, see?"

"But you had seen the child?"

"Yes, yes, sir!"

"Was she dark—like—like this young lady?"

"Oh, yes, sir, much dark, such hair, such eyes, oh, yes, sir!"

Paul pondered over this information, strangely dissatisfied. He was still considering it from every possible angle when Carolita awoke with a startled cry, driving everything from his mind but her present need.

"You're all right, dear!" he reassured her. "Uchita will climb over the seat and give you your breakfast. I'm stretching every nerve to get into Los Angeles before dark."

There was a silence while Carolita partook of her simple meal, then Paul asked if she cared to sit with him in front.

"I'm so tired," she answered quietly, "would it be all right for me to sleep again?"

"Certainly! The best thing for you! Let me know when you wake up, and don't worry, Carolita, everything will come right now, I'm sure—for—for you!"

He added the "for you" with emphasis. Nothing could come right for a man whose heart was dead within him! He prayed that what sorrow she must feel would be outweighed by the blessings about to be showered upon her. She was such a gentle little thing—so innocent of the intrigue which had enmeshed her in its toils!

Afternoon came and the race with time continued at a terrific rate. Paul imagined Cynthia, John Carr, Burns and Hyatt sparring for time while Walter and his girl demanded the reward and established her claims. Walter would threaten to break the will. He would force his father's attorney into opening the codicil. Dropping with exhaustion, he stepped harder upon the gas.

The United States came into view, still he speeded on, through outlying country, through communities, on and on until Los Angeles was in sight. He must slow down now or be arrested for speeding, and it was at this point that Carolita aroused herself, asking to be taken into the front seat.

"Paul," she began timidly, "I must speak with you now before we go further. On my journey with Sako I learned of many things—things which must hurt. He told me, Paul"— she hesitated, "that I am your sister. Do you think it can be truth?"

"Carolita—I—I have heard it, too!"

Neither of them spoke again for some time, then Carolita broke the silence.

"It is a most strange story, Paul," she said drearily, "and most—most sad. I shall ask the lady who is my mother to let me return to the convent. I cannot bear to stay longer in this country!"

His heart sank deeper within his breast

"I know"— he murmured, "I understand!"

"How could we have foreseen, Paul? Oh, how cruel!"

Paul forced his eyes to stay upon the road ahead. He must not, dared not look at her!

"Paul, I was thinking about the rings—and my note to you? Did you find it?"

"Yes, I found the ring, darling," he bit his lips, "and the note was discovered in the car."

"And you have both rings safely?" her gentle inquiry went on. "I ask you then to keep the one that belongs to the man Paul, always for me, and give me back the other. It will be something—" a sob choked her.

"The rings are safely in the bank. Frank Hyatt will look after them. I have an idea that there may be some mention of them in my father's will, or that his wife may know something of them."

"Carolita," he continued, "there was a piece torn off that note you left me, part of the letter written in Spanish. I know that it was this note that made you fly from me, wasn't it?"

"Oh yes, he did threaten that you would be killed if I did not obey!"

"I remember, but down at the very bottom of the sheet there was a piece torn off! what was written there?"

She hesitated.

"It was about you," she said slowly.

"Yes? Tell me!"

It said: "He is your greatest enemy, the one from whom you have most to fear!"

"Carolita!" The car swerved under the grip he gave it, "you didn't believe him?"

"Oh Paul, no! How could you think!"

"Then why did you tear it off?"

"I wanted not that you should see, that you should think I might so believe, and for that reason obeyed him! I never believed, Paul, but I feared—more for you than myself."

"I see," said Paul very humbly, "I see," then he went on slowly, "Carolita, I think you know that I do not live in Santa Barbara. My office is in New York. I will not see you often. Do you not think that you might be happy with your mother? She is a sweet and lovely woman, dear, and when all this unfortunate business has been explained, when we understand what has happened, I think that she will be able to make you very happy."

She shook her head.

"No one can ever make me happy again," she said sadly. "I shall take the veil and find peace—at last."

The finality of her tone filled Paul with despair, yet he was powerless before it. He asked her to give him the full account of what had happened since she had been torn from his side, and was surprised to find how closely it coincided with his own imaginary outline.

"Even now," she said, "I know not who the two Senor Milanas may be, or Mr. Gaines, except that they all have charge of my safety! And what part plays Mr. Walter Reynolds, Paul? Why does he seek to harm me?"

"Carolita, I do not know! There is so much I dare only imagine! I was a child when you were taken from my father. I was told that you had been given up for dead! I cannot conceive of the events which have led up to such an extraordinary situation, one that would be hard to believe if one had not actually survived it. Oh, my dear, if you had not escaped them"—

"I shall always respect the Japanese," she said very simply, "I owe them much. How," she attempted in a lighter tone, "how do you like my bobbed hair? The sister would never permit! They will be ashamed of me!"

"Bobbed!" Paul tried to respond, "why it's shingled, child! How do you like being a boy? It's most becoming!"

Uchita, from his seat in the rear, heard them laughing and gave a grunt of satisfaction. He, too, was tired and worn, but the face of a dearly beloved master seemed to smile to him from out the great unknown, saying: "Well done, good and faithful servant!" And being a simple-minded fellow, free from complexes, he settled down to enjoy a short nap.

Carolita wanted to hear Paul's story; of course nothing could have been more natural, and the remainder of the ride passed more calmly, a certain resignation having replaced their first acute suffering of renunciation. Paul knew that Carolita loved him. Carolita knew that Paul loved her, and that there was nothing sisterly or brotherly about the feeling which had swept them away. It was a feeling of a very different kind!

Separation was the answer, the only one, and it must come promptly. In his own mind, Paul was already speeding back to New York, Carolita saw herself aboard a South American steamer. The parting would soon be over. Only the long years of memory and regret, years of vain longings, loomed ahead, and both tried to shut out such visions, grasping at the smallest diversion. Oh, the pain of it, the bitter, bitter regrets, the urge to be revenged upon the enemy who had perpetrated such an outrage!

The car stopped before a tall building.

For Beauty of Posture

By Lucrezia Bori

WHAT difference in a woman's appearance can be brought about by graceful posture!

LUCREZIA BORI

If you want to be convinced of this stand before a long mirror. Look at yourself carefully when you stand with drooping, slightly rounded shoulders, which is, unfortunately, the way so many women stand before they put careful consideration on the matter.

Now make your back straight by putting your shoulders back, your chest out and your chin in. If you do this, your stomach will be held flat without your even thinking of it, and your figure will be in a graceful straight line, with your head held proudly erect.

When you are walking take care of the same points. Remember to keep your shoulders back, your chest out and your chin in. Breathe regularly and deeply.

When you are seated you will do well to remember a little trick I have discovered which helps me a lot. Now my little secret is to put my two feet flat on the floor under my desk. In this position I find it much easier to sit erect than otherwise, and I am sure you will, too.

If you want encouragement to make yourself persevere in these beauty ways I have mentioned, just take pains to see how much better you look in your clothes. A good looking dress gives its wearer twice the amount of individuality and charm if she knows how to wear it well, and one of the first steps is to stand and walk gracefully. It makes such a difference in the becomingness of your clothes!

Black and White Popular.

Even in periods when the bright colors have their greatest popularity, black and white costumes do not seem to lose their attractiveness and appropriateness. The French, English and American designers are all recommending such costumes freely for afternoon and evening wear.

HOLES IN THE CLOTHES

By HANNAH WING.

WHEN your favorite dress, coat or suit comes home from the cleaner with strange and totally unexplained holes in it that were never there before, one's first impulse is, of course, to vent one's wrath on the cleaner.

A recent visit to a reputable dry cleaner's explained most of the mystery of these suddenly appearing holes and placed the blame on the accidental spilling of some of the simple lotions which make up the present-day routine of the care of one's person and the care of one's house.

Further than this many a tiny round hole has been caused by the spark from a cigarette ash. That surely is not the dry cleaner's fault. Moth holes or tiny cuts are also sometimes the causes of unexplained holes.

Sometimes the holes may not actually be in the garment before it goes to the cleaner, but the fabric may have been so weakened by corrosive liquids that the eaten part drops away during cleaning.

All alkalis have a very destructive effect on animal fibers, either wool or silk. That is why only the mildest of soaps and lukewarm water are used in laundering them. Among the materials in everyday use which contain alkalis quite harmless in themselves but extremely unhealthy to wool or silk fabrics are such simple things as cuticle removers.

Who has ever worried very much if in manicuring one's nails a drop or two did spill on silk negligee or even a dress if the toilet was late or hurried?

Among the other lotions which the dry cleaner urges care in handling are the deodorants for checking perspiration, corn removers, metal polishers, porcelain cleaners, and even soda fountain drinks!

Moving the radio batteries is another source of possible holes, as battery acid will eat holes in almost any fabric.

Always inspect garments before taking them to the cleaner, and if you know the source of possible spots, spills or stains, attach a note to the spot telling him what to expect. He will then know how to proceed.

A Windy Day.

THE world is but a wintry thing, dead dreams and old regrets, till comes a windy day in spring to wake the violets! The white clouds flee across the sky like little wind-blown boats, and fieldward earliest song birds try their shrill, far-reaching notes. A change stirs all the waiting land, faint hints of green appear, all earth's vast forces understand the time of growth is here! Though life lay dormant underground, forgetting sun and song and every sweet and pleasant sound; slept soundly there, and long, the time for sleep is ended now and spring in bright array binds apple blossoms on her brow to greet the windy day! The sky shows but a sullen arch and earth its joys forgets till comes a windy day in March to wake the violets!

The Stranger in the Tree

It is, as folk long since agreed,
Embarrassing to find you're treed.
—Gray Fox.

YES, sir, it is embarrassing to be treed. But it makes a whole lot of difference who does the treeing. The stranger in the Green Forest had been treed by Bowser the Hound. That means that Bowser had chased him and made him climb a tree for safety. Then Bowser had remained at the foot of the tree to keep the stranger up there. Now, this didn't worry the stranger very much. All he had to do was to remain there until Bowser got tired of barking and went away. Then he could come down when he felt like it.

But matters had changed. Somebody was coming up that tree. Yes, sir, somebody was climbing that tree. This was a wholly different matter. The stranger began to feel uneasy. He kept trying to look down between the branches to see who it was coming up that tree and grunting as he came. But it was some time before he could see anybody. When he did see who it was, he didn't know just what to think. It was Prickly Porky who was climbing this tree, and the stranger never had seen Prickly Porky close before. Prickly Porky came up very slowly, but the nearer he got the more uneasy the stranger felt. He could hear the thousand little spears in Prickly Pork's coat rattle as Prickly Porky climbed. It was an unpleasant sound. Yes, sir, it was a most unpleasant sound.

The stranger got to his feet and began to look for a way down. When he stood up this way Reddy Fox had a good view of him. Reddy didn't know what to think. This stranger certainly looked like a Fox. Instead of an all red coat, he wore a gray coat with some red trimmings. He didn't have a white tip to his tail nor was it so big as Reddy's. But there was no doubt that the stranger was a member of the Fox family. Reddy knew him to be a cousin, though what cousin he didn't know. Nor could he understand how a Fox could possibly be so high up in a tree. Reddy simply sat there staring with his mouth wide open. He was too astonished for words: In his surprise he forgot everything else. It wasn't until the roar of Bowser's voice almost in his ears warned him that Bowser had discovered him, that he remembered where he was. Bowser, having been driven away from the foot of the big hemlock tree by Prickly Porky the Porcupine, had gone running about to see what else he could find and so had surprised Reddy.

With a frightened bound away went Reddy, and after him went Bowser, his great voice ringing through the Green Forest. Reddy didn't mind being chased because he felt sure that he could

Splitting heads

HER head was throbbing dizzily with pain. Black spots danced impishly before her eyes. Her hands were as cold as her despairing heart. Where had her vigor gone? What thief of life had stolen her health and charm? These questions are daily asked by millions of women. The answer is—constipation.

But there is one sure, safe, pleasant way to be permanently rid of constipation. Use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly every day. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal—and you will know freedom from this dread disease which you never thought possible.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it can sweep the intestine clean. ALL-BRAN also absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, thus stimulating regular, healthy action.

You'll like Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit. Sprinkle over other cereals or cook with hot cereals. Try it in soups too. Also use the many recipes given on every package. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns your money.

Be careful! Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. A part-bran product is only partially effective — maybe not at all. Kellogg's is the original and only 100% ALL-BRAN. Doctors recommend it. All grocers sell it. Buy a package today. Note how much better you'll feel in a week. Served in leading restaurants.

SUCCESS IN BUSINESS

By NELLIE E. GARDNER

Spring Cleaning.

As Nature escapes from winter's shell and shows its green face, heralding the return of spring, look to your mental wardrobe. Does it need refurnishing, or perhaps discarding?

What plans have you made for the improvement of your place in business?

What progress have you made on that great venture you were longing to attempt, but for so long lacked the initial courage?

When would be a more auspicious time to set out on your new crusade than in the forthcoming days of "Spring Cleaning"?

The mind is never fresher and the heart never younger than in these glorious, challenging days.

Now, if ever, is the time to launch your great adventure whether it be a motor boat, or a tearoom, or a multigraphing and letter office, or a shop for homemade fudge and pin cushions and lamp shades!

"Spring Cleaning" also can be taken literally by the busy business woman. Just as earnestly as her grandmother dusted carpets and scrubbed the cupboard shelves, the business woman of today can wisely see to it that her clothes are in order and that her desk and files are cleaned of "dead wood" and trash.

Days when it is not easy to work.

Follow that cleaning or adventuring impulse today!

Tomorrow you may be lazy and the day may be late.

New Ice Treatment Causes Big Stir Among Beauty Specialists

American Beauty shops have been very much agog of late over the discovery recently made by an English beauty specialist and which is fast displacing the older methods of rejuvenating the skin and complexion. For years every Beauty Doctor has known the value of ice treatments for the complexion, but recently an English Specialist found that even better results could be obtained by simply rubbing the face, neck or hands with a little ordinary ice-mint either just before retiring at night or whenever one desires to look their best.

The reaction of the ice-mint on the skin not only brings the color to the cheeks the same as an ice treatment, but it also holds the color there longer and makes the skin soft, firm and more youthful in appearance. Wrinkles will soon be a thing of the past to the woman who cares for her skin. Many have already made themselves look years younger by these simple ice-mint treatments, and Druggists say that they are having an enormous demand for it as the cost is little and it is positively a delight to any woman who loves a good complexion and nice hands and skin.
